The entertainment given Friday evening in the Firemen's Hall by the "Social Club" was a complete success in every way. Cards and dancing furnished the entertainment of the evening. Delicious refreshments were served.

With an organization possessing so many pleasing features in the way of songs, dances and refined specialties, the audience should only be limited by the size of the Opera House when "A Turkish Bath" is presented tomorrow night.

Truthful statements create public confidence; public confidence creates business, and that's what we're here for. The world is wide and we are all here on business. We do our share of it because we treat our customers right. F. L. MILLER.

There was a spelling contest last Friday afternoon at the public school, between grades four and five. A book was offered as a prize for the winning pupil, and a picture as a prize to adorn the room of the grade that won. Both prizes went to the fifth grade, after quite a battle. A number of patrons of the school were present on this occasion.

It's just like this: If a mackintosh will do you a little good, three or four dollars will do us a lot of good. They are going at any old price. We would rather carry the money over next season than the mackintoshes, and they won't keep this Oregon mist off your back lying on our shelves. The time to buy is when the other fellow is anxious to sell; that is just the frame of mind we are in right now. F. L. MILLER.

A chafing dish party was given last evening by Mrs. L. L. Porter at her residence in Oregon City in honor of Miss Lulu Spangler, of Corvallis, says the Telegram. Hearts were indulged in during the first part of the evening, after which the guests divided into pairs and made chafing-dish dainties. Miss Spangler and Miss Harding favored the guests with excellent solos, and Mrs. L. L. Porter gave several musical selections on the piano. It was a late hour when the guests departed, all expressing the hope that they would have the honor of meeting Miss Spangler again. The young lady is well known in society circles in Corvallis and will leave for home in a few days.

Last Friday evening, Oregona encampment, I. O. O. F., of Albany, conferred degrees on a number of candidates. The occasion was a gala one and visiting Odd Fellows from various portions of the state were present. Those from Corvallis were: C. A. Barnhart, Wm Porter, Wm Bogue, T. J. Greighton, R. Johnson, G. M. Ream and M. H. Brunk. The exercises closed with a banquet. Those who participated from this city speak in highest terms of the treatment accorded them.

A Chitwood correspondent to the Toledo Leader says: Ralph Mason, brother of C. B., has been very ill during the past two weeks. His mother took him to Corvallis last week and placed him under the care of a physician. He was attended by two of the best doctors in town, but they decided there was no hope of his recovery, so he was brought home last Monday evening. The doctors think there is an abscess forming on his brain, but he is apparently getting better.

Prof. A. L. Knisley, chemist at the O. A. C., delivered an interesting and valuable address to those present at the Oregon Dairymen's Association, which met recently at Hillsboro. As a preface to his discourse Prof. Knisley said: "Agriculture, in the broad sense of the word, is the basis or foundation upon which all our modern development rests. At the present time the most advanced and progressive nations of the world are spending millions of dollars in studying and improving the condition of agriculture. Within the broad field of agriculture are a number of farm operations and without doubt two of the most important are those of grain growing and dairying."

A meeting of the committee on arrangements for the celebration of John Marshall day, held at the office of Yates, Yates & Gibson on last Friday evening, was attended by President Gatch of the college, Judge Burnett, E. E. Wilson, E. R. Bryson, J. N. McFadden, and other members of the Corvallis bar. It was decided to hold public exercises under the auspices of the O. A. C., at either the college chapel or armory, at 2 p. m. February 4, 1901. A program consisting of addresses by Judge John Burnett, Judge W. S. McFadden, and other features by members of the bar, and representatives from the college faculty and student body will be rendered. Music will be furnished by the Cadet band and College choir. The teachers and pupils of the public schools and the public are cordially invited to attend these exercises.

OUR CITIZENS AROUSED.

A Concerted Effort Being Made to Divide the College—Men Seek to Annex a Portion of Benton.

If ever a community was confronted with issues that would test its metal to the utmost, the people of Corvallis constitute that community, and there is every evidence that it will prove equal to the emergency. These issues involve the welfare of the city, county and state. To consider them, meetings of prominent business men and others were held in the parlors of the First National Bank, Friday and Saturday evenings of last week, and a mass meeting has been called for tomorrow night at the court house.

The matter of most vital importance to be given attention is the proposed division of the State Agricultural College. A concerted effort to this end is being made by the Union county delegation in both houses. Bills have been introduced in the house by McAlister, and in the senate by Wade, to secure the location of the "Eastern Oregon Agricultural College" at Union, the real purpose of which is to secure one-half of the funds now appropriated by congress for the support of the State Agricultural College and experiment station. They ask an appropriation of $60,000 for buildings, and $10,000 annually for maintenance, and want a board of nine regents to take charge of the institution. So determined and insidious is this attack upon this great institution, that the public and press knew nothing of the movement until the introduction of the bill in the senate on the 23rd, although the original bill had been read in the house as early as the 17th.

At the meeting in this city, Saturday evening, committees were appointed to represent the people in guarding the welfare of the college in this emergency. The sentiment of those present is embodied in the following expression by Senator Daly which appeared in Sunday's Oregonian: "It would be a great blunder for the state to cause the appropriation to be cut down, and the educational interest and labors divided with another. Rather than maintain two schools, it would be better to move the whole institution away from Corvallis, and not to endeavor to build up a rival school at its expense and at the expense of the public, both in an educational and financial sense."

Another matter of vast importance is the movement on the part of Linn county to annex a piece of territory four by seven miles, from the northern part of Benton. Councilman Gibson informed the meeting that during a recent visit to Wells, he learned that a petition had been circulated among the residents of that section, and about one hundred signatures had been secured. The inducement offered signers, was that in the event of the Albany bridge becoming a toll bridge, if they were annexed to Linn they would be given free passage over the bridge.

A committee was appointed to prepare and circulate remonstrances against the proposed legislation to be presented to the legislature. The rank injustice of robbing Benton county, already one of the smallest counties in the state, of a portion of her territory, when such a movement is opposed by practically all of her citizens, should be sufficient to defeat any action of this kind on the part of Linn county.

A resolution was also adopted declaring it to be the sense of the meeting that there is no occasion for amendments to the Corvallis city charter with reference to sewers. The latter action was taken in opposition to a charter amendment that has passed both houses which amendment restricts the powers of the council with reference to sewers. Our delegates in the legislature have been apprised of this action, and they have given assurance that nothing further shall be done in the matter until action is taken by the citizens of Corvallis.

The act is entitled "An act to amend sections 127 and 128 of chapter XI of the Corvallis city charter," and was introduced by Senator Daly.

Citizens' Meeting.

A citizens' meeting will be held at the court house, Wednesday (tomorrow) evening at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of devising means to prevent the division of the State Agricultural College, and the loss of a portion of our county. All citizens are urgently requested to be present.

Might Have Been Scrilous.

While out through the country, Saturday, buying horses, William Skipton narrowly escaped serious injury. He was driving a livery team with which he was not very well acquainted. After passing through a farm gate into the county road he left the team standing unhitched while he closed the gate. While he was in the act of doing so, the animals started in a trot, and William saw visions of a crippled team and demolished buggy. He lit running, and over-hauled the outfit just as the horses broke into a gallop. Running between the front and hind wheels, he seized the lines just as the hind wheel struck his leg and threw him. As he fell, he caught hold of the side of the buggy with one hand, but retained his grip on the lines with the other. After being dragged some distance he was able to run the horses into a fence and stop them without any damage resulting.

Mr. Skipton purchased three excellent horses Saturday, a span from Henry Dunn and an animal from Chas. Witham. All three weigh in the neighborhood of 1,500 pounds each and are five or six years old.

Inhaled Chloroform.

Prompt and heroic medical assistance saved the life of Miss Edna Irvine, Sunday afternoon. Being troubled with soreness in her nose, she had applied a chloroform liniment which had been in the house for several years. The application caused some pain, and to allay it, she reclined upon the lounge, and inhaled the chloroform evaporating from the bottle. Nearly an hour later she was found in an unconscious condition. A physician was summoned immediately, but it was with difficulty that she was restored to consciousness. About five o'clock she suffered a relapse, and her life was despaired of. Monday morning she was resting easily, and, although she is yet quite weak, it is hoped that her recovery will be speedy and permanent.

A Turkish Bath.

The announcement that the "Turkish Bath" company will be seen at the Opera House tomorrow night will be received with pleasure by all classes of our theatre-goers. The label of approval has been placed upon the play by critical audiences everywhere and the company engaged in its production is a capable collection of farceurs. It is indeed a pleasure to offer sincere commendation to an organization so delightfully free from those features which too often mar farce comedy productions and such an opportunity is offered in speaking of F. A. Wade's "Turkish Bath" company. This is the kind of entertainment to which people can take their families and the parents and child laugh together in enjoyment. Prices 35c, 50c and 75c; seats on sale at Daniel's.

Additional Local

Robert Johnson went to Eugene, yesterday, to be absent several days on business.

Miss Kate Gerhard went to Albany Saturday. It is understood that she will act as maid of honor at a wedding to occur in that city today.

A measure said to be very important, inasmuch as divorce cases are concerned, has been prepared and introduced in the legislature. It is a provision for an amendment to the code. The particular point of interest is that it will prevent people from going into other counties than their own, to secure divorces, as is now the case. When a wife goes to San Francisco on a visit, a husband can skip to Albany or some other obscure place and have a divorce and the wife would not be apprised of the fact until too late to try for alimony. The proposed measure is intended to check this method of doing business.

A Boy

Or young man having a fair education and desirous of serving ample time to learn a good trade or profession may find an opportunity by addressing P. O. Box No. 358, Corvallis, Oregon. The applicant should be steady and industrious, spending his evenings at home and not on the streets or in the various resorts. The trade referred to is along educational lines, and two or three years spent therein will afford good educational facilities for any young man, besides affording steady employment in all seasons after becoming competent. One whose home is in town preferred. Cigarette smokers need not apply.

Obituary.

James A. Cauthorn, whose death occurred last Thursday morning, was born July 7, 1838, in Essex county, Virginia, and at the time of his death was aged 62 years, 6 months and 17 days. When he was two years of age his parents moved to Missouri, where he grew to manhood. After his schooling he was employed in his father's store until 1865, when he crossed the plains to Oregon. He settled in this county and for the first three years after his arrival engaged in teaching school. He was county surveyor in 1868, and two years later he engaged in warehouse business. In this business he became one of the leaders in the handling of grain, and the commission business in general. In 1874 he ran for the office of county clerk against B. W. Wilson, but was defeated. Again, in 1895, he entered the field of politics. This time he was the democratic nominee for county judge against W. S. Hufford, by whom he was defeated. A few years ago he was afflicted with rheumatism. Since that time he was a great sufferer to the time of his death and a great deal of the time was unable to walk, even with the aid of a cane or crutches. His suffering was intense at times and were a tax on his endurance and patience, yet he bore it all with great fortitude. He made a trip to California and gave the mud baths a trial, but after several months concluded that they were unavailing and came away.

Later he went to Portland and placed himself under the care of his brother, Dr. Frank Cauthorn. At about the time he was thought to be improving Dr. Cauthorn's health failed him and he was obliged to go to Arizona in order to recuperate. James Cauthorn then came back to his Corvallis home. Here he remained until the end. He was perfectly willing for the end to come, for his long period of suffering had robbed Death of its terrors.

As a man, James A. Cauthorn was esteemed by all. He was honest and upright in all his business dealings. He appreciated and was always courteous to his friends. As a husband and father he was always kind and loving. Aside from his immediate family and relatives there is a large circle of friends who will often recall his many estimable qualities and regret that his lot was so hard during his later years. Thus has another of the pioneers of this community been removed from our midst, and although in a material form he is absent, his memory will be ever present with the living.
