

THE COLUMBIAN. U. S. OFFICIAL PAPER.

LOCAL NEWS.

There was an old-time charivari of Dr. Moore and his bride at the residence of Judge Moore. A drum, a corset, a string of sleigh-bells and various unmusical instruments were brought into requisition and a night was made hideous with nondescript sounds. They were all invited in by the gallant doctor and introduced to his bride, and filled up with refreshments, such as oranges, cherries, nuts candy and cake. Some music was given on the piano and quite a choir of improvised singers enlivened the occasion. All at length retired well pleased with the treat, and wishing the happy groom and bride long years of bliss in their wedded life.

Wednesday A. Herring had his thumb amputated near the first joint by Dr. Moore. He took cold. He met with the accident at Frank Brock's camp two miles from Coal Creek Slough. There is a railroad of two miles from the Camp to the Slough. In rolling logs on the cars his thumb caught between the log and the lip of the juck-screw. His attention was drawn away from himself to a companion who was in danger of being crushed by a number of other logs. Mr. Herring was once a printer's devil back in the States.

As my book-keeper Mr. Giltner will soon leave St. Helens to be absent several weeks, I must ask all owing me on account to call and settle before April 5th.

All persons whose accounts were overdue January 1st, 1884 will save costs by making settlement by note or otherwise before April 12th, 1885.

Mr. J. W. Campbell has gone to the mouth of Rock Creek to blaze a trail from there to the Nehalem mts. There will then be a good road from St. Helens to the mines. The distance will be about 30 miles. There is an extensive mineral belt which supposed to be a continuation of the Trask River mines of Tillamook.

Frank Foster's stepson was lately drowned at Kalama. The little fellow fell off the wharf. His name was Faral. This must be a sad blow to his relatives. He was a very interesting bright child. Language is scarce to express his parents' grief.
