CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE. Several of the newspapers throughout the land are spending special effort in announcing candidates for office. This may in some measure seem newslike and amusing, yet it is very questionable whether such a course serves the best interests of the public. According to the old time-honored doctrine that the office should seek the candidate, it would seem best that the people through their delegates to the convention should bring the candidates up to the convention where the nominations are made. Contrary, however to this principle, many of the newspapers, following the example of their contemporaries, announce the names of half a dozen or more friends fo each office, and by the time each newspaper goes down the line from national to state and then to the several county positions, nearly if ditions, the means for bringing block 13, Wilkins Add to Corvallis, not quite half of the male popula- abo good results have been lost $800. tion over the age of twenty-one and sight of in an enthusiastic desire to entitled to vote have in some way been named for some official position. Many of those so named would never have thought of their sames being considered for the official position had it not been for the friendly suggestion of the the socalled newspaper. After his name is so announced and his neighbors one after another mentions it to him, he takes a pride in the matter and comes to really consider himself a candidate for the office and in this way a whole army of officeseekers are brought up to the conventions, leach having his following of friends, and much strife of candidates for the several offices, the names of only a few candidates would appear before the conventions for office. But through the kindly announcements of the new

AGAINST FUSION.

Democracy, crushed to earth by a superabundance of title and concentration of intellect, is making desperate efforts to arise from its servile position, and is even now on its knees. The following petition from the Salem Sentinel to the faithful of Marion county should catch the ear of democrats throughout the state. That organization which would be held a rival of the republican party must prove itself worthy of the high honor it seeks to gain; sincerity and unity of purpose are elements of its success. These sentiments from the Sentinel are worthy of applause:

"The time has come when there is nothing left for democrats to do but effect a party organization. In truth the party should never become disorganized. No good has been accomplished from the fusion movement; not a single point has been gained, and today the democratic party of Oregon is in a shattered condition merely because it has been led astray by the flowery words and sweet scented promises of the "boss."

"There have been three parties or factions in this state, all fighting for practically the same end, and still each pulling in a different direction. The factions we allude to are, of, course, the democrats, populists and silver-republicans. While we have only the warmest feeling for all these people, believ- $63.50. ing them to be, for the greater part, sincere in their fight for better conreach the desired end.
