VIOLATED THEIR OATHS.

Pettigrew of South Dakota and Hoar of Massachusetts, both senators of their respective states, in the United States Congress, are bitterly fighting the efforts of the government and constituted authorities to establish peace in the Philippine islands. Had it not been for these gentlemen and the continual noise made by them and their followers on this subject, there would not have been any war in the Philippines between this country and the insurgents. Before the treaty between this country and Spain was ratified these senators began to pour forth their public utterances in the United States senate, bewailing the condition of the Philippine people and foreboding evil intentions of the United States authorities as to the future of the people on the islands. It was their bounden duty as swim senators under their solemn oaths after the treaty was ratified to assist by their word and act the constituted authorities of the government to establish peace in those islands, and then discuss the best manner and methods of government to establish. If they wished to do otherwise and encourage the insurgents to make war upon the United States army they should have resigned their positions in the United States senate and gone over to the insurgents to join issues with them. Such would have been the frank, open and consistent methods of manifesting their opposition to this government and adherence to a foreign foe. Many years ago when the southern states made open war upon the constituted authorities of this government in their efforts to withdraw and set up an independent government, there were a great many senators and representatives from the seceding states who regarded it as their duty to advocate the cause of the states which they represented. They only remained in congress until the war guns were fired. These southern senators did not remain in congress to fight battles for the south. They did not regard it consistent with the duties of their positions, but when the guns began firing their shot and shell of war these gentlemen took the honorable course of withdrawing from congress and went south to their homes to help their brethren battle for the cause they represented. Messrs. Pettigrew and Hoar have a right to their opinions, no one can deprive them of such, but when an armed foe openly fires and sets her guns of war to shooting down the army of our common country as the insurgents did, if those senators wished to take the side of the enemy and fight for them by either word or deed, the highly honorable and consistent way for them to have acted, was to resign as senators, depart to the Philippines and join the insurgents. But consistency and love of country was not their purpose. Pettigrew is a man who would consider it his privilege to debauch and belittle his Savior, if he thought by doing so he could damage a political opponent. But the efforts of these anti-will miscarry and their conduct will but damage themselves. It takes all kinds of people to make a world, and Pettigrew and Hoar are two of them.

AN IDEAL GOVERNMENT.

The associated press dispatches make William Jennings Bryan say, "I believe that all people are capable of governing themselves, and that the Filipinos should be allowed to govern themselves; but I do not believe they are sufficiently advanced to share with us in the government of the nation. If the Philippine Islands are annexed, the people must either be citizens or subjects. I am not willing to admit that as citizens and do not believe that a republic can have subjects, therefore I want this nation to give them independence, and then protect them from outside interference." The American Indians when first found upon this continent were capable of governing themselves in the rude and barbarous methods as practiced by them in that time. No doubt the Filipinos are capable of governing themselves in a similar manner, and Mr. Bryan wants the United States to give them independence, and protect them from outside interference. Mr. Bryan is one of that talkative class of people who complain at every move-

"Campaigning in the Philippines"

A book of over 400 pages with nearly 300 beautiful illustrations of troops in action and scenes in the Philippine Islands, published by The Hicks-Judd Publishing Co. of San Francisco, the only publishers in the United States who sent representatives to Manila especially to compile a history of the war. As many as 23 writers were engaged in the work in Manila, many of whom were with the troops in their various engagements and they were permitted to use official records to verify their reports.

Maps of Battlefields

Made by an official map-maker in the U. S. Army Corps enables the reader to follow closely the movements of the troops.

Description of the Philippines giving statistical and other information as to climatic conditions, resources, etc., and an account of the trip to Manila, taking the reader to Honolulu and through Japan and China, are interesting features of the book.

The Oregon Special Edition

contains a complete history of the 2d Oregon Volunteer regiment in the Philippine campaign, and also the name, postoffice address and occupation of every member of the regiment, together with lists of killed and wounded, deaths by disease, promotions, discharges, etc., and also cuts of each company and officers of the regiment. It is vouchered for as officially correct by a certificate from the Colonel.

Advance Sale over 6000 Vols.

ment that is now regarded "Democratic 16 to 1" or "populist 16 to 1." It was Mr. Bryan who advised congress to ratify the treaty between the United States and Spain, which treaty ceded to this country the Philippine Islands for $20,000,000 and made the people of the United States bound to protect the people of all nations who had gathered together on those islands. The ink had scarcely become dry from signing the ratification proceedings, when Mr. Bryan and his combination began to denounce the president and constituted authorities in their efforts to establish peace in the islands after the natives had fired upon our army there. If the constituted authorities should obey Mr. Bryan's suggestions, direct the Filipino people to organize a government and set the United States army to work guarding and protecting their government so established, it would not be two weeks until Mr. Bryan would begin to denounce the president, congress and others in charge of affairs, for wasting the people's money in paying the army to protect the government which he suggests should be formed. He would have the United States withdraw from the islands after paying Spain $20,000,000 therefor. If this should be done it would not be a half week until he would have something to say denouncing the authorities for wasting the $20,000,000 named. Mr. Bryan is talking on the supposition that the people of the United States are ignorant and cannot see through his mixture of words. Mr. Bryan knows, if he knows anything, that the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands maintain almost innumerable tribal relations, there being many hundred tribes upon the islands, something similar to the different tribes of Indians which existed on this continent when first visited by the white man. There are, perhaps, a few natives in the Philippine Islands who have come in contact with the Spanish people, who are a little in advance of the American Indian of that early date, in the way of having observed such civilization as the Spanish were able to impart to them. Mr. Bryan is intelligent enough to know all these things, and therefore, he well knows that the Philippine natives are in no better condition to organize and maintain a government than were the several tribes of American Indians in the early history of this country. Such a government as such a people would undertake to establish, this country would have a fine time in protecting from outside interference. The people of this country who have read Mr. Bryan's sayings every day for the last three or four years, recognize that there is much "method in his madness," and they cannot consent to receive his "stale jokes" any longer without protest.

Revive Board of Equalization.

The lowering of the assessments of property in Multnomah county eleven millions of dollars for last year will open the eyes of the people to the necessity of a state board of equalization. It is claimed that Portland does over $100,000,000 worth of business a year and yet the merchandise of that big city is assessed at only $2,000,000. The money on deposit in the national banks alone is over $7,000,000 and yet the money is assessed at only $527,000, and these are only two items of this outrageous assessment, which is a fraud on the balance of the state, and Governor Geer thus punctures this fraud: "Hereafter when a Seattle man asks me what is the matter with Portland that the value of its property has decreased more than $10,000,000 in the most prosperous years in the history of the country known, I will reply that she is dominated by that same blushing modesty that constrains the average wealthy man from publishing to a curious world the sum total of his wealth or anywhere near it." The only remedy for the balance of the state is in a state board of equalization, the cost of which is nothing compared to what the taxpayers of the state would save this year by having the assessment of Multnomah county raised to a decent figure. The Oak Ridge Concert.

A concert was given by Prof. Ginn's class in vocal music at Oak Ridge last Tuesday evening that eclipsed anything of the kind ever given in that neighborhood. A correspondent from Oak Ridge, says of Prof. Ginn's work: "We are highly pleased with what has been accomplished in twelve lessons. The concert Tuesday evening was a brilliant success and all present united in saying that Prof. Ginn has accomplished wonders. We have had a teacher who understood his business, who teaches us to understand and read music and open our mouths and sing all through. As a class all are desirous of securing his services for another twelve lessons. Mr. Ginn is one of the teachers in the Northwest Normal College of Music and Art and has had thirteen years experience as a teacher."

Saltin Wheat Lauds.

Under the direction of B. Campbell, traffic manager of the O. R. & N., some interesting experiments are being made by Col. R. C. Judson, industrial agent for the company. One of them is the use of salt on grain land to retain moisture. Col Judson, who has just returned from Blalock, Washington, in reference to his work said to a Telegram reporter: "Back of Blalock, extending to Rock creek and beyond, is a large area of grain land. Owing to the very heavy rainfall, beginning in October and continuing up to the present time, the grain has thrived finely. The outlook for an extra good crop is favorable."

"While at the farm I arranged with a couple of farmers to test the preservation of moisture in land by the use of salt. This is no new idea. It has been tried in the East, I shall salt the fields during different stages of the growth of the grain and keep an accurate account for publication, so that farmers desiring to use it may know how to go about it. These tests will show whether or not we can retain moisture in the ground during the ripening season. I find that in Eastern Oregon the prevalent warm winds during ripening season, damage the crops."

Road Supervisors.
