

THE GUILTYLESS BOY.

H. K. MUNKITTRICK.

I am a guiltyless office boy of sentiment and soul.
And that is why it makes me sad to have to carry coal,
To set the office stove aglow, and make the kettle sing,
And garner all the ashes with an ancient turkey's wing.
Each day I have to sweep the floor, and beat the dusty mat,
And run about and pay the checks and carry the cat,
And fetch the noonday can of beer, and trim the greasy lamps,
Address the yellow envelopes and lick the postage stamps.
The man who pays me glides around with high-falutin' pomp,
And if I walk across the room he tells me not to romp,
And casts on me tyrannic frowns if I but sing or speak,
And all the shekels I receive is dollars two per week.
My driver is a horsey swell, and wears a diamond pin,
An ulster, checkie, and he is up in all the ways of sin;
A man who at Manhattan Beach will purchase pools, elate,
And lay his utmost duce on a straddle or a straight.
If I have nothing on my hands, that man will quickly yell,
"Go forth and see my lady love and ask her if she's well!"
Or else I have to fold my arms and sit upon a stool,
And look just like a little boy who loves his Sunday school.
I have to brush his overcoat ere thoughts of home he woos,
And with a feather duster bang his pantaloons and shoes,
And with his daily marketing I have to home-ward hop,
While from the cabbage and the beet above the basket top.
Oh, give me back the happy days, the days I used to know,
When down beside old Skinner's mill I used to fish and go,
When pins adroitly banded, make the teacher start and jump,
And I soaked the silken tomat in the spirit of the pump.
I'd like to stone the hornet's nest, and club the taurus frog,
And sing like sweet Theocritus, and own a fighting dog,
And walk the woods where sleepy winds sent flowery scents afloat,
And throw the subtle brickbat at the unsuspecting goat.
I'd wander by the brooklet in the daisy-sprinkled dell,
I'd lug the berry-bucket for my little playmate Nell;
And boost her in the branches long before the fall was nigh,
To dodge the ministrations of the bridled Durham bull.
What bliss once more to hockey play and loaf around the town,
And think how fine to run away and be a circus clown,
A pirate or a burglar; these professions were my joy,
Before I evolved a woeful office boy.
Oh, take me back, take me back unto my boyhood home,
And from its fragrant precincts let me never, never roam,
But stay there, where the pine trees on the hill-top wearily moan,
Where the small boys hunt the muskrat and the broker is unknown.

The Brown Divorce Case.

"I see," said Mrs. Smyth, looking over the evening paper, "that the Brown divorce case has gotten into the courts."
"It has, eh?" said Mr. Smyth. "And now I suppose the papers will be filled with the disgusting details of the trial. These divorce cases ought to be heard by the courts with closed doors. It is disgraceful that the public journals should be permitted to cater to the depraved appetites of the people. What does the report say, Ellen?"
"Mrs. Brown, it says, brought the suit, and Mr. Brown is the defendant."
"I know; but what does it say about the proceedings? Go on and read it."
"Mrs. Brown came into the courtroom, heavily veiled, with her counsel, and sat right in front of the jury-box. It is a very short report."
"That's queer. The Evening Sunbeam usually has such things in full. Well, go on."
"Mr. Brown sat with his counsel, and after the jury was selected the counsel for Mrs. Brown rose to present his case. He spoke for half an hour, going over all the charges, which were of a revolting character, and—"
"Doesn't it give what the man said?"
"Apparently not. Too bad, isn't it?"
"That's the poorest newspaper I ever saw. I'll buy the Argus after this. However, the Gimlet will have a verbatim report in the morning. Read what there is anyway."
"After the case had been thus opened, the counsel said that he had twenty-three witnesses present, each of whom would unfold under oath a portion of this most painful story."
"Ah! Now we are coming to it!"
Here seems to be the testimony of the first witness in full. Perhaps, Henry, I'd better not read it. It is probably shocking."
"Oh, well, of course such things ought not to be printed, but if the newspapers will insert them and thrust them into decent families, we might as well look over them. What did he swear to?"
"The paragraph is full of asterisks, as if some of the most unpleasant revelations have been omitted."
"Mutilated, hey? Pshaw! How annoying! When I want a thing I want it. Read it, anyhow."
"The witness said—but no I was mistaken. Just as the witness began to testify the counsel for the defense rose to interrupt him."
"What on earth was he meddling with it for?"
"The counsel urged upon the court the desirability of preventing so much scandal, and he offered to consent that Mrs. Brown should have a simple decree of divorce upon the ground of desertion."
"Not accepted, of course? These lawyers are a nuisance."
"This was agreed to by the counsel for the plaintiff, and the decree being promptly granted by the court, the witnesses and the jury were dismissed."

"And the whole thing dropped?"
"So the report says."
"Not a line of testimony?"
"No."
"It's outrageous! And a case that excited so much public interest, too?"
"Shameful," said Mrs. Smyth.
"But I'll get it in spite of the court," said Mr. Smyth. "I know Simpson, one of the witnesses, and I'll call to-morrow and ask him to give me all the facts. Then we can pass them around."
Then Mrs. Smyth threaded her needle and Mr. Smyth stretched himself on the lounge for a nap.

The Westinghouse.

The proprietors of the Westinghouse threshing machine have decided to push their goods throughout the entire northwest and have already started a vigorous campaign. The Westinghouse Separator is light running, strong and durable with an excellent shoe and riddle movement that makes the machine very valuable in separating wild oats from wheat. It has many excellent points that will win for it golden opinions wherever introduced. The house has established a branch in Portland with a thoroughly practical machine man Mr. G. F. Dart, as manager. Mr. Z. P. Wright, for some years with the J. I. Case company is with Mr. Dart and will be of much service in pushing the Westinghouse to the front. The house also handles an engine that has many improvements and good points. They are always ready to send descriptive circulars on application.

OREGON TO MASSACHUSETTS.

Some time ago Messrs. Hodge, Davis & Co., of this city, read in a Massachusetts paper that Hon. Charles R. Ladd, an honored old statesman, was afflicted with an incurable kidney disease, and had been obliged to give up work and return to his home. They immediately sent him a box of their celebrated Oregon Kidney Tea, and from time to time sent him other boxes. A few days ago they received from him the following letter:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
Auditor's Dept., Boston, Nov. 11, 1881.
Messrs. Hodge, Davis & Co.: Dear Sirs—I have no hesitation in saying that I have been much benefited by the use of the Oregon Kidney Tea, as a remedy for kidney difficulty which has troubled me for six or eight years. I can heartily recommend it to those who are similarly afflicted, as a safe and agreeable remedy. I shall test its virtue further, for I have great faith in it as a specific for many diseases of the kidneys. Respectfully yours,
CHAS. R. LADD.

The original of this letter can be seen by calling on Messrs. Hodge, Davis & Co., Portland, Oregon, and the Oregon Kidney Tea can be bought of any druggist or dealer in Oregon or Washington. Price $1 per box.

Do you suffer from biliousness and liver complaint? Nothing equals Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier in relieving these diseases.

"Bad cess to it!" exclaimed Mike O'Flaherty, upon learning that Garfield was elected. "Shure an' now we'll be ruined by Chinese chaps labor." When asked where he worked, Mike replied, "I haven't wrought a stroke for five years, but me old woman takes in washin' and Garfield wants the haythen Chinese to take the bread out of our mouths."

The largest room in the world, under one roof and unbroken by pillars, is at St. Petersburg. By day it is used for military displays; by night for a vast ball room. Twenty thousand wax tapers are required to light it.

The sensation of the week is at the Elite theater in Portland. Bonnie Kanne's, Alice Saunders, Eva Claxton, Geo. C. Thomson and others are the attractions.

All sensible people suffering with rheumatism use Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier. Sold at $1.00 a bottle.

After giving the Oregon Blood Purifier a fair trial, I have found that, as blood purifier and re-constructer, it is what it claims to be, and gladly recommend it.
