

THE NAME ON THE TREE

Long years ago, I carved upon a tree,
While rang her laughter sweet and low,
A blue eyed maiden's name, most dear to me,
Many long years ago.
"How Long," I said, the sweet task being done
"Shall thy young love for me abide?"
"While of these letters you decipher one!"
She with gay jest replied.
I watched the grind its gashes slowly heal,
And still the name was well defined;
Till mark and tree, both to their trust must lead,
I sadly left behind.
Of circling years a swift decade had gone—
I sought again the purple shade;
Both vain—and yet afraid—to look upon
The dear, deep wood I made.
Ah, [his] tree! no monument of Stone
Ever more true than thou could be!
Of one dear name a trust to keep alone,
For future days to see.
I traced the name I carved with boyish glee,
Roughened and scarred, and yet the same;
And with the old, old fire it quickened me,
And set my heart aflame.
And then I cried, "O! heart, the maple keeps
Its trust no better than the maid;
She loves me still, except her beauty sleeps
In some old forest shade!"
A cold, white gleam my heart and eye oppress
I look with fear as in a dream:
A sculptured stone; the name I loved the best,
And—sense of loss supreme!
In the deep gloom—now be it shade or sun,
That shrouds her name on tree or tomb—
I wait as true as she till, waiting done,
Her grave shall give me room!

WORDS FOR PARTING.

"O, what shall I do, my dear,
In the coming year, I wonder,
When over paths, which lie so sweetly near,
Shall I go far asunder?
O, what shall I do, my dear,
Through all the sad to-morrow,
When the sunny smile has ceased to cheer,
That drives away all sorrow?
"What shall I do, my friend,
When you are gone forever?
My heart its eager need will send
Through the years to find you—never!
And how will it be with you,
In the woeful world, I wonder?
Will you love me with a love as true
When our paths lie far asunder?
"A sweeter, sadder thing
My life—for having known you;
Forever with its sacred kin
My soul's soul—I must own you
Forever mine, my friend,
From June till life's December.
Not mine to have or hold,
Mine to pray for and remember.
"The way is short, my friend,
That reaches out before us;
God's tender heavens above us bend,
His love is shining o'er us.
A little while is ours
For sorrow or for laughter,
I'll lay the hand you love in yours
On the shores of the Hereafter."

FACTS AND FANCIES.

It is sad to see a newspaper die without issue.
"Eloquent" is the last and perhaps the worst.
One of our denists takes a daily pull on the river.
The monument of Greeley ought to be an imposing stone.
A Philadelphia razor man was recently presented with a "strapping big boy."
All things are systematized nowadays. Even every milk train has its cow-catcher.
The first postal card received at Dubuque was from a lady, and marked "Private."
"Have you had your morning's mousing this morning? is the latest way of putting it.
An Indiana reporter tells of a case of poisoning by the use of "corrosive supplement."
How natural it is for man, when he makes a mistake, to correct it by kissing somebody else for it.
Note by a Chiropodist (in the country for the first time). "Must be very painful—corn in the ear."
The Aurora, organ of the Illinois State Agricultural College, speaks of fattening hogs as "susculature."
The Utica Herald says men will never know what effect it would have had on Job if eleven little girls called on him one after another, and tried to sell him Sunday school picnic tickets.
