

GEN. GRANT'S THIRD TERM.

There is nothing very startling about the news which comes from Washington that the party managers have about determined to run Gen. Grant for a third term. It is rather early in the day for casting the Presidential horoscope; But the Republican astrologers will undoubtedly be on the safe side in predicting the re-nomination of General Grant. They will at least make sure of his favor in the meantime. When Gen. Grant left the army, he entered upon negotiations for the presidency. During the last campaign there was an account of a consultation that was held at Washington before Gen Grant consented to accept the first nomination, in which Gen. Rawlins acted for Gen. Grant, and Mr. J. Forney for the party. It was then represented, according to the story, that Gen. Grant could not afford to give up a lifetime of his position as General of the United States Army, with a large salary, to accept the office of President for one term, or even for two terms. Gen. Grant was then assured, it is said, that his period of Presidential service should not be limited to four years, or eight years, but that he should be re-elected for a third term at the very least. Whether this story is true or not, it has a certain verisimilitude heightened by the circumstance that the same line of argument was pursued to impress upon the people the justice of electing Gen. Grant for a third term. It may be that the doubling of his salary was intended to discount his option on the third term, as he will now receive precisely the same sum of money during his second term as he would have received under the old rate of pay in the two terms which had been promised to him. The effect of the increase, however, is likely to be just the reverse of what it was intended to be, so far as Gen. Grant is concerned. If he had a mortgage on two more terms at $25,000 a year, he is not the sort of a man to give a release deed, if he can help it, when double that amount is to be had by holding on to it.

The predicted nomination of Gen. Grant for a third term is natural, therefore, because it has a commercial aspect. It is also natural because he is probably the best living embodiment of the remaining principles of his party. He is its fittest representative. He is conspicuously identified with all the acts, motives, and purposes of the organization. He is the champion salary grabber. He grabbed more than anybody else. He believed in the grab, lobbied for the grab, signed the grab-bill, and is now engaged in pocketing the grab. The grab of the Congressman is only $2,500 a year; the grab of the President is $25,000 a year, or just ten times that amount. The fitness of Gen. Grant for the Presidential nomination of the Republican party is, therefore, ten times greater than that of any Congressional Grabber. Gen. Grant's claims to a re-nomination were also increased when he became the apologist of the Credit Mobilier Congressmen. He deprecated the investigation. Nothing could come of it, he said, but "blackening the character of some of our best men," and damaging the party accordingly. When Mr. Coffay retired from his joint debate with Oakes Ames, and with Nesbit's money in his pocket, he immediately got a certificate of good character from the White House. Mr. Bingham had been denounced by his constituents for his operations in Credit Mobilier and his complicity in the back-pay-grab, and Gen Grant at once appointed him Minister to Japan. Gen Butler had made himself conspicuous as the attorney of the Credit Mobilier Congressmen, and led the advance guard in the fight for back-pay. Thereupon Gen. Grant espoused his side as candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, and is now filling up the Federal offices in that State in Butler's interest. Gen. Grant's peculiar fitness for the Republican nomination does not stop here. He is the chief support of the bogus Kellogg Government in Louisiana. He sustained Durell, and telegraphed Gen. Emory to hold his troops in readiness to enforce the fraud at the point of the bayonet. Shall he go unrewarded for standing firmly by the carpet-baggers? The office-holders will probably answer "No!" There is another reason why the Office-holders will rally about Gen. Grant's standard. He does not believe in Civil-Service Reform. Neither do they. Nor does the party. Gen. Grant retains the Casesy and the Cramers, and he appoints the Holdens and the Newmans. This is the kind of men the party want. They are sure of Grant; they could not be so sure of anybody else. It is also intimated that the railroad people and the monopolists generally, have an abiding faith in Grant, equal to that of office-holders and party managers, and that they will throw their influence in his favor. All things considered, it is obvious that Gen. Grant is the most fitting representative that the Republican party could put in nomination; and it is in every way likely that, if the party feeling shall be the same three years from now that it is to day, Messrs. Morton, Conkling, Washburne, Butler, Logan, and the other Presidential aspirants will have to give way to his superior claims. He suits the politicians. He knows how to use the patronage in his hands for the welfare of the party. He makes no speeches and writes no letters. He never vetoes salary bills. He believes in having a good time. About the only thing that Gen. Grant would be likely to resent at the hands of the party would be a reduction of pay. After all he has done and continues to do for the party, it is to be hoped that the party will not show itself ungrateful. The third-term idea, at the increased rate of compensation, has certainly received a very good "go off."—Tribune.

MEDICAL.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth.

This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., PRACTICAL AND ANALYTICAL CHEMISTS, LOWELL, MASS. PRICE $1.00.
