

OUR DELEGATION WIDEAWAKE.

It will be gratifying for the people to know that the recent attack in the legislature looking to division of the Agricultural College and taking half the funds to operate another agricultural college in Eastern Oregon, has been for the present quieted with a fair prospect that nothing further is likely to be done. The mistake made in the governor's message, advocating that it would be justice to Eastern Oregon that the College be divided and one-half placed in Union county, operated as a great stimulus to the attack, which seemed at one time likely to grow to much magnitude. In the course of a few days our faithful senator and representative, with what help they could draw to their assistance on short notice, soon brought the governor to understand that his proposition to divide the funds appropriated by congress could not properly be done; a very natural conclusion when one stops a moment to think of the proposition. Congress appropriated the money and specified the college and in detail the methods which should govern its use. The legislature could as well attempt to pass a law saying how the fund should be divided which was recently appropriated by congress to erect a postoffice building at Salem. Both appropriations are to be used in the state of Oregon for the use of the people of Oregon, but in accordance with the acts of congress and not to be interfered with by the legislature of Oregon. Had the governor asked the attorney general or members of the board of regents of the College or any one of quite a number of other citizens of the state he could have been apprised of the error into which he was being led.

Senator John Daly and our representative Mr. R. J. Nichols, are wide awake and are doing good work for the school and guarding carefully the interests of their constituents. The people of the county should be exceedingly thankful that they have men in the legislature with the ability and activity to compete with such great odds against them. They have also been able to get the proposed division, cutting off a portion of the north end of the county, in such a shape that a present it does not seem that the interest of Benton county will be further prejudiced unless action thereon takes a different form than now expected.

THE COUNTY SHOULD PAY IT.

In the matter of establishing a free ferry across the Willamette river at Corvallis it has been said that the people of Corvallis would be the greatest immediate gainers and therefore the city should establish and maintain the ferry. Others suggest, for the same reason, that the city should pay one-half and the county the other half of the expense. On the other hand, the great majority of the people of the county, who have been heard on the subject, concede that it would be justice for the county to pay the whole expense. While it is admitted that the city would derive the greater benefit, it is urged that the precinct of which Corvallis forms the principal part, pays nearly one-half of the entire taxes of the county and that if the whole expense is paid by the county, Corvallis and the immediate vicinity will then pay one-half the expense. If the city should pay half and the county the other half, the taxpayers of Corvallis precinct would be paying three-fourths of the expense. While many of the largest taxpayers of Corvallis precinct have for years advised the county court to make liberal appropriations to build good and safe bridges all over distant parts of the county, it was not expected that anyone

... pay toll to the river at Corvallis. In the last two years two ferries and one large draw bridge was built at one of the places across the Long Tom in the south end of the county. We have not learned that any objection was raised by the taxpayers of Corvallis precinct, but they are pleased that our distant neighbors have been satisfactorily accommodated. The crossings have been made free in every other locality for the citizens of Benton county, and does it look like justice for any one to insist that the people of Corvallis shall continually be compelled to pay ferriage at the principal crossing right at their door, when Corvallis people have always advocated making free bridges all over the county and have paid nearly half of the expense? The free ferry at Corvallis is the only county improvement for ten years which the people have asked to have made at Corvallis, and it is certainly disappointing that it should not be promptly made.

Had Relatives Here.

Miss Susan Mulkey, niece of the late United States Senator J. N. Dolph, shot herself with a revolver at San Francisco, a few days ago, and died soon afterward at a hospital from the wound. She is the daughter of C. J. Mulkey, formerly special agent of the Treasury Department, and is a cousin of Councilman F. Malkey and Chester Dolph, of Portland. She was also distantly connected with the Mulkeys of this section.

Miss Mulkey and her mother had recently arrived in San Francisco from Tacoma, Wash., and their business there was to dispose of some mining property acquired by Miss Mulkey. The property was located at Nome. Her attorney made an unfavorable report regarding the property and the young lady seemed quite hysterical over the matter. At a later hour he called again and found the young lady in much the same mood. She requested her mother and the attorney to leave her to rest and quietude and she would recover. They departed and a few moments later heard a shot, and hastening back found her lying in a pool of blood with a revolver at her side. She died without giving any reason for the deed. A peculiar phase of the case is the fact that the mother and daughter registered at the Royal House, in San Francisco, under the assumed name of Mrs. Millsap and daughter. The young lady was about 20 years of age.

C. J. Mulkey, father of the dead girl, formerly special agent of the Treasury Department, was implicated in the famous smuggling case several years ago, along with other government officers, when Nat Blum was a star witness, and related such sensational testimony. Mrs. Mulkey was a sister of the late Senator Dolph.

More in Beef.

For some time various writers on agricultural and kindred pursuits have been urging the farming population to embark in the dairy business, and there is little doubt but such a move in a majority of instances would prove beneficial. The Pacific Farmer contributes the following, which gives a reason why dairying is not more generally engaged in by the valley farmers:

One of the greatest drawbacks is the fact that the farmers are not supplied with the requisite number of good milk cows to dairy successfully, there are several thousand little scrubby cows that are no good for beef or milk that should be sent to the eastern ranges to be fattened and their places supplied with a few better grade animals. The dairy cows will not increase in the Willamette valley as fast as they would naturally increase, owing to the fact that so far the farmers believe they can make more money raising beef animals at the present price, than they can in raising dairy cows, and in this respect many of them are correct, because there are far more men who have the patience to take care of beef animals than there are that have the patience to milk cows regularly night and morning.
