FOR THOSE WHO FAIL.

Joachim Miller. "All honor to him who shall win the prize." The world has cried for a thousand years. But to him who tries and who fails and dies I give great honor and glory and tears.

INDIANS AT COLLEGE.

Some Difficulties that Might Arise in the Course of Young Lo's Life. The Indian who goes to a college will find it hard, after his life he has led, to adopt the ways of civilized college students and become hazy, who practice civility and breeding and physically weak.

President Villard's Romance.

After reporting what was to be seen during the first attack on Charleston, S. C., Henry Villard came north and made the acquaintance of William Lloyd Garrison and was taken to that gentleman's home in Boston and introduced to the Garrison household as a hero and strong anti-slavery advocate.

He returned to the south fully determined to keep her foremost in his memory. When, later on, malarial fever contracted in the southern swamps forced him again to return north he was assisted back to health by the tender ministrations and cheering smiles of the beautiful Boston girl.

Where Power Resides in China.

We are often asked where, in the great empire of China, power really resides, and we believe the best short statement is this: Subject to certain limitations, the emperor, in his capacity of father of the people, can in theory give any order and can in practice punish with decapitation or exile any official or person who disobeys it.

French Prepared for War.

France prepared a lesson from the last war, and I am told that she has since prepared herself so well for any emergency that in twenty-four hours she could equip and have ready for immediate action 1,200,000 men.

They Knew Him.

"Gien! I've reformed," said Dave O'Brien, the tragedian, as he staggered into Hawley's saloon yesterday afternoon. "Had ter form 'n order to manage in business," he said, "I've reformed. I mean use yer telephone."

Capturing a Widow.

That's jes' the way with wimmin. My wife was the widdler Gooftree afore I married her, an' the first time I ever went to see her she didn't fling a skillet over my fence at me. The next time she flung a churn-dasher, and the next time she flung a chip. Then she took up a han'ful o' leaves an' flung 'em, an' bless yer, the next time she invited me in to sop sorgum 'lasses. Oh, us men is a power in the lan'.

Concerning Funerals.

The clergymen of Indianapolis have resolved that funerals shall be private; that there should be no public exhibitions of deceased people, and that ministers should not be required to attend at the grave.

MANAGERS' ENORMOUS EXPENSE.

What It Costs to Bring Out a Play.—Essentials to Success—Outgo and Income. An ordinary play such as, well, take the last one brought out, "Storm Beaten," costs the management between $20,000 and $30,000 before the curtain is raised.

There are theatres in this city, first-class theatres, where plays have been put on this season costing the management $10,000 to $20,000, where the receipts have been as low down as $150; in fact, I know of one occasion when the night's receipts in one of the best-known houses in this country were but $85.

French Landscape Peculiar.

There is something peculiarly individual about French landscape that quite distinguishes it from any other I have had the pleasure of viewing. In passing through Scotland I could see that the hilly portions of the eastern states might with a few modifications present about the same appearance.

Wanted to Know About Switches.

A white-haired, shrill-voiced boy, about 8 years old, rode down town with his parents on the Sixth avenue elevated road. He gazed curiously at two or three up trains which whizzed by the one he was in, and in a voice that sent a thrill through every person in the car, he asked:

The Secret of Noble Living.

After fortune-birth, upon which more depends than upon all else, the right treatment of the body, is no doubt the grand secret of noble living. If theologians would teach people how best to treat the body, they would do more and better for the soul, than by all the systems of salvation ever preached.

Poe's Peculiar Pluck.

An intimate friend from boyhood of Edgar Allan Poe says he never saw him smile in his life. As a boy and young man he was retiring and made few friends. He was strong, and devoted all sorts of athletic games, about which he went in a serious, determined way, as in all things else.

Plant Peculiarities.

A Norwegian botanist states that most plants in high latitudes produce larger and heavier seed than in regions nearer the equator. The effect which he ascribes to the prolonged influence of sunlight during the summer days in high latitudes. In some cases the difference of seed development is astonishing.

The Literary Bracelet.

One of the novelties in London is the literary bracelet. It is made of twelve tiny books (silver or gold), attached to each other by a double chain. Each little book bears the enameled name of a favorite poet or novelist. There are also musical bracelets of the same model, only they, of course, have the names of operas or composers.

Ready for the Next.

In rebuilding Rochester, Minn., they are mindful of the tornado that recently devastated the town. They are making strong stone vaults in the cellars, large enough to contain a family and strong enough to withstand any tornado.

A Word for the Undertaker.

Yet the undertaker and his assistants are generally a cheery set, who laugh hard sometimes, if not loud, and grow fat amid their ghastly surroundings. And this is not merely habit, but natural adaptation; the undertaker nascent non fit and his birthright is a distinctiveness that cannot be mistaken.

A Victim of Heredity.

Two was better to Part than to Commit an Error Eternally Alone Could Efface. The tall, lissome form of Esmeralda W. Perkins was sharply outlined against the beautiful June evening in the doorway of Brierton villa, hoping against hope, and hoping that something—he knew or cared not what—might occur to sweep from the horizon of his life the awful sorrow that was hanging over it like a pall—a sorrow that would make every day an agony of misery, every word of joy that others might utter a knell of despair.

For an instant the man could not reply. He had not felt such a shock since meeting his father in the giddy whirl of a poker game and going home with I would great death with smiling face and outstretched arms to-morrow now that you are lost to me forever, that what life without your love, and pressence, and kisses, and an unceasing torture? If I loved you less, if your love were not cherished in my heart as something to be worshipped evermore, I would not take this step. It was wrong, very wrong, I know, to allow this love to overmaster my whole being, but it is better to wreck one life than two, and so again I say "good-by!"

Mark Twain on Fred Douglass.

I had recently placed in my hands a copy of a letter written by Mark Twain endorsing Fred Douglass for the position of marshal for the district. It is a very characteristic letter, and as it has never been published I give it.

Emigration Facilities.

The question of transportation was once a serious one. But the very necessities for relief from the overcrowded condition of the country have solved it by an increase of facilities in proportion with the demand for outlets. It is easier this year for 500,000 emigrants to reach America from Europe than it was forty years ago for 50,000. They travel at less cost and in much better condition.

Odor of Russian Money.

Mr. Sals says a blind man might tell the difference in the composition of Russian notes by using his nose to determine their value; the rule being, the lower the value the "louder" the smell. A 100-ruble note will be redolent of patchouli, jockey-club, or some equally fashionable perfume, while the single-ruble note usually reeks of tallow or coarse tobacco.

About Angels.

The other day a 4-year-old girl was looking at the picture of two angels which her mother had given her. "Where do angels live?" said she. "In heaven," was the answer. "Do they ever come down here?" "Yes." "What for?" "Oh, to see little boys and girls behave themselves." "Then do they go back and tell?" "I believe so." Here there was a pause, and the little lassie continued: "Well, who washes their faces and curls their hair, Moses or Abraham?"

Women's Wages in London.

"And what do these poor creatures work at?" I asked; "the women, I mean, whose husbands go out every day to get work at the docks, and who in so many cases return at night empty-handed?" The pastor was nothing if not practical. "What do they work at? Look here." He went to the corner of his study, and in another second had covered a table with various articles of clothing from a pair of men's mole-skin trousers as stiff as a board, lined with soft downy material from end to end, and provided with seventeen buttons and the accompanying button-holes all stitched. These trousers are supplied to the women with the two main seams already stitched by the sewing-machine, and what do you think the middleman or sweater can offer for the lining, stitching, buttoning, and button-holing of this nice, smart pair of mole-skin trousers? Actually, he can offer two pence farthing a pair! and a woman, by working her fingers to the bone when in good health, can make four pairs in a day, and earn tenpence thereby.

The trade has positively lowered the price of mole-skin trousers-making; or, rather, the poor in desperation have competed against themselves, and cut their own throats. The price for a pair of mole-skin trousers used to be twenty pence, but now it is only twelve pence, and the price of the material has fallen to eight pence. The price for a pair of trousers used to be twelve pence, but now it is only eight pence. The price for a pair of trousers used to be eight pence, but now it is only five pence. The price for a pair of trousers used to be five pence, but now it is only three pence.

Disguised With Dirt and Vulgarity.

"No wonder that the boys are in Chicago," said an old farmer from western Illinois, just returning from the Union stock yards, where he had sold three cars of hogs of his own raising. "No, sir, my boys are all at home. The three oldest are teaching school wint'ers and helping on the farm summer. I've had all my boys in the city, though, and they know what it is. I sold an all-around myself, a one of them kind that sets boys go on thinkin' it is the nicest place in the world, when it is just as easy as nothin' to show 'em different. I had my boys in some of the saloons on the main street, and on the west side to show 'em the poor-folks, some of 'em accidently farmers' boys, some to town to get 'drift.' We all went up into the public house, and wanted the boys to see the poor cases there findin' a good warm place to sleep, until 10 o'clock, anyhow. We was also in some of them divins, and the boys, and the boys was disgusted with the dirt and vulgarity. My oldest boy went into the wine-room to see the girls and come out mad, sayin' they was nothin' but pain, and powder, and stuffin', and charged him $3 for one little bottle of wine worth about 25 cents."

Can a Snake Resent?

Out at the Zoo there is a small hole—probably some rat owns it—in the rear corner of the blacksmith's cage. A good snake got crowded into this hole, and the snake dived in his head after him and speedily swallowed him. But with this incumbrance he found he could not withdraw himself. Then he at last disgorged the toad, which, finding himself free, began to move off. This was too much for the snake philosophy, and the snake again swallowed him, and a second time was compelled to disgorg him. He could not get his head out. But he reflected. He had learned something. He reached out a third time, and grabbing the toad by the leg backed out with ease.

His Prominence Accounted For.

This is not because Gen. Sickles is so distinguished, but rather from the manner of his entrance at the opera. You probably know that Gen. Sickles has but one leg, and has been unable to wear an artificial one, so that he is naturally obliged to walk on crutches. After the house is comfortably seated and the opera is going smoothly along, just as the prima donna reaches her most florid passage, or the tenor touches his high C, you hear a dull thud down the main aisle of the opera house, and, looking around, you see a rather fine-looking man on crutches swinging himself into his seat. You naturally ask "Who is that?" and you soon get your answer that it is Gen. Sickles.

Food for the British Lion.

"Mamma," said Beatrice, running into her mother's room in her girlish, over-30-year-old way, "there's a man down-stairs who wants to see you." "What's his bloomin' name?" asked the queen. "He didn't say." "Are his pants loose fringed at the bottom?" "Yes, mamma," replied Beatrice, "and he has a roll of manuscript under his arm." "Hand another John Brown poem, or my name him's Victoria Wetton. Tell 'em I'm not at home, and if he won't take no for an answer 'ave your brot'her. Halbert feed him to the British lion."

Don't Go to Italy.

The eminent bass, Karl Fornes, tells American parents that they make a grave mistake in sending their children to Italy to study music when they can attain much better results at home. He says musical science is at its lowest level in Italy, and the great singers are not Italian.

Boston Commercial Bulletin.

People are getting so suspicious now that it would not be surprising any Sunday to see the deacons using a bell-punch with the contribution box.

GUNBOAT SERVICE.

Holy-Stones and Split-Kids—Any thing but Dirt in the Navy. (Cincinnati Enquirer.)

Did you notice that man walking over to the curb and spit in the street? I'll bet he's been on shipboard. There a man's got to use either the spit-kid or spit over the side of the vessel into the water. Any? stand any-thing but dirt in the navy, you see. How is this for a daily routine: When the boy's pipes up all hands in the morning they turn out, put up their hammocks, stow 'em away in the nettings, then sweep the decks. Mess-cloths are spread, and after breakfast the decks are swept down again. At 11:30 a. m. sweepers are piped and then mess-cloths are laid for dinner, after which she is swept fore and aft once more. It's done twice more, before supper and after supper, making six times a day. You mustn't think they sweep the decks or sweep down again.
