

Salt Rheum

You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust. But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system.

It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain.

It is always radically and permanently cured by which expels all humors, and is positively unequalled for all cutaneous eruptions.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

BAD BLOOD, BAD COMPLEXION.

The skin is the seat of an almost endless variety of diseases. They are known by various names, but are all due to the same cause, acid and other poisons in the blood that irritate and interfere with the proper action of the skin.

To have a smooth, soft skin, free from all eruptions, the blood must be kept pure and healthy. The many preparations of arsenic and potash and the large number of face powders and lotions generally used in this class of diseases cure up for a short time, but cannot remove permanently the ugly blotches and the red, disfiguring pimples.

External vigilance is the price of a beautiful complexion when such remedies are relied on.

Mr. H. T. Shobe, 774 Lupton Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., says: "My daughter was afflicted for years with a disfiguring eruption on her face, which resisted all treatment. She was taken to two medical men, but received no benefit. Many medicines were prescribed, but without result. Finally she decided to try S. S. S. The time the first bottle was finished the eruption began to disappear. A dozen bottles cured her completely and left her skin perfectly smooth. She is now seventeen years old, and not a sign of the embarrassing disease has ever returned."

S. S. S. is a positive, unfailing cure for the worst forms of skin troubles. It is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and the only one guaranteed purely vegetable.

Bad blood makes bad complexions. S. S. S. purifies and invigorates the old and makes new, rich blood that nourishes the body and keeps the skin active and healthy and in proper condition to perform its part towards carrying off the impurities from the body. If you have Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, or your skin is rough and pimply, send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases and write our physicians about your case. No charge whatever for this service.

LACE CAUSED FAMOUS QUARREL

Empress Josephine Cut a Costly Piece and Napoleon Slapped Her. For $2,000 has been sold in Paris a piece of lace which was the cause of a quarrel between Napoleon and Josephine, in which the cheeks of the Empress were slapped. It had been the property of Mlle. Perusset, daughter of a favorite maid of the mighty Empress. Napoleon had brought the lace from Italy. He often brought her beautiful things on his return from a successful campaign, and Josephine never asked him how he had got them, for she thought that perhaps he would not care to tell.

It was a large square of the finest old point de Venise, and Josephine, as soon as she had it in her possession, sent for M. Duplan, her man-milliner, and asked him to make with it a certain fichu and a peplum.

"Impossible, your majesty," answered Duplan, "the piece is too large, and we could not arrange it gracefully."

"Well, cut it, then!"

"Cut a treasure such as that! Oh, madam, I could not do such a thing!"

"Nonsense!" cried Josephine. The lace was draped on her shoulders; she knew how she wanted it; so she calmly took a pair of scissors, and in a second it set right, while long, narrow pieces of the priceless stuff fell round her.

At this moment the Emperor entered the room. "Cannibale!" he cried, and he gave her a sounding slap on her violently rouged cheeks, which were soon covered with tears. Duplan discreetly withdrew, and the lace was thrown into a chest of drawers. Josephine could not bear the sight of after that, and gave it to Mme. Perusset, her favorite maid. The odd bits of it have now been sold for $2,000. Another bundle fetched $1,000.

The passion of Josephine for lace caused frequently scenes between her and Napoleon. She would have lace, and she seldom let anything stand in the way of acquiring it. It is even said that this frivolous fancy helped to bring about her downfall, for Napoleon, who at first would not hear of forsaking her, one day said to the Prince de Wagram: "The cup is full now, Prince. What do you think Josephine did lately? 'Nobbled' one of my young generals, and made him pass lace for her in his top boots through my own frontier! Her soul is made of lace, Prince, and that is too fragile a stuff for an Empress' soul!"

GALLANT SENATOR SPOONER.

The Wisconsin Man Buys a Woman's Fried Oysters in a Restaurant. While the national convention of the W. C. T. U. was in session in Washington, an elderly lady, went into a restaurant on G street, looked the bill of fare over carefully, and ordered fried oysters.

"How many?" asked the waiter.

"Oh," she said, remembering the diminutive oyster of California, "I guess a dozen and a half will do."

The waiter lifted his eyebrows, but took the order back to the kitchen. In due time he appeared with an enormous platter full of fried oysters, each half as large as a man's hand.

"The California lady nearly fainted."

"Take them away," she gasped. "I never, never ordered that great mass of food."

"That's a dozen and a half fried oysters, ma'am," the waiter replied.

There was some hysterical but vain argument on the part of the delegate from California.

She was told she would have to pay for the oysters, but she needn't eat them unless she chose to do so.

Just then Senator Spooner came in and sat down at the next table. The W. C. T. U. delegate, almost in tears, leaned over and asked imploringly: "Oh, sir, do you like fried oysters?"

Senator Spooner stared. "I have eaten them, madam," he replied, with dignity.

"Then please buy these; please, please do."

"But," said the Senator, laughing, "I never eat them now, for I find they promote indigestion."

The lady exhibited her white ribbon badge and implored again: "Oh, you haven't eaten anything yet; please buy these."

"Well, I'll buy them, but I assure you, madam, I do not contract to eat them."

And he paid the check, while the delegate from California almost ran out of the restaurant.

Science and Invention

Two of the largest Blakelock collars ever made have been ordered in this country for a foreign government, and will give an electric spark forty-five inches in length, expending energy amounting to three or four horse power, and having a potential of half a million volts.

Japan and South America have been shaken so often and so violently that an earthquake there is hardly worth notice. In 1854 a wave traversed the Pacific from Japan and broke on the American coast. Sailors say a wave over fifty feet high is an impossibility, but a wave ninety feet high destroyed Callao, Peru, in 1586. Mexico, the East Indies, China, Argentina, Hawaii, the Philippines, California—these places have been the scenes of fearful disasters from earthquakes and volcanoes.

The question as to whether birds inherit their ability to build nests resembling one in which they were hatched was discussed. Wallace's theory that all forms take the peculiar kind of a nest by remembering the appearance of the nest in which it was reared and by imitation was rejected, and an instance cited of a pair of English chaffinches which, reared apart from individuals of their species, and afterward released in an enclosure, proceeded to build a characteristic chaffinch nest.

In describing the career of the Colorado potato beetle, Professor Tower relates that during the rush of gold-seekers to California in 1849 and 1850 the emigrants lost and threw away potatoes which took root, until there was a more or less continuous line of potato plants from Council Bluffs along the Platte River to the canons of the Colorado region. The beetles, which had been confined to the potato patches of the canons, took advantage of the situation, and along the highway of invasion they found the potato plants. Their triumph and destructive march eastward.

The science of clouds has attracted many devotees within the past few years, and photography has greatly assisted in advancing it. Clouds, like stars, become far more interesting to the non-scientific observer of nature when he knows the names attached to them. While the grandest and most imposing form of cloud is the domed and pinnacled cumulus which frequently accompanies thunderstorms, Cirrus clouds sometimes extend at the enormous elevations. While their mean height is about 20,000 feet—the height of Mount Everest—they have been measured at an elevation of 49,000 feet, or more than nine miles. They move with great velocity, about ninety miles an hour on the average, and in winter sometimes more than 200 miles an hour.

Some of the astronomical photographs made at the Harvard Observatory reveal the fact that in April, 1899, a new star appeared in the constellation Aquila. At first its spectrum resembled the spectra of other new stars, but in October a photograph showed that the character of the light had changed, and now its spectrum was that of a gaseous nebula. Last summer a telescopic observation of this curious object was made by Professor Wendell at Cambridge, and he confirmed the fact that the photograph showing that it had become a nebula. Such occurrences are rare, and one explanation of them is that they are the result of collisions. In space, the heat developed being sufficient to turn solid matter into gas and vapor.

Told by the Grocer. "I'll tell you how I lost a good customer the other day," said the grocer. "I have one customer who is extremely deaf, and to make her hear I have to yell at her. It takes about half an hour to get her order, and by that time my voice is pitched so high that I can't get it down to earth again."

"Yesterday it happened that after she left in came Mr. Oldboy, who is a perfect crank. Was in the army once and a great stickler for bowing and scraping and all that sort of thing; wants a fellow to trade with to sell his goods, sent arms and all kinds of things," says the Indianapolis Sentinel. "I came in and said: 'Good-morning.' He said he had heard me yell at him. My voice made the windows rattle. He looked surprised, but went on talking to me, and I kept up answering him in a voice that could be heard a block away. He got madder and madder, but never knew what was up until finally he got red in the face and said: 'Mr. Black, sir, I am not deaf, sir, and I resent your yelling at me as if I couldn't hear a cannon fired in my ear.' With that he went out."

Laws for the South. Benign paternal government is to be the general note of Southern administration in the earlier stages of its reorganization, says a Cairo correspondent. Here are a few of the chief heads of the new code just promulgated: The importation, manufacture or sale of alcoholic liquor is prohibited. No person will be allowed to sell his land or to make loans at usurious rates. Even mortgages will be subject to formal authorization. Trade, industry and navigation are free, and every chief town is a magistracy in his own district.

Andrew Lang's Versatility. No one knows how Andrew Lang gets through such a stupendous amount of work. He never works in the morning, generally takes a stroll in the afternoon and dines at five. Scores Another Victory. A Terrible Disease Conquered by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—Doctor's Efforts Had Proved Unavailing and a Cure was Despaired of. From the Journal, Mount Pleasant, Iowa.

Another person released from the terrible grasp of an agonizing disease, another name added to the long list of those who have recovered new life by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

For years a sufferer from the cruel disease of St. Vitus' Dance, scarcely able to move, the power of speech almost gone, and all efforts to cure her proving in vain, Mrs. Minnie Fiedler, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, thought her case hopeless and she had sunk to the blackest depths of despair.

She turned as a last resort to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the wonders worked by this remarkable medicine are told in her own words:

"I was afflicted for years with St. Vitus' Dance. The first symptoms of the disease began in 1889, when the nerves began twitching in my left hand. I consulted physicians of this city, but none of them ever did me a particle of good. After I had suffered for two and one half years, the disease continuing to grow worse, I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

It was in 1891 that I was induced to try them, and I took only two boxes, and was entirely cured. It was hard to realize that I, who for over two years was scarcely able to walk, and who often found it almost impossible to talk, should be restored to perfect health and in full possession of all my powers by two boxes of this wonderful remedy.

"I am happy to state that my health is still perfect and I have never had the slightest symptoms of a return of the disease, although it is eight years since I was cured.

"I know of others who have been likewise benefited and are as grateful as myself."

MRS. MINNIE FIEDLER.
