are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham for free advice about their health. Mrs. Pinkham is a woman.

If you have painful periods, backaches or any of the more serious ills of women, write to Mrs. Pinkham; she has helped multitudes. Your letter will be sacredly confidential.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is known wherever the English language is spoken.

Nothing else can possibly be so sure to help suffering women. No other medicine has helped so many.

Remember this when something else is suggested.

Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

Her helping hand is always outstretched to suffering women.

Ham Salad.—Chop fine one cup of ham; soak one cup of bread crumbs in one-half cup of sweet milk; add one teaspoonful each of dry mustard and celery seed and a little pepper. Turn all into a sauce pan and heat thoroughly. Serve hot on a small platter, garnished with slices of hard-boiled eggs.

A Nebraska man who saw a twister start writes about it to a magazine. It is harmless at the start but very powerful when some farmer tries to stop it by having his house in its path.

HOIT'S SCHOOL.

Menlo Park, San Mateo County, Cal., with its new buildings, newly furnished and complete laboratories, beautiful surroundings and home influences, is one of the best equipped schools for the training of boys and young men on the coast. It is in charge of Dr. Ira G. Hoit and is accredited at the intermediate level for catalog. Fourth year begins August 6, 1900.

The Georgia man who chained up his daughter because she married in opposition to his wishes merely demonstrated that she was wise in marrying anyone who would take her away from him.

Experiments have for some time been made in England with smokeless coal. This peculiar fuel may be burned either in an ordinary grate or in a basin in the middle of the room without developing any perceptible odor or smoke at any time. The fire looks like the finest coal fire, and the flame is white and blue.

Like the Deadly Under-Current

which grasps one without warning, the mucous membrane which lines the entire body suddenly becomes weakened in some spot and disease is established. It may be of the lungs, the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any other organ. Wherever it is, and whatever it seems, it all springs from the same cause—or inflammation of this delicate pink membrane.

The system is weakened in winter. The delicate lining is more susceptible to irritation or inflammation, and thus we have pneumonia, grip, colds, coughs, fevers, etc., all catarrhal conditions which may easily be checked by one catarrh cure—Pe-ru-na.

That's the only way out of it. You may dose forever—you will not be well until you try the true cure and that is Pe-ru-na. You may think your trouble is some other disease and not catarrh. Call it what you will, one thing is sure, your system is affected and must be treated, and Pe-ru-na is the only remedy which reaches the right place and does cure.

DR. DOBANSKI'S CURE FOR CATARRH OF THE LUNGS, BRONCHITIS, AND ALL AFFECTIONS OF THE THROAT AND LUNGS. Best Cough Syrup. Taste Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

SORROW OF ANIMALS.

EVIDENCE THAT THEY MOURN SINCERELY AND FAITHFULLY.

Sufferings as Poignant as Those of Human Beings—Grief Over the Death of Their Whelp Touchingly Shown by a Lion and Lioness.

Edgar Quinet in his journal tells how one day he went with the naturalist, Geoffroy De St. Hillaire, to the Jardin des Plantes: "In one of the cages were a lion and a lioness together. They were standing up, quite motionless, and seemed not even to see us. Presently the lion, lifting up his great paw, placed it slowly and softly on the forehead of the lioness, and both continued in the same attitude as long as we remained before them. What was intended by the gesture? A painter who should have desired to represent calm grief and the deepest compassion could not have invented anything more striking. 'What does it mean?' said I to Geoffroy. 'Their lion whelp died this morning,' replied he. Then I understood what I saw: Pity, good-will, sympathy—all these sentiments might be read in those fierce countenances."

The following interesting account is extracted from James Forbes' "Oriental Memories": "One of a shooting party, under a banyan tree, killed a female monkey, and carried it to his tent, which was soon surrounded by forty or fifty of the tribe, who made a great noise, and seemed disposed to attack their aggressor. They retreated when he presented his fowling-piece, and the dreadful effect of which they had witnessed, and appeared perfectly to understand. The head of the troop, however, stood his ground, chattering furiously; the sportsman who, perhaps, felt some little degree of compunction for having killed one of the family, did not like to fire at the creature, and nothing short of firing would suffice to drive him off. At length he came to the door of the tent, and finding threats of no avail, began a lamentable moaning, and by the most expressive gestures seemed to beg for the dead body. It was given him; he took it sorrowfully in his arms and bore it away to his expecting companions. They who were witnesses of this scene resolved never again to fire at one of the monkey race."

But perhaps the most impressive and extraordinary case that has yet come before us is that of poor Norman's dog in the Isle of Skye. Here it is, as told a year or two ago in the Inverness Courier, one of the most reliable papers in Scotland:

"A circumstance has just occurred at Portree, Isle of Skye, which may be added to the many chapters recording the fidelity and attachment of dogs to their masters. A rumor spread through the town one morning that on the previous night the dogs had torn open the grave of a young man who had died of fever, and was interred some weeks previously. It transpired, however, that the case was not so revolting. When the young man was buried his dog followed the funeral to the church yard and was with difficulty removed. It returned again and again to the spot, and, unobserved, had dug into the grave until it reached the coffin. The dog had gnawed through the coffin when the fact was discovered, but the body of his dead master was untouched; and there the faithful animal was found, eagerly looking into the grave. 'I doubt,' says the correspondent, 'if there be on record a more striking instance of canine attachment; for you must bear in mind that four or five weeks had elapsed since the interment, and the church yard is six miles from the house where poor Norman's father lives.'"

REWARDS ARE ADEQUATE.

The Public Is Both Just and Generous to Faithful Servants.

The compensations of political life are not a matter of wages, profits and bookkeeping, says ex-Senator Ingalls. They are not measured by income or per centum. It must be admitted that there are vicissitudes and misfits, but salaried attendants attend those who succeed. One is taken and the other left. Popularity and public favor sometimes seem capricious and fickle. The idol of yesterday is execrated to-morrow. The constituency of Aristides still survives, and Nemesis yet waits to resent and punish prosperity.

Princes are not uniformly grateful, and the demands upon the time and strength of the public servant are not always considerate. The lamentation of Wolsey has not lost its pathetic significance, and the injunction to throw away ambition yet falls on wounded and weary souls. But the rewards of public life are far in excess of its burdens. The people are not always slow to anger, but in the end they are both just and generous to those who serve them with fidelity.

They honor courage, independent thought, manhood and truth, and are quick to forgive errors that proceed from an intrepid spirit. The ingratitude of republics is a stale proverb.—Saturday Evening Post.

An Epitaph on the Frontier. Jim Bridger, the famous Rocky Mountain scout, at one stage of his career thought he had enough of frontier life and decided to return to the "offense East"—which to him meant Missouri. Not long after he had quit his ranch Captain Russell, the commandant of the army post where Jim used to trade his furs and game for cartridges between scouting jobs, was surprised to see the old man ambulating in again.

"Why, Bridger! We thought you had settled down East with your home folks."

"Cap'n," said Bridger, "I want to take to scouting again."

"Why, what was the matter? Wouldn't they have you back on the old homestead?"

"No, cap'n, the ain't it," said the old scout. "I'll tell you how it wuz. I went back to stay for keeps, sure 'nuff, but it wasn't the old Missouri I was reared up in. Why, they had a railroad junction no more'n fifteen miles from the ole ranch—yes, sir, a railroad junction. And what's worse, they've got ranches all over the range nowadays, every four mile or so. I tell you what, cap'n, the air ain't pure down there no more."

"Is that possible? But, Bridger, didn't you like the good things to eat they have down there?"

"Good things to eat! Why, cap'n, I didn't have a briled grizzly paw the hull time I was there!"—Collier's Weekly.

ANECDOTE INCIDENT

A recruit for the British army was taken to be sworn in recently by the magistrate. Everything was going swimmingly till the magistrate asked the man, "Have you ever been in prison?" "At this time I had been in jail, but I don't mind doing a few days if you think it necessary."

A singer named Gordon once complained to Handel of the style of his accompaniments, which attracted the attention from the singer, saying that if he did not accompany him better he would jump upon the harpsichord and destroy it. "Very well," said Handel, "tell me you will do that and I will advertise it. More people will come to see you jump than to hear you sing."

It is said by those who know Cecil Rhodes, the South African magnate, that he has, in common with Lord Kitchener, a strong aversion to the opposite sex. While on a visit to London before the commencement of the war he dined at the house of a very wealthy lady of title, and later, when he was discussing the affair with his secretary, the latter asked: "And whom did you take to dinner?" "Oh, I don't know. Some Lady Somebody," he don't know. "But what did you call her?" "Didn't call her anything—never spoke to her."

When recently asked to write in a certain lady's album the Prince of Wales playfully declined, saying: "A little while ago I spent nearly an hour one evening writing verses in several albums. I even made up a verse so badly put together that only a royal prince, or a duke at the best, could have had the shame to write such stuff. Now, madam, what do you think happened to my verses? Well, they were all sold at a good stiff price a week later to provide funds to support the Society for the Restoration of the Stuarts. Perhaps, Lady—," and the Prince laughed heartily. "If I write in your album, you will sell the book to provide funds for the abolition of the monarchy in England."

A discharged soldier, lately returned from the Philippines, tells a tale of a shirt which is too good to be lost. His company was returning from a long and tiresome scouting trip, in which most of the men had parted with the greater part of their wearing apparel, when he saw on a clothes-line in the grounds of a residence adjoining a big stone garage, a few of them good shirts hanging out to dry. As he had at the time only half a shirt to his back, he proceeded to help himself to a whole one. Whereupon a woman came out of the house and said to him, in passable English: "You will pay for that on the judgment day." "Madam," he replied, "if you give such long credit, I will take both shirts," which he proceeded to do.

A charge of watch robbery was preferred before the late Sir James Ingalls by a gentleman against an individual who had traveled in the same carriage with him from Bournemouth, but in the end it was found that the watch had not been stolen, but had been left home by the proscriber. To mollify the innocent man, Sir James said: "It is a most remarkable occurrence. To show, however, how liable we all are to make these mistakes, I was under the impression when I left my house at Kensington this morning that I put my watch (which, I may mention, is an exceedingly valuable one) in my pocket, but arriving at this court I found that I must have left it at home by mistake." While business was proceeding an old thief at the back of the court went out, jumped into a hansom cab, drove off to Sir James Ingalls's residence, and, by representing himself as a bona fide messenger, obtained possession of the watch, which has never been heard of since.

Chinese Proverbs.

An indication of the Chinese character can be inferred from the nature of their proverbs. A few of them are as follows: "If the blind lead the blind they will both go to the pit." "An old man marrying a young wife is like a withered willow sprouting." "A virtue should excel in four things, wit, speech, deportment and needlework." "Every day cannot be a Feast of Lanterns." "Would you look at the character of a Prince, look at his Minister, or the disposition of a man, observe his companion, or that of a father, mark his son." "The higher a rat creeps up a cow's horn the narrower he finds it." "Let us get drunk to-day while we have wine; the sorrows of to-morrow may be borne by to-morrow."

A Barcelona Bull Fight.

At a recent bull fight in Barcelona the audience came to the conclusion that the bulls were not fierce enough and the fighters were cowards, whereupon a number jumped into the ring and drove the animals into their pens, while the fighters fled and boarded a train which happened to leave conveniently.

New Bridge Over the St. Lawrence.

The new steel bridge across the St. Lawrence River at Quebec will be 4,000 feet long and 100 feet above the river, thus enabling the largest ship to pass under.

To fold gowns of delicate silk, or those trimmed with delicate ribbons, in casings of white tissue paper seems the dainty and suitable thing. Scientists, however, advise the use of brown paper, as in the manufacture of white paper, a chloride of lime is used, and is likely to injure the silk.

Live Like a Prince for a Week. Getting something for nothing is never realized in this tough old world, but you can come mighty near it by going from Portland to San Francisco on the O. R. & N. steamers leaving Portland every fifth day at 8 P. M. A wonderful ocean trip for only $12 each way, with meals like mother used to cook and the best possible attendance, without being held up for a cent by waiters and others.

Liquid hydrogen is transparent, and the lightest as well as the coldest liquid known, a cork sinking in it like lead. A whitish substance seen at the bottom of the vessel on Professor Dewar's first exhibition was really solid air or ice.

The water carts used in Drogheda Ireland have medical advertisements displayed on them. A visitor noticing these advertisements thoughtfully said: "Strange it's no wonder Drogheda is healthy, why they weather the streets with Jones' Sarsaparilla!"

Easy and Cheap Vacation Trip. Just think of riding 700 miles for $12, on a smooth sea, with no dust or heat, and getting the finest meals and every possible attention, without extra cost. The O. R. & N. makes this possible. Steamers every fifth day, at 8 P. M., from Portland to San Francisco.

Appropriately Named. "Why are they called pyramids, pa?" asked George, who was looking at a picture of those wonders of Egypt. "They are called pyramids, my son," replied the father, without hesitation, "because, you see, they appear about the general desolation of the desert."

Gifted Angellina. "Angellina tells me she cuts all her shirt waists without a pattern." "She does? How do they look?" "Oh, they look like shirt waists out without a pattern."

Effulgence. "He isn't nearly so bright as he thinks he is," said the young woman who discusses her acquaintances. "No," answered Miss Cayenne, "that's a very fortunate circumstance. If he were, we couldn't look at him without using a piece of smoked glass."

Shoe Clerk.—Entirely new toes will be seen in shoes this year. Customer—Well, I guess I will be satisfied with the same toes I've always had.

Showing of Ignorance.

By the printed reports of a recent examination of applicants for positions in the census office at Washington an astonishing amount of ignorance is shown to exist among the applicants. They are especially and funny ignorant, says the Washington Star, regarding the famous men of history—as to the time in which they lived and as to what they accomplished. Fifty-two persons entered the competition and only 14 reached a percentage above 90, while 19 failed entirely. Some of the answers would be taken for jokes did they appear anywhere else than in a department report.

There was Jefferson Davis, for instance, who was placed on record by one applicant as "a famous general of the war of 1812." Another stated that Mr. Davis "was president of the United States and wrote the declaration of independence." The first postmaster general was another who worried the applicants considerably. One man suggested George Washington, another Patrick Henry, and a third Wendell Phillips. A young southerner disposed of all argument by stating that it was "a gentleman named Bissell."

William Cullen Bryant, whose boast was, "I am a bookman," had his identity mixed with that of the Nebraska orator by a young woman, who stated "William Cullen Bryant was the Democratic candidate for president, a silver advocate and a resident of Nebraska." And even Abraham Lincoln appeared to be examined in varied lights. Here are some of the answers to the inquiry concerning him:

"Lincoln was a great general and distinguished himself in the war of 1812."

"Abraham Lincoln was a personal friend of the colored race and was one of the signers of the declaration of independence."

"Abraham Lincoln was born in Illinois, where he worked from rosy dawn till dewy eve as a farmer's lad until he became president."

Carter's Ink is so good and so cheap that no family can afford to be without it. Is yours Carter's? The District of Columbia is first in the field with its census report, giving a total population of 278,718, an increase of 20.98 per cent since 1890, a rate that would make the total population of the United States about 76,000,000.

A Wonderful Pleasure Trip. Steamers operated by the O. R. & N. Co. between Portland and San Francisco have been patronized liberally on every trip this summer. The trip down and back can be made for $24. That small amount includes meals and berth, with everything first-class, and the best possible attendance. Steamers leave Portland every fifth day, at 8 P. M. The round trip from Portland to San Francisco and return, can be made in eight days, giving nearly four full days in San Francisco for sight-seeing or business.

Belgium's census was taken on the last day of last year, and the general results as regards population have just been made public. The population of the kingdom is 6,744,532, consisting of 3,363,436 males and 3,381,096 females. Officially Antwerp is the most populous town, with 282,318 inhabitants; Brussels follows with 201,065.

Some farmers who broadcasted cow peas this season sowed oats with the peas. As the cow pea is really a bean and supports are not required, the oats are injurious, as the cow pea will thrive much better when given the land alone. If oats are wanted they should always be seeded in another field.

An Unselfish Nature.

"When I get to be a man," said the boy, who has a good memory for phrases, "I'm going to strive to cultivate an unselfish nature."

"That's right," replied his father. "How are you going about it?"

"Well, in the first place, if I have any little boys, I'll let them shoot their own fireworks, instead of telling them they must let me do it, for fear they will hurt themselves."

While in congress Jerry Simpson saved most of his salary and invested the money in land and cattle. He is now rated at $40,000. When he first went to congress he had to borrow money to buy a railroad ticket.

The American Man. Much comparison has been made between the endurance of the Chinese and the American working man. Those with authority say that the average working man of America is as superior to the Chinese as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is to any other dyspepsia cure. The Bitters also cures constipation, indigestion and prevents malaria.

The great man has greatness in him before the occasion brings it out.

Pullman Sleeping Cars. These cars are standard the world over; well and strongly built, beautifully furnished, service unequalled.
