Lake Erie Disaster:

Cleveland, O., July 10 .- The schoon er yacht Idler was lost in a terrific storm 16 miles off this port this afternoon, with six persons, all members of vessel-owner of this city.

Mrs. John Corrigan was the only assenger aboard who was saved. C. H. Holmes, the captain; Samuel Biggam, the mate; four sailors, two cooks the governed is tyranny; and that to and the ship's carpenter were also saved. The yacht left Port Huron yesterday with the family of Mr Corrigan aboard and started to Cleveland. Mr. Corrigan was ill, and left by the train. At 2 o'clock the storm came up, and inside of five minutes the yacht sank. They became panic stricken, and refused to leave the place. The men implored them to come to the deck, but they refused. Mrs. John Corrigan clung to a cork sofa when the gale came, and was saved. When rescued, Biggam said:

Captain Holmes gave me orders to take in sail, and I transmitted the order to the men. They obeyed quickly. WEIRD TALE OF THE SEA. How Stowaways Bred a Serious Mutiny on the Dolphin. San Francisco, July 11 .- The steam er Dolphin, which arrived last night from New York, through the Straits of St. Louis Carmen Say Com-Magellan, had a sensational trip. According to Captain John O'Brien, the day following her departure three stowaways were discovered. But for the stormy weather Captain O'Brien would have put about and landed the men. Subsequently the captain wished with all his heart that he had followed his. first inclination in this respect. From St. Lucia, he took eight natives to assist the crew. About a week after leaving the West Indes, a native told the captain that one of the stowaways was a notorious bandit, and another was a lunatic and the third was the family of James Corrigan, wealthy an escaped murderer. Edward Palmer, a negro steward, assumed an independent attitude before the Dolphin was past Sandy Hook. Three days out from St. Lucia he attacked a fireman named McAllister with a chair and laid his scalp open. The steward was put in irons and Captain O'Bren and Chief tent among the men over the terms of Engineer Winter took six stitches in the fireman's head. The West Indians tion has grown daily. The men mainthen became friendly with the negro crew and they worked only whenever keep the agreement and a dozen or they pleased.

Captain O'Brien intended to land the steward and the natives at Montevideo, but the United States consul there advised holding them until an American port was reached. The steward was released from his irons and put to work painting and cleaning ship. Following this trouble the blacks showed a tendency to rise against the officers and white men of the crew, but Captain O'Brien and his men kept their revolvers in plain view and by their apparent readiness to use them prevented trouble for the time being. Three days was spent at Montevideo in coaling. In Dolphin, and she narrowly escaped being wrecked. In the Straits of Magellan the maneating Fuegans attempted to set fire to the Dolphin as they had done a year before to a Chilean man-of-war, killing and eating the entire crew. At Coronel, a Chilean coaling post, the coal passers obtained liquor and went on the warpath and could not be subdued. They smashed all the fire axes on board and threatened to kill every one on the steamer. During the trouble, Purser Humes and Second Engineer George G. Carroll were sent ashore by Captain O'Brien to procure assistance and they lost no time in finding the men in authority. The nearest troops were 100 miles away, but a special train was sent after them by the government. It newed. on the Dolphin, for in so out of the tempts to get back to the ship.
