STILL AFTER THE TARIFF.

Democracy proposes with a noisy flourish, to make opposition to trusts a leading feature of next year's campaign, and as an evidence of its incapacity nature insists that the first step toward destroying the trusts is to smash the protective tariff. It is useless to point out to the party of impracticables that trusts flourish quite as well in free trade countries as elsewhere. Trusts are a recent development. Protection is an old and time-honored principle. The country suffered when the democrats successfully assailed it, and reversed the tariff policy. They still cling to free trade despite their bitter experience with the Wilson law, and now shift their ground and make trusts an excuse for opening the battle against protection. Of course, the only way to regulate trusts is to go at them directly, and not turn the movement into a crusade against something else. But whenever a democrat talks "or writes about trusts he soon forgets his starting point and expatiates on the evils of protection. Democratic logic and action are alike confused and ineffective. When something positive is to be accomplished the republican party is invariably called upon to do it. It is so with all public questions, and trusts will be no exception.

GETTING IT ON ALL SIDES.

Calamity is hitting the poor copper heads on all sides. Even the treasury's expenditure account is going back on them. The present indications are that this month will show a surplus of about $7,000,000 in treasury receipts over expenditures. It was the hope of all the "anti-imperialists" that the government's out-go on account of the naval and military establishment would be up to such high figures before this time that the gold reserve would have to be heavily drawn upon, as was the case in meeting the ordinary expenditures in Cleveland's second administration, and that a sale of $100,000,000 or $200,000,000 of bonds would have to be resorted to long before Congress meets in December this year. This would make the whole bank of renegades, from Atkinson and Garrison down to Sherman, Bryan and Billy Mason, whoop with delight. But the hoped-for has not happened.

MORE ABOUT GOATS.

It has been generally known for a number of years that Western Oregon is well adapted for the raising of Angora goats and the climate, rainfall and pasturage form the combination for the production of the finest grades of mohair. That this is a paying industry needs no further proof than the referring to those who have been successful in the goat business in the Willamette valley during the last few years. Below we give extracts from a letter from the Stamford Mills, Maine, to Mr. Geo. A. Houck: "I am pleased to hear of your success in Oregon, and hope more people will go into the raising of mohair in that state, as the climate and feed seem so well adapted for mohair in that section of the country. This country should grow enough to keep up with the demand and keep our money on this side of the Atlantic, instead of sending it to Turkey. We have placed orders in Constantinople for 1500 bags of foreign mohair. This will keep us going until the new domestic clip comes on the market next spring. Now regarding the price of plush, all our goods are sold through the large wholesale or jobbing houses, we do not sell any plush direct from the mill to the retailer, and as we make some 45 to 50 different qualities, I could not name a price unless I had a sample to see the quality. Those long pile fawn square plush rugs are something new, and have not been shown in the market yet; another year we expect to have them in for sale but could not fill orders this season. The wholesale price of our plush runs from 75 cents to $1.80 per yard, according to the quality; at retail, the price would be much higher. I thought the samples we sent you would be a drawing card, they will always command attention."

On the County Road.

The heavy showers of the past few days have kept Supervisor C. B. Wells busy looking for enough dry spells to accomplish a little work on the road south of town. Sixteen teams began work hauling gravel Monday noon, and eight were kept busy Tuesday. The ground became so soft that Mr. Wells believed that the road was being to badly cut up and called the teams off. Plows, with eight horses attached, were put to making a furrow 12 inches deep on both sides of the road, and a ditch of this size was run from Rickard's to two miles this side of the Ann Smith place. Today, men will be put to work throwing the dirt out of these furrows.

Already, 1115 loads of gravel have been hauled an average distance of two miles, and extends over the road from a half mile north of the Ann Smith place to Rickard's. Only about $900 has been expended so far, and the prospects are that the court will have a fund of $1200 or $1500 to disburse.

At Tabou Bridge.

One of the many feats of daring performed during the campaign in the Philippines last spring was the capture of the burning bridge at Tabou by Lawton's scouts. This was a body of 20 men selected from the Oregon and North Dakota volunteers and the Fourth Cavalry, and were under the command of Lieutenant Thornton, of the Oregon. They attacked 200 Filipinos posted behind breastworks on the opposite side of an unfavorable stream, and drove them only, crossing a burning bridge in order to do so. They then put out the fire by carrying water in their hats and saved the bridge for the passage of Lawton's army. This is but one of the many incidents of the war that Captain Wells describes and illustrates in his lecture, using fine stereoscopic views made from photographs taken at the front, some of them in the fire and smoke of battle. At the college, Saturday evening, October 28th. Admission, 50 cents; college students, 35 cents; public school children, 25 cents.

Mrs. Mary Dutton.

The funeral of Mrs. Edward Dutton occurred at the M. E. church on Monday afternoon, and after the solemn rites were spoken, the mortal remains of the aged lady were laid to rest in Chrysal Lake cemetery.

Mrs. Dutton was blessed with a life of health and vigor, having never required the services of a physician, except at the closing hours of her life, but at that time, age and infirmity ruled and no skill of man could keep grim death from her door. Far back in the early part of the century, 83 years ago, Mary Mordy was born in York, England, in September, 1817, while but a mere girl she was thrown out into the world to work and care for herself by the death of her father and mother. In 1840 she was married to Edward Dutton and eleven years after they crossed the Atlantic to America, a farm was purchased near Ashton, Iowa, and here they resided for several years. It was here both became members of the M. E. church, and her husband being a minister, occupied the pulpit of his denomination in Ashton. In 1884 Mrs. Dutton came to Corvallis where she was given charge of the Reading Room and the duties of this place have occupied her attention until the hour of her death on Sunday morning, August and industrious. Mrs. Dutton passed a life the like of which all could well follow.

The only surviving relatives of the deceased are her two step-sons, William Dutton, of Little Elk and Joe Dutton of this city.

Kidder-Libenow.

To be married happily the second time is a condition of affairs that is not often heard of, though such was the case in the event of a marriage at the United Evangelical church on last Friday afternoon when Rev. Booser of that church united in marriage Miss Faith Kidder of this city, and Mr. E. Liebenow, of San Francisco.

Miss Kidder has lived with her mother for several years in Corvallis, and there were few who knew of her having been married. Some six years ago Miss Kidder and Mr. Liebenow were married in the Californian metropolis, but in the language of the groom when securing his license the second time, "It was a sad mistake, troubles arose between us and we thought it best to secure a divorce. This was done and we have been separated for these several years. But now the past is forgotten and we will begin anew by this time to live a life of happiness and peace."

The wedding and the circumstances surrounding it is a surprise to the many friends and acquaintances of Miss Kidder, though all unite in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Liebenow, as they begin once more their wedded life, all the blessings that a company a life of happiness and peace.

They will reside in San Francisco where Mr. Liebenow is engaged in business.

The late Captain Woodbridge Geary.

Not from Alsea.

There are those in the noted and beautiful valley of Alsea who wish it understood that the recent arrested swindlers, Fleece and Taylor were not from their quiet and peaceful little dell. So out of pure justice for the people of Alsea and to correct a mistake that was unintentionally made, and one by the way that nearly every paper in Western Oregon was guilty of making, we wish to publish the fact that Fleece and Taylor were not from Alsea, but were, according to facts given us by residents from the latter valley, from another romantic place known as Lobster. This may put someone on hard terms with the Lobster people, but we sincerely hope it will not happen, for in truth Fleece and Taylor were but short residents in that district and were probably on their way to Alsea or some other district. Taking it all in all, this is a most unfortunate condition of affairs for the people of Alsea. Lobster and this part of Oregon in general, but we will simply pass by as an ordinary incident, and let it go at that.
