NEEDS NO DEFENSE.

The Corvallis Times assumes that this paper has said something "in defense" of J. A. Gellatly, present candidate for county clerk, which is another great mistake in the forlorn hope of that great journal. Mr. Gellatly needs no defense at the hands of this paper. The only object in noticing what the Times said is to show with what amusing child-like simplicity it prints "little fairy stories" relating to its neighbors and endeavoring to color them so as to east insinuations and innuendoes in the hope that its readers may be misled as to the true nature of the facts related. These flights of fancy published in connection with such public matters are intended to mislead and to influence and change so solemn a matter as the people's vote.

Suppose Mr. Gellatly did go to Eastern Oregon to better his "financial condition" or to "make money." Suppose he did make "good or bad investments" or lease the "Golden Eagle hotel" with its fine sample rooms," and sold these interests and returned to Benton county, or bought forty acres of land near Sumpter. What about it? What is the Times going to do about it? What harm did this do anyone? Mr. Gellatly went to Eastern Oregon, and returned a republican. If Mr. Gellatly had returned, as others have, flopped over as a democrat, and ever afterward turned his tongue and pen to befouling the good name and motives of his former political associates, he would have been a good fellow according to his present traducer's estimate of political manhood.

The Times, in three distinct articles on three several occasions, referring to Mr. Gellatly, has made use of the words, "Golden Eagle hotel, with fine sample rooms." If the Times wishes to be candid with the public about an important matter, why does it not explain what it means by such expressions? Every hotel considers that its best trade comes from commercial traveling men, who go from town to town carrying their samples of dry goods, boots, shoes, hats, clothing, etc., with them to sell by wholesale to merchants in country towns, and in order to accommodate such traveling merchants, well regulated hotels have sample rooms where these travelers can spread out and show their samples of goods to the town merchants, whom they wish to secure as purchasers. Such is the only sample room the hotel had. What a great ado about nothing to publish on so many occasions such a trivial thing, to influence the voters of this county. Is that sincere journalism, meant in good faith to benefit the public? We are satisfied to leave the public to judge whether they will be humbugged by such chaff or not.

The leaders of the democratic party in this county have continuously urged upon the consideration of the public trashy stuff, published and circulated about opposing candidates, to deceive the voter, when in fact the facts related amounted to nothing but a great noise, so far as the public was concerned. Every democrat and populist, as well as every republican, should be interested sufficiently to see that such insincere political work should cease. If they will vote and elect the republican ticket, it will put the stamp of condemnation upon that unholy quality of journalism and political methods.

The fact remains undisputed that Mr. Gellatly has most excellent qualities to make one of the best county clerks which Benton has ever had, as shown by his good and popular services as recorder of this county. He has been raised from childhood in Benton county. His family have always been good citizens and taxpayers of the county for many years. The name of Gellatly has always stood for honesty, integrity and for outspoken frankness, free from any taint of deception. It will be remembered that Mr. Gellatly has twice run for office in this county and he has steadily refused and now refuses to encourage his friends to circulate any tales or matters reflecting upon his political opponent. Mr. Gellatly expects to be elected on his own merits. The Times cannot say anything against Mr. Gellatly's good qualities as a public officer, and therefore gives the voters subterfuge and deception to draw attention from the important question.

It is with no desire to cast any reflections on either the democrats or populists that the following reprint is made, but because the flights of political oratory of the Times have at intervals appeared ludicrous to us and we find others share our sense of humor. The Salem Statesman has the following: The Corvallis Times speaks thus of Chester Skeels, the Demo-Pop candidate for the lower house of the legislature from Benton county: "He is himself a living platform, on whose face is written, in indelible lines, the words, 'Honesty, intelligence, sincerity.'" Chester Skeels must have a great face. We remember, a few winters back, when several living platforms, with words like the above written over their honest faces, organized themselves into a harem in Salem and refused to take the oath of office.

The Times soon after the county nominations were made pretended a desire to avoid "mud-slinging," but has ever since hunted for a chance and at this early date it has thrown the mud and been so completely driven in a hole that it questions the veracity of the democratic leaders in the lower house of congress, Mr. Dockery and Mr. Catchings, for speaking the truth as to Mr. Tongue's conduct in favoring Yaquina bay. These two life-long democrats have been in congress for nearly 16 years and they have a national reputation.

A public newspaper owes to the public more than anything else to speak the "truth and nothing but the truth," and one which publishes truth in such a colorable way that the public may be misled thereby, is similar to the individual who spends his life dissembling and playing with the words of truth to mislead his neighbor and soon becomes so that those best acquainted with the devices employed do not expect anything but deception and untruth from the source.

The associated press dispatches of yesterday state that Representative Tongue has made another fight for Yaquina bay and secured the release of $25,000, which has been held up, for that improvement. Besides this he hopes to secure $10,000 of the general fund for the re-vestment at Corvallis.

How It Happened. We do not desire to do any jockeying, and greatly prefer that intending purchasers carefully consider the matter, but if you have any notion of a piano or organ you should be glad to buy of us such goods as we have and at such prices as we are anxious to sell them. We can now give you a larger and finer selection than has ever been shown here before, and it may be many a day again before another such line drops in. In fact only one carload was intended for this place to be left with Mr. Lowther, while we personally intended to sell the other carload at another point further south. But our farm work will not permit of our absence, even for a short time, so we dropped both cars close to our Polk county home.

Come right along and finish up the deals and there will be many happy people in this neighborhood. J. M. WISE
