Word was received in this city a few days ago that William Headrick, of Alsea, had been the victim of quite a serious accident. Information regarding the particulars is meager, but it was learned that he was run over in some manner by a horse and his collar-bone broken, his hip and other parts of his body badly bruised. Mr. Headrick is sixty-three years old, but as he is usually spry for his age, it is thought that he will rapidly recover from the effects of this mishap.

J. H. Mason, of Alsea, was a Corvallis visitor yesterday.

The name of the postoffice of horseback.

Father Jurek arrived home, Wednesday, from a visit of several

In Portland the average rainfall for October during the past 30 years has been but 3.39 inches.
The heaviest rainfall recorded during any October in that time occurred in 1882, when 11.58 inches fell. The other extreme was reached in 1895, when only a trace fell during the entire month. In October, 1900, it rained 21 days and the total precipitation was 3.87 inches. The average precipitation for the entire rainy season during the past 30 years has been 43.94 inches. What is true in Portland will likely hold good throughout the valley.

Nearly seventy carloads of prunes have been shipped from Salem this year and there remains quite a considerable amount to be shipped.
The Willamette Valley Prune Association is at work with a large force packing prunes in boxes for shipment to the Eastern market. They are sending out thousands of boxes bearing their label, which will give Oregon fruit a great advertisement in the East where it is still unknown to the great majority of the people. The Association is sending out two or three carloads every day of the finest prunes that were ever shipped from Oregon.

Toothpick and Peanut.

In the heat of a political disagreement then oft-times make out-landish wagers. A wager is reported by the Portland Telegram between two East Side men, and, to say the least, it is well out of the usual channel of campaign bets.
Both men are ardent supporters of the cause which they espoused. According to agreement, the Bryan man, having lost, has a task on hand that will furnish him with a demand for patience. The wager was as follows:

The Bryan man agreed that if McKinley were elected he would roll a peanut up a hill one mile in length with a toothpick, and in the event that this task had not been accomplished by night-fall, he is to camp all night on the spot where the peanut has reached, and this without liquid refreshment, too.
The McKinleyite declared that if Bryan were elected he would do likewise. The McKinley man asserted that his friend on the other end of the wager had better provide himself with a tent.

Not Evert Philipps.

A remarkable coincidence had its culmination in this city last evening. During the evening a young man stepped up to Officer J.
H. Philipps and touching him on the shoulder handed him a card and asked to speak with him. The card bore the name of M. Clyde Philipps, Corvallis. It seems that some twelve years ago a young man named Philipps had disappeared from Corvallis and although he had been traced to San Francisco and Australia he had finally disappeared entirely. About the time of his disappearance Officer Philipps, of this city was in Corvallis and lived there for nine months and became acquainted with many of the young fellows there, then left there and had never been back.
Last summer he met a young man named Friendly and in conversation it developed that they had known each other in Corvallis.
Officer Philipps, who at one time ran between San Francisco and Australia, also spoke of both places to the man Friendly and when Friendly returned to Corvallis a few weeks ago, he told M. Clyde Philipps that he had seen his (Philipps') brother and that he was in Astoria. Young Philipps then telephoned here and ascertained that a man by that name and tallying very closely to his description of his brother was living here. Last night he arrived down here to look him up and when he found him was so positive that Philipps was his long-lost brother that he went up to him and spoke to him as stated above, giving him the card to watch the effect. The officer accidentally covered the Corvallis with his finger and at once thought him to be the Clyde Philipps that disappeared from Astoria last week and began asking him questions on the subject. They finally succeeded in getting matters straightened out, but found that they were no relation.—Astorian.

Another Gold Brick.

Periodically this locality is gingered up by a gold excitement. The latest strike is reported from Detroit on the line of the C. & E. It is said that gold-bearing ore, mountains of it, varying in value from low grade to extremely rich, has been found and a number of claims have already been staked by eager seekers for riches.

A short six months ago, while running some lines about one and a half miles from the town of Detroit, W. J. Smith's compass refused to work. As he was in a hurry at the time he did not stop to investigate the cause. Later, however, he again visited the same place, and discovered free milling ore assaying $5.50 per ton. This was some little time ago, and it has been kept very quiet.

Of late the matter of the fixd has leaked out, and farther prospecting resulted in bringing to light much richer ore, which is now being assayed. The mines found are similar to the Treadwell mines in Alaska, not ledges but mountains, and run about six miles in length and three-quarters of a mile wide. Twenty claims have been taken.
Some thirty-five men were prospecting the district Monday with good success. Smith & Smith will put in machinery as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.
If later prospects should develop the riches promised by the first finds, the prospects are very flattering, and a gold excitement of no mean proportions—a Klondike on a small scale—is certain to result.

Tried to Escape.

Promptly at 9 o'clock yesterday morning Judge Hamilton sentenced H. Kubli to two years in the penitentiary for stealing the team and hack of Mrs. S. A. Cooper last spring. As soon as he was sentenced Sheriff Burnett and Deputy Sheriff Henderson started to take the prisoner back to jail. Deputy Henderson was in the lead as they passed out through the back entrance of the court house, then came Kubli, followed by Sheriff Burnett. Mr. Henderson turned to the left as he passed through the door, and as quick as a flash the prisoner dashed to the right and made a break for liberty. Sheriff Burnett ordered him to halt, but he paid no attention and the sheriff fired a couple of shots, aiming at the ground, as he did not desire to shoot the man without it became absolutely necessary. Kubli ran toward the residence of J. H. Simpson, and in crossing one of the walks, slipped and fell down, but quickly arose and continued his leap. The officers gave chase and when Sheriff Burnett reached this place, he, too, fell down; Deputy Henderson also took a tumble at this point. It seems the boards were slimy and caused all of them to slip. The sheriff out ran his man and caught him just in front of the residence named. Sheriff Burnett will take Kubli to Salem today.

O. V. Motley is Dead.

A telegram from Sparta, Oregon, reached this city Tuesday morning announcing the sudden death of O. V. Motley from heart disease at midnight Monday, after an illness of an hour.
Mr. Motley was born in October, 1849, in Clatsop county.
While he was quite young his parents moved to Benton county and took up the donation land claim now occupied by Oliver Witham. Here Mr. Motley grew to manhood. He was united in marriage with Miss Mary McLagan in June, 1878, and she, with four children, Carrie, Belle, Lee and William, survive him.

For many years Mr. Motley was employed in the butcher business in this city, being at one time in partnership with Nick Baeson. In 1885 he removed with his family to Crook county where he engaged for a number of years in the sheep business.
In 1894 he took up his residence at Sparta, where he resided until his death.

His mother, Mrs. E. W. Motley, who survives him, resides at Milton, Oregon. Two brothers are R. T. Motley, Milton, Oregon, and C. N. Motley, Silver City, Nevada. His four surviving sisters are Mrs. McEwan, Tacoma, Washington, Mrs.
Logsdun, Riddle, Oregon, Mrs.
Wrightman, Los Angeles, and Mrs. Henderson, of Corvallis.

The remains were interred at Sparta Wednesday forenoon. As he was a member of the Masonic and A. O. U. W. lodges of this city many people thought that his body might be brought here for burial. He carried a $2,000 life insurance policy in the latter order.

College Wins Its Case.

The case of M. Porter vs. E. W.
Strong came before the court Monday. Tuesday being a non-judicial day the jury was excused until Wednesday morning and at that time the matter was again taken up. It occupied all the forenoon and did not go to the jury until after dinner. The case was an action to recover money for logs cut on the lands of Mr. Porter.
The plaintiff held that these logs were worth $186.82, and asked for the further sum of $100 as damages. The jury rendered a verdict in favor of Porter in the sum of $125 for the logs but failed to find that he had been at all damaged.
The testimony went to show that Strong had entered into a contract with a Mrs. Clark for certain timber on her lands. These lands surrounded a seven-acre tract owned by Porter, and Strong's loggers got into this tract, and cut some timber. Porter claimed that he warned Strong's workmen not to cut these logs.

In the case of D. A. Osburn vs Sam Sun, Sam Jake et al, action to recover money, the defendants' demurer was sustained by the court and the case was dismissed. Yates, Yates & Gibson represented the defendants.

Considerable time was consumed in securing a jury in the matter of H. N. Eley vs Agricultural College.
The first witness was called to the stand at five o'clock Wednesday evening. About the first question asked by the plaintiff's attorney was objected to by W. E. Yates for defendant. A battle over fine legal questions ensued and it ended yesterday afternoon in a motion by the plaintiff for a non suit. Yates, Yates & Gibson and Weatherford & Wyatt, of Albany, were the attorneys for the College, while W.
S. McFadden, Attorney Watson, of Albany, and Attorney McNary, of Salem, appeared for the plaintiff.

Southern California.

Notable among the pleasures afforded by the Shasta Route is the winter trip to of mountain, shore, valley and plain.

The two daily Shasta trains from Port-equipped with the most approved pat-
