

Eruptions

Dry, moist, scaly, letter, all forms of eczema or salt rheum, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions proceed from humors, either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous.

The thing to do is to help the system discharge the humors, and to strengthen it against their return.

Hood's Sarsaparilla permanently cured J. G. Hines, Franks, Ill., of eczema, from which he had suffered for some time; and Miss Alvina Walter, Box 212, Algona, Wis., of pimples on her face and back and chafed skin on her body, by which she had been greatly troubled. There are more testimonials in favor of this great medicine than can be published.

The Oldest and Best.

S. S. S. is a combination of roots and herbs of great curative power, and when taken into the circulation searches out and removes all manner of poisons from the blood, without the least shock or harm to the system. On the contrary, the general health begins to improve from the first dose. S. S. S. is not only a blood purifier, but an excellent tonic, and strengthens and builds up the constitution while purging the blood of impurities. S. S. S. cures all diseases of a blood poison origin, Cancer, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Chronic Sores and Ulcers, Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Herpes and similar troubles, and is an infallible cure and the only antidote for that horrible disease, Contagious Blood Poison.

A record of nearly fifty years of successful cures is a record to be proud of. S. S. S. is more popular today than ever. It numbers its friends by the thousands. Our medical correspondence is larger than ever in the history of the medicine. Many write to thank us for the great good S. S. S. has done them, while others are seeking advice about their cases. All letters receive prompt and careful attention. Our physicians have made a life-long study of Blood and Skin Diseases, and better understand such cases than the ordinary practitioner who makes a specialty of no one disease.

We are doing great good to suffering humanity through our consulting department, and invite you to write us if you have any blood or skin trouble. We make no charge whatever for this service. AT THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

PISSO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

ARROGANCE AND SERVLITY.

Attitude of British Officers and Soldiers toward Each Other.

"The cabman and conductor would be kind to you, but they would not be respectful," quotes Mr. Howells in his recent reminiscences of James Russell Lowell, in mentioning the little ways in which Mr. Lowell, on his return from the "comfortably padded environment" of London, found America less comfortable than the country he had left.

No doubt, kindness in deed is more than respectfulness in word. Nevertheless, Mr. Lowell was not the only American who, returning from England, has missed the smoothness, ease and pleasantness in the conduct of the small affairs of life with which English respectfulness has much to do. At its best, it is the good manners of the uneducated; at its worst, it degenerates into servility.

One of the many unexpected discussions arising from the South African war touches this matter in its military aspect. The ready deference of the uneducated English private toward his officers has induced some of the officers an attitude of kindly but arrogant personal superiority. But the Colonial soldiers, although obedient and well drilled, and although they fully accept their officers' rights to command them, regard the right as professional only. They do not consider that it implies a superior manhood.

They will not endure bullying or swaggering or slanging, and they resent an attention toward them which is short, like our American soldiers, respectful and self-respectful; and the reluctant authorities have found that instead of greater independence impairing their usefulness, their greater initiative has made them more valuable than the machine-like, home-trained Tommy Atkins.

As a result, there is a growing opinion in England's semipatriotic, sentimental attitude toward her private soldiers, which has cheerily tickled them the world over as "absent-minded beggars," plucky but irresponsible, is neither wise nor fair. Tommy himself accepted it, but it was not good for him; now his spirited Colonial cousins repudiate it entirely, and England agrees that they are right—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

SHE WAS BLAMELESS.

But Circumstantial Evidence Was Very Strongly Against Her.

"My whole heart goes out to anybody who is convicted on circumstantial evidence," said the lawyer's wife. "I know how it is myself, and in my case I can't even hope for a new trial. A fortnight ago I dined out, and I happened to sit beside the guest of the evening, who is a famous author rather newly come to town. I suppose I have read every line he has ever published, and I am one of his most ardent admirers. I ventured to let him see this, and he had a most delightful talk about his newest book. I read it at the seashore this summer, and the copy I read belonged to my cousin. I told the man how much I had enjoyed it, how many times I had read and reread it, and how I felt that no book in my library was more true and valuable to me than it. I didn't lay all this on with a trowel, of course, and I meant it—every word of it. The author suggested that he'd like to write something in the book for me, and asked if he—no, come to think of it, I asked him to call, and he seemed pleased with the idea, as if I, and not he, had been the famous one. Well, I bought a copy of the book and laid it on the library table all ready for him. I was dressing one day when his card came up. I hurried down as fast as I could. Monsieur wasn't a bit as he had been at the dinner. He was cool as a November twilight, and stayed not a minute longer than civility demanded. I didn't dare suggest an autograph in the book. He didn't mention it. When he went away I picked the book up. His card was in it, and he had, with meaning, laid the card between two folds of uncut leaves. I'd forgotten to cut a leaf in the book, and never, never shall I be able to explain matters."—Washington Post.

Fables for the Fair.

There was once a Woman whose Husband Depended on the State of the Market for his Daily Toast. One Day he Appeared before Her with a Sad Countenance.

"All is Over, my Dear," said he. "Wheat is 'Way Down, and I doubt if after To-morrow we shall have more than Ten Thousand a Year to Live On. I am Sorry that I married you to Drag you Down to This, but I must Tell you Sooner or Later. I am a Ruined Man."

"I cannot," he replied, "for I have Lost my Nerve. My Friends Urge me to Throw what I Have into Copper, but I Dare Not. Five Thousand a Year would Hardly buy Croquettes for Two. I would Better Keep what I Have Saved from the Smash."

"At any rate," said she, "come Out and Have some Lunch. Let us Go to Sherry's and get a Nice Little Bird; then you will Feel Better."

"Bird!" exclaimed her Husband. "Unhappy Woman, if you see anything better than Broiled Chicken and Beef à la Mode for the Rest of Your Life, you will Do Well. In my present Frame of Mind I would Suggest a Night Lunch-cart."

"Let us have One Good Meal, at least," urged his Wife. "before We Die to the World. I have Twenty Dollars in my Purse. I will Buy our Lunch with that. After that the Night Lunch."

"Very Well, for the Last Time," replied her Husband.

They then went to an Expensive Restaurant and Ate a more than Satisfactory Luncheon. At the end of it her Husband said:

"I think Better of that Copper than I Did."

Then he went Back to Wall Street and Made Sixty Thousand Dollars in Thirty-eight Minutes.

SURE TO FOLLOW

If the Blood is Impoverished Diseases Which Often Puzzle Doctors are Inevitable.

From The Tribune, Webster City, Ia.

Physicians are often puzzled by an ailment that does not yield to the usual remedies, patients are caused much suffering and expense while experiments are being tried upon them, when in many cases the seat of the disorder is in the blood. If this vital fluid is impoverished disease is sure to follow. Build up the blood, the diseased part is nourished and strengthened, and health results. This is the simple history of what often appears to be a complicated case. Mr. Ezra Edwards, the well-known merchant of Webster City, Iowa, passed through such an experience. He says:

"I have always believed that my trouble was due to the impoverished condition of my blood. About four years ago my ankles began to swell and cause me great pain. I am quite heavy and as I was on my feet constantly I suffered intensely. Finally the swelling became so bad that I could not walk and for a week I was confined to my chair or bed. Three doctors treated me but did not effect a cure.

"I first heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People through an advertisement in a religious paper. About six months ago I began taking the pills and I felt good results from the first box. I continued taking them as directed for nearly five months. I am now 42 years old and am the picture of health. I am willing to tell the world that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured me and I know they will cure others if they are given a thorough trial.

"Hardly a day passes that I do not tell some one of the benefits I have received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I think that any one suffering from any disorder of the blood or nerves should give them a thorough trial. Signed, EZRA EDWARDS. Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23rd day of November, 1900. THE UNSPEAKABLE TURK.

He Scorns All Effort but Military Service and Agriculture. A Turk thinks it the most natural thing in the world to lose a province, and, having lost it, to quit and live elsewhere. He is not quite complacently leaving Constantinople some day; he will go over to Asia and found another capital. He originates nothing; he takes what he finds without assimilating it, and remains profoundly Turkish. He leaves no trace of his occupation except ruins. Practically there is nothing at Belgrade, Sofia, and Athens to show that for centuries they were Turkish cities.

All occupations, except agriculture and military service, are distasteful to him. Yet there are two other characteristics even more important than these. The first is his sense of discipline. It is this which keeps together the apparently tottering fabric of the Turkish empire. It makes the half-dressed soldier ready to endure every privation, and prevents the corruption and ineptitude of the officers from producing the anarchy which would be inevitable in any other country. Sedition is unknown; even complaints are rare, and were a holy war proclaimed there is not a man who would not be prepared to die in defense of the system of extortion which grinds him down.

His second characteristic is his laziness, in spite of the laborious industry of the Turkish peasant. The fact is that the Turk is too proud to do many things, too stupid to do others. His religion inculcates a fatalism which tends to a conviction that effort is useless.—London Telegraph.

A Western inventor has patented an apparatus for dispensing ice cream, which is more convenient than those now in use, consisting of a central tube in which the cream is placed, with a sliding bottom, which is forced up, to push the cream through an opening, to be cut in slices.

In an improved paddle-wheel for steamers the blades are made to retain a vertical position at all points of their revolution, the wheel being composed of two disks carried by separate shafts, the center of one shaft being higher than the other and the blades being pivoted on both disks.

Revelations made recently regarding Bombay municipal elections show that Hindoo election agents can excel the wildest achievements in Europe or America. It is discovered to be a common practice to dress up lads to impersonate female ratepayers who are either dead or are reluctant to vote. In many other cases women are hired to represent such voters. Persuasion by men of male voters who are dead or traveling is too common to excite remark. The most amazing discovery is that there is now a class of men who call themselves "professional vote-brokers" and openly undertake to secure votes at a fixed price a head.—Bombay Letter.

GOLD HOARDED BY MISERS.

Millions of Yellow Coins Disappear Annually from Circulation.

The world is full of millions and millions of long-lost sovereigns. A competent authority has just completed some investigations which, he declares, show that in three years the Bank of England has lost trace of no fewer than 20,000,000 golden coins of the realm. This wholesale disappearance of the elusive sovereign has been going on for years. A river of gold has flowed ceaselessly from Threadneedle street to all parts of the world, but it has come back only as a tiny yellow streamlet. What has become of the surplus in its wanderings? "Misers" is the unpoetical explanation for a great part of this disappearance. There still exist in this and other countries people who are unbusinesslike enough to hoard up gold and keep it lying idle by them for the sole pleasure of knowing it is there and occasionally counting it.

The people of India appear to be particularly addicted to a habit that is more reminiscent of medieval times than of an age when money is generally saved so that more can be made with it. In the city of Bombay it is estimated that 12,000,000 golden sovereigns are hoarded. If that is the full tale for the whole country? China, too, absorbs a vast amount of gold that never sees the light again. As a matter of fact, while the whole world is searching for and trying to acquire gold, a goodly part of it appears to be engaged in the less thrilling pastime of hiding it away.

Great Britain is not guiltless of this commercial sin. Dotted all over the kingdom are graveyards of gold which, if discovered and opened, might restore to circulation a vast amount of wealth at present absolutely useless. At a spot about two miles from Herefordshire Beacon a treasure chest is recorded in the local history as having been buried by a great family once resident in the district. But the money cannot be found. There is a similar record in connection with Hulme Castle, formerly a seat of a branch of the Prestwich family. Somewhere near Stokesley Castle, Shropshire, there is believed to be hidden a great treasure chest filled with gold coins, but up to the present all efforts to find it have ended in failure.—London Daily Mail.

EPIDEMIC OF GRIP

WORST EVER KNOWN.

GRIP BACILLUS EVERYWHERE—IN THE AIR WE BREATHE, IN THE WATER WE DRINK, IN THE FOOD WE EAT.

Hundreds of car loads of Peruna are shipped in all directions to meet the extraordinary demand of the grip epidemic.

Every body laying in a stock of this valuable remedy in time to meet the terrible enemy, the Grip. The extensive facilities of the manufacturers taxed to their utmost to meet the urgent demand for Peruna.

Almost everybody has the grip. Almost everybody must have Peruna. Taken at the appearance of the first symptoms of the grip, not only is Peruna a prompt cure for the grip but it prevents those disastrous after effects so characteristic of this dread disease.

Peruna not only cures the grip but prevents its return. Taken in time thousands of lives will be saved in this present epidemic. Every family should take the precaution to secure a supply of Peruna at once, for the retail and wholesale stock of the remedy may be exhausted by the enormous demand for it.

It is wisdom to have Peruna in the house even before the grip attacks the household. It has been ascertained by a reporter that the following people of national reputation have given public endorsement and testimonials to Peruna as a remedy for the grip:

Congressman Howard of Alabama, says: "I have taken Peruna for the grip and recommend it as an excellent remedy to all feeble-sufferers." Congressman White, of North Carolina, says: "I find Peruna to be an excellent remedy for the grip. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it."

Miss Frances M. Anderson, of Washington, D. C., daughter of Judge Anderson, of Virginia, says: "I was taken very ill with the grip. I took Peruna and was able to leave my bed in a week."

Mrs. Harriette A. S. Marsh, president of the Women's Benevolent Association, of Chicago, writes: "I suffered with grip seven weeks. Nothing helped me. Tried Peruna and within three weeks was fully restored. Shall never be without it again."

At the appearance of the first symptoms of the grip people should stay in bed and take Peruna in small doses (teaspoonful every hour) until the symptoms disappear. This will prevent a long, disastrous sickness and perhaps a fatal result.
