Elmer Jackson and Albert Hall, of Troutdale, are attending the O A C this year.

Fred Edwards, who will attend the U of O this year, visited over Sunday with his brother, Major F. E. Edwards, in this city.

George Horning arrived in Corvallis yesterday with a drove of about 150 fine fat hogs, which he will ship to Portland. The porkers were gathered up at various places between Corvallis and Junction City.

Ernest Redd, of Carlton, arrived Saturday to attend college. He will be band master for the O A C boys this year. Gerald Tuttle, of Union, Oregon, is also back, and will have charge of the destinies of the college orchestra.

A reception was given by the members of the Christian church last evening in honor of Mrs. Burnett and her daughter, Mrs. Lou Rhoades, who leave today for Oakland, Calif., where Mrs. Rhoades will join her husband.

Earl and Marvin Brandberry came over from Albany Saturday, for a brief visit. Earl recently returned from a business trip to California in the interest of the lumbering industry at Albany and reports good results from the trip.

John Whitaker finished picking his hops Saturday. His yard contains some forty odd acres and the hops are of the finest quality. Mr. Whitaker has 1,780 boxes, and, although the weather was not at all times favorable, he only lost a few boxes.

There will be a reception given at the Evangelical church Saturday evening especially to new students at the O A C, but all students are invited, both from home and abroad. A cordial welcome is extended to all and an enjoyable time assured.

Mrs. Murray leaves in a short time with her family for Philadelphia. She is now waiting for her daughter, Miss Colista, to arrive from Portland, to determine the date of their departure. Miss Colista will enter an art school, and Leslie intends studying architecture.

Rev. M. D. Dunniway, of Forest Grove, will occupy the pulpit at the Congregational church next Sabbath morning and evening. Rev. P. S. Knight will occupy Rev. Dunniway's pulpit at Forest Grove on the same day. Rev. Dunniway is lately from the East and is an eloquent pulpit orator.

Jesse Foster was in town yesterday and reports that all of the farmers of his section are busily engaged getting in their fall grain. Notwithstanding the poor crops of this year, they are undismayed and from present indications the acreage of wheat raised next year will exceed that of this season.

Benton county succeeded in securing fourth prize at the State Fair, $50 in cash. Marion county was first; Linn, second and Washington, third. That Benton was not accorded first place is the fault of her people and not of her resources. Mr. French and his assistants worked like trojans, and are entitled to every credit. The exhibit they succeeded in bringing together was of the finest quality, but lacked in quantity the display of more successful counties. Many persons made promises of articles which they had in abundance, but failed to fulfill them. That Benton secured a place, however, is much to her credit.

C. W. Young is visiting at Elk City.

Many people who have been out in the valley picking hops, returned home during the latter part of last week.

J. C. Taylor recently added to the attractiveness of his dwelling by placing a very large plate glass window in it.

James Osburn was a visitor at the state fair, last week. Jim is quite enthusiastic over some of the stock exhibited there.

J. C. Taylor attracted much attention a few days ago with a box of Belgian hares he had on exhibition at his meat market.

Prof. Helen V. Crawford arrived in this city from her home in Linn county, Thursday in order to assume her duties which began at the O A C yesterday.

Claude and Miss Blanche Riddle arrived from their home in Riddell, Southern Oregon, Friday. They will resume their studies at the Agricultural College.

Miss Ellen J. Chamberlain, lady dean at the O A C, arrived from Salem, Friday. She has visited many of the valley cities and made a journey to Seattle as well during her vacation.

Hon. Fred E. Holloway, of Indiana, who will address the voters of this county at the Odd Fellows' hall in Philomath, tomorrow afternoon, has the reputation of being an eloquent and forcible orator, and those who hear him are promised a treat. In the evening he will speak under the auspices of the McKinley and Roosevelt club at the court house in this city. The Filipino quartet will furnish music for the occasion. Everybody is cordially invited.

Dr. James Withycombe left last night for Springfield, Illinois, where he will attend the state fair, and he will visit the principal agricultural experiment stations in the East, and go to Washington. He is looking up the cattle interests. He returns home in December, when he will take up the matter of farmers' institutes. He says the stock exhibit at the Oregon State Fair this year is the best ever seen in the Pacific Northwest.—Friday's Statesman.

Joaquin Miller, the poet, who is in China, credits Li Hung Chang with saying that if it had been known that there was not much look in Pekin, the allied forces would not have been in such a hurry to get there. Miller met the old statesman at Canton, and had a long interview with him.—The Dalles Chronicle. The chances are that there is about as much "moon-shine" in this statement of Joaquin's as the majority of his Aurora Borealis items that he sent home from the Yukon a few winters back.

The college opened Monday with every indication of an increased attendance this year. The examinations of last Friday and Saturday showed a gain of nearly fifty per cent in the number of Freshmen making application for admission. Numerous old students arrived on all trains yesterday and were registering all afternoon. At the time of going to press it was impossible for us to secure figures, but those in a position to know were of the opinion that the number of matriculations would be greater than those of the opening day last year.

The subject of "Grandfather's Clock" is attracting much attention in different sections and the latest addition to literature in this line is contributed by the Independence West Side as follows: "W. G. Cressy, speaking about Dea Davidson's grandfather's clock, says that he has a clock older yet. His grandfather bought it in 1790, a hundred and ten years ago and that the clock has been running ever since. The works are of brass, the pendulum being about three feet long. Mr. Cressy says he wouldn't take a good farm for that clock."

Sheriff Burnett and J. N. McFadden returned Friday evening from a visit to the state fair at Salem. They speak in high praise of the fair. The exhibits were unusually fine. It is thought that the live stock exhibits of former years were none of them equal to the stock at the fair this year. On account of rain the race course was not in prime condition, but some very interesting contests were pulled off. Everything was entertaining from start to finish of the fair and had the weather been favorable the attendance would have been the largest ever seen on a similar occasion at Salem.

H. L. Walden, traveling freight and passenger agent of the Corvallis & Eastern Railroad, will leave in a few days for Eureka, Calif., to accept for the present, a position on the Eureka & Klamath River Railroad, President A. B. Hammond's new railroad in the redwood lumber region, where the Vance redwood interests, the finest body of timber in the redwood belt of California, have been purchased by Mr. Hammond, including the railroad named. Supt. C. Sullivan is at Eureka, and T. J. Butler, bridge foreman on the C. & E. left Saturday for that place. The Eureka road was projected from Eureka to the Klamath river, a distance of 70 miles.—Herald.

Heeded the Rebuke.

The Monroe Bryan club will be addressed at its first meeting next Wednesday evening, by Judge W. S. McFadden. The judge is an entertaining talker, and his words leave a lasting impression on his hearers. We remember a speech made by this excellent gentleman some years ago, in the course of which he compared the achievements of the democratic party with those of the republican party. He pointed to the acquisition of territory under Jefferson and those other noble democrats and the picture was inspiring. Then, in tones of withering sarcasm, he said, "And what has the republican party added to our domain? Alaska, a land so poor and unproductive that if an old rabbit is so unfortunate as to give birth to twins she has to let one out to nurse." The great leaders of the party felt the sting of this rebuke, and since that time republican administrations have added Hawaii, Guam, the Philippines, Porto Rico, Pango Pango, and Alaska has redeemed herself by proving a valuable revenue producer. The judge will kindly remember to give credit for this.

Just Suits Him.

Colonel Frank Parker, former editor of the Walla Walla Statesman, passed through Corvallis on his way home from Elk City on the C. & E., where he has just added 640 acres of land to his fine ranch. Colonel Parker's tract now amounts to 1200 acres. The colonel admits that his own state is a fine place, and all that, but he says there is no such opportunity for acquiring farming land up in Washington that suits him like the Yaquina bay region. On his reserves Nature has placed, he says, everything to provide a man with the necessities of life. There is game, trout, fruit, stock and chickens, and the colonel is looking forward to the time when he shall quit Walla Walla editorial life and settle down to a sensible existence.

The colonel had with him a bag of apples that were mostly three and four pounders. They were of enormous size and the editor-rancher confessed that he knew no name for the species. He says they grow as easily in the salt air of that coast country as prunes do in the Umpqua valley. Colonel Parker has been sending complimentary boxes to his friends in all parts of the country. This method of giving away his superb crop has proven popular and the colonel does not see why he should not make a good thing out of his fruit business.

Oregon Was There.

The general impression is that Oregon is not represented at the Paris Exposition. In a certain sense she is not represented, at least, not as she should be, nevertheless, she is represented, although California gets the credit. Prof. E. R. Lake, of the O. A. C., now in France, in writing of the big Paris fair states that California has two good-sized attractions and after describing one says: "The other place, which is just around the corner, and not more than two blocks away from Place de l'Opera, the most crowded place in all Paris, is managed, ostensibly, at least, by the Southern Pacific company, though it draws largely upon Oregon for its display of woods, fish, fruits and grain, of which material it has enough to make a creditable pavilion within the exposition grounds; in fact it is a better display than many on the grounds, so far as a real exhibit of soil products goes."

Oregon Game Laws.

The fishing season is now on, and the season for hunting some kinds of game being open also, it may be well to remind parties when and what they can hunt and fish for, and when they must desist.

It is lawful to kill deer and elk from July 15 to November 1st of each year, but it is unlawful to kill them at any time for the hide, hams and horns, and it is also unlawful at any time to kill a spotted fawn or chase a deer with dogs.

The open season to kill silver grey squirrels is from October 1 to January 1. The open season for China pheasants, grouse, native pheasant and quail is the months of October and November. Hunters are not allowed to shoot from a public highway or to enter any standing or growing grain not his own for the purpose of taking or recovering any game, or to go upon any premises for the purpose of hunting or to allow his dogs to do so without the consent of the owner or the person in charge. The law forbids the killing of jack-snipe except from the first day of September until the first day of February following.

Trout may be taken from April 1 to November 1 of each year. Ducks may be killed from September 1 until March 15 following.

The penalty for violating any of these provisions of the game law is a fine of from $15 to $20 and costs of prosecution, or from 7 to 100 days in jail.

Mrs. Mehala Belknap.

The death of Mrs. Mehala Belknap occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Kyle, at Monroe, last Friday night. A week before she had suffered a stroke of paralysis. So severe was the attack that it was known she could not survive long and relatives were called to her bedside, and they were near her when the final summons came. Mehala Starr was the daughter of Jeremiah Starr. She was born in Ohio in 1824. The family removed to Iowa, and September 26, 1842, she was married in that state to Ransom Belknap, who died at his home near Monroe some four years ago. In 1847, Mrs. Belknap came to Oregon with her husband and settled in Benton county.

Her children who survive her are, Mrs. Keziah Anderson and Angelina Anderson, of Washington; Rev. Lewis F. Belknap, of Woodburn, and Edward H. Belknap, Webster C. Belknap and Mrs. Adeline Kyle, of Monroe.

Davis-Taylor.

The wedding of Mr. Caleb Davis, jr., and Miss Alice Taylor occurred at the residence of the groom's father in this city at high noon, Saturday, September 22, 1900, Dr. E. J. Thompson officiating. The bride is the daughter of Rev. J. I. Taylor, of Philomath, and is a highly estimable young lady. Everybody in Corvallis, and Benton county for that matter, knows Caleb, and everybody likes him. He is the son of Caleb Davis, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of this county. Immediately after the ceremony the young people left for the farm home of the groom fourteen miles west of the city where they will make their home. A host of friends extend congratulations.

A meeting of the old Oregon State Agricultural Society was held Friday night for the annual election of its officers, which resulted as follows, says the Telegram: John G. Wright, president; John Midlo, vice president; Jefferson Myers, secretary; A. Bush, treasurer. This society possesses considerable assets in cash and notes, and a resolution was adopted last night turning over to the state board of agriculture all its funds with the understanding that the badge of the society, worn by its life members, should be recognized as tickets of admission at all state fairs.

An item in a recent issue of the Minneapolis, Minn., Journal states that in two weeks of September 100 carloads of fruit had been received in that city. Of this amount 60 carloads had come from Oregon and Washington, and 40 from Michigan, Indiana and Illinois. It is such facts as these that indicate in a practical way the wonderful natural resources of Oregon. A gentleman who has recently come to Portland from Minneapolis, informs the Telegram that Oregon apples sell readily in the latter city at $2 and $2.50 per box, and that no better fruit is seen there than that which comes from this state.
