The Adamses in America.

Henry Adams, who settled at Mount Wollaston, Quincy Mass. had eight sons and they and their progeny have scattered all over the United States, and even into foreign Countries. The Kentucky Adamses are noted for their heroic qualities. When they are treated rightly they are gentlemanly, but when not they are hard customers to deal with. One of the most celebrated heroines of Kentucky was an Adams, captured in early days by the Indians. She owned as a riding horse a beautiful courser which she rode with all the grace of a perfect horse woman. After her capture an Indian mounted her beautiful charger and applied to it the lash. The spirit of the Plantagenets mounted in her bosom, she wrested away the whip, and applied it with such vigor to the naked savage that he was forced to dismount; she then sprung upon its back and was lost in the forest while the poor crest-fallen Indian received the jeers of his companions. The Indians, struck with admiration at her bravery and beauty christened her "The White Fawn of Kentucky."

When we taught school in St. Charles Co. Mo. we heard of some Adamses who lived not a-far off. So great did they impress the inhabitants of their superiority, that the richest and proudest people spoke of them with great reverence. Mrs. J. Robbins, whose husband was a millionaire, and at whose house we boarded said that none approached them without hat in hand. When in the hospital in the Adams house (a hotel turned into a hospital) in Baltimore the loveliest of all the beautiful Maryland damsels that visited the sick soldiers on errands of mercy, was a Miss Adams from Howard County. Mr. Barclay, the agent of the Humes at Eagle Cliff married a great grand niece of John Q. Adams, who was a native of South Carolina. There is a distinguished family of the Adamses in the State of Mississippi. Mrs. Elizabeth Adams Walker's first husband was Ben Gooley, a great artist from that State, and many of his relations were Adamses.

Many of our race scattered into Ohio and Indiana, and many of our more immediate relations in New Hampshire, settled in the far South. Marrying the fair daughters of that sunny clime. Many lie buried in that mild climate far from the snow-bound hills that witnessed their first infantile cries. The Adamses of Oregon W. L. Adams and Sebastion have all the characteristics of of the old race. W. L. is a man of most brilliant intellectual force. Before the Rebellion commenced he predicted it and its outcome. The Adamses are a farseeing race and always in the lead.

They are pioneers of thought, and brave in mind as in body. They possess great self government, though most impassioned they generally hold taut reins over their passions. Our own history is to the point, though associating all the time during the war with the most reckless men, we neither played cards drank whiskey or used tobacco. At the same time we did not pretend to be righteous overmuch, nor did we keep ourselves apart from those who did, We treated them when drunk as if they were sober, and when they were sober we never spoke of their delinquency, or put on any airs over our superior self government. We considered our abstemiousness nothing but a constitutional virtue. We have always drank a little wine but never a glass of whisky. Sebastion Adamse's Historicarchart is invaluable, and W. L. Adamse's Breakspeare will always be admired as a masterpiece of wit. We never were more interested and amused by any writing than over an agricultural address of W. L. Adams, we think published in the WEST SHORE. His sons and daughters are noted for their intelegence, Mrs. W. W. Parker of Astoria being one of the most intellectual ladies in the State of Oregon. Captain Philip Johnson who so gallantly whipped one of the roughs of Astoria, had an Adams for a mother in old Newburyport. His grand father was Captain Silas Adams, a gallant Officer of the Revolutionary War. He lived in Newburyport and the Captain has an elegant picture of his mother's and grandfather's residence in that glorious old town where the streets are lined with elms. Any one looking upon Captain Johnson as he strides along would say an Army of such men could whip the World. We told Captain White, of Murphy Grant & Co. that the Northern and Southern Soldiers combined could whip the World and half of H—ll, particularly if they had old Major Adams for a General. More anon.

E. G. Adams.

COMMUNICATIONS

Rainier Jan. 1, 1886.
Editor Columbian, Dear Sir:

I have a few items which may not come amiss. The Ball at Bachelor Hall on Debast farm was a grand success, every-body seemed to enjoy themselves very well. There was about 70 or 80 persons which attended.

A few hints to the dudes.

"I am the Boss at Bluffing." F. S—r.

"But you don't want to stand before the old man." J. K—n.

"I am the daisy lady killer." Mr. J—n.

"I tell you it is a cold day when I get left." A. B—t.

A few words of warning to a couple of young ladies that monopolized a dude in the corner. Their mothers had better soak the daughters heads in butter-milk for a couple of weeks, or till they learn to act respectable in company; and to the dude that received so much attention from the young ladies, he had better be sent to a reform school for a period of 75 years and see if he can take a hint another time. 'Reporter,' signed:

Eight hands up.

The Oregon Siftings is called the Oregon Brass Filings. Its color is that of an Ojinka. See Sioux Dictionary. It is a great ornament to the International water closets. We visited the Sanctum once on a time. We saw only a young lady. She put a half bushel, as we approached, over what we apprehended was a rat printer. Someone read the Oregon Brass Filings and smole a ghostly smile, and was sifted into the ash barrel. It is astonishing what a circulation the Brass Filings have. They are much read, red as a dead beat.

The January number of the West Shore (Portland, Oregon,) is a work of art. It contains sixteen full pages of illustrations of Portland, which for design and execution rank with the best art work produced anywhere.

Choice Southern Dishes.

Southern people used to be famous for hospitality and excelent cookery. Miss Adelaide Preston has just begun a series of articles in The Housekeeper which are to embody all the choice receipes treasured for several generations of an old Virginia family. Any lady who would like to see the number containing the first of this series will receive one free by sending a postal card to Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Now that the Columbian has upwards of 1,000 subscribers it is safe to say that it is weekly read by 3,000 persons, it has therefore become a valuable medium through which to Advertise. All wishing to put themselves or business before the people of Oregon and Washington Ty., should remember this and Advertise in the Columbian.

R. & LAND Co., 237 MAIN STREET, Cincinnatti O.

A CYNICAL clergyman of middle age, after having united a loving couple in the holy bonds of matrimony, was asked by some one present at the marriage feast how he, a bachelor, could consistently engage in such ceremonies. The good man's answer was significant: "In a man's life there are two periods when he is likely to marry—one when he is young, and has no sense; the other when he is old, and has lost his sense." He was glad to inform them that he was past one, and had not yet reached the other.

SPINNEY will Guarantee to Forfeit $500 for every case of Seminal Weakness or private disease of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN.

There are many at the age of 30 to 60 who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin, whitish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. DR. SPINNEY will Guarantee a Perfect Cure in such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genitourinary organs. Those who cannot consult him personally may, by describing their symtoms, receive
