LOCAL NEWS.

"The Black Flag" tonight. It is pretty near sheep-shearing time.

New wash goods arrived today, at Kline's. See Kline's show window—elegant line of new shirts.

F. Klecker, of Alsea, was in Corvallis the last of the week.

Workmen are repairing the stairway of the Allen & Farris brick. A local teachers' institute will convene in this city next Friday.

Miss Alice Headrick, who has been seriously ill in Salem, is reported to be convalescent.

An exchange says that you must not judge man by his clothes, and adds, "a ragged pair of pants may cover an honest man's heart." Comment is unnecessary.

Our new spring dress goods, wash fabrics, white goods, ribbons, laces, embroideries, and dress trimmings have arrived.

NOLAN & CALLAHAN.

Mrs. T. J. Creighton and Mrs. J. M. Cameron went to Astoria, Saturday, to see their brother, James Graves. The latter is critically ill and doubt is entertained regarding his recovery.

Mrs. Esther Reid, of the O A C returned from Portland last Thursday. She went to the metropolis to take the junior examination in pharmacy. She passed a very creditable examination.

Horseback riding is losing its charm for Jack Arnold and Bruce Burnett. They rode two of the roughest steeds in Oregon over to Albany, Sunday. Everything indicates that they rode too far.

A number of Corvallis singers are rehearsing "Elijah" and the "Creation" under the direction of Prof. Fulton, of the O A C. The public rendition of these oratorios will take place in Alsea next May.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Dilley arrived home on the Saturday night boat from Portland, where they had been for a brief pleasure trip. Mr. Dilley says this was his first trip to Portland in about eighteen years and reports having a most delightful time.

In accordance with instructions from the city council, Chief of Police Flett canvassed the various saloons of the city, Thursday, and ordered them to close on Sundays hereafter. Consequently, there was a very dry St. Patrick's day last Sunday.

Addie J. McClure wants a divorce from Robert L. McClure, whom she married at Corvallis, Oregon, October 14, 1888. Her husband went fishing in February, 1900, and has never returned. She asks for the custody of the four children.—Oregon City Enterprise.

The largest individual consignment of eggs that has left Corvallis in many a day was the shipment of 840 dozen, Saturday, by F. L. Miller. During the week he shipped 32 cases to Portland. Beyond doubt Corvallis is the best place in the valley today for the farmer to market his produce. Our merchants have been furnishing a first-class market of late for eggs.

Arrangements have been perfected for a game of indoor baseball at Albany next Friday or Saturday. The exact date is not settled. The contesting teams will consist of men from this city and Albany. The home team will be composed of the following players: C. E. Small, p; Alex Rennie, c; Arthur Derby, 1st b; H. M. Duke, 2nd b; Wm. Scott, 3rd b; Herbert Lieber, 1st s; James Hartley, 2nd s; Arthur Bier, r f; Mart McAllister, 1f. A good game is promised.

The ladies of the Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church held their annual election of officers on the 13th inst., at the home of Mrs. J. H. Simpson. The meeting was well attended and the following officers were elected: Mrs. J. W. Crawford, president; Mrs. W. A. Heckart, secretary; Mrs. J. H. Harris, treasurer. The society is in a healthy and flourishing condition and the reports for the past year indicate that its work throughout that period was highly successful in every particular.

W. A. Sanders, THE watchmaker. Lace curtains 85c on the dollar at Kline's.

Before you sell your mohair, see F. L. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Thayer, now of Salem, visited in Corvallis, Sunday.

Our new tailor-made suits, shoulder capes, shirt waists and separate skirts will arrive this week.

NOLAN & CALLAHAN.

It sounds pretty big to speak of having 7,100 rolls of wall paper, but that's the size of our stock.

C. A. BARNHART.

We have an elegant line of up-to-date wall paper, in all designs and at all prices. We have bought it to sell. It's at The Paint Store, C. A. Barnhart, proprietor.

W. H. Buoy departed this morning for his homestead on Spencer creek, accompanied by Dr. Gale Hill, of Albany. The latter has a homestead on the Siletz, which he will visit before returning.—Lincoln Leader.

Collection of toll on the wagon bridge at Albany over the Willamette went into effect yesterday. A gate has been built across the east approach of the bridge, and a house has been erected nearby for the use of the toll-keeper.

Mr. George Pratt, a former O A C student, now an advanced scholar of Albany College under care of the Presbytery of the Willamette, passed through our city yesterday on his homeward trip from Newport, where he filled, most acceptably, the pulpit of the Presbyterian church on Sabbath last.

A short business meeting of the Citizens' League was held at the court house Saturday night. A committee was appointed to confer with the county court with a view to determining the boundary line between Lane and Benton counties, now in dispute. The League meets again the first Monday in April.

The annual gymnastic exhibition by the young ladies and gentlemen of the agricultural college, given in the O A C gymnasium last Saturday evening, was quite largely attended. The work of the various classes was very clever and evidenced careful and painstaking direction by their instructors, Miss Crawford and Mr. Patterson.

Married, in Fossil, Or., March 5, 1901, Rev. J. M. Lawson officiating, Mr. E. Whitehead and Mrs. Vina McKalvey. The wedding was private, only the immediate relatives being present. Many friends wish them all the joy possible in the married state.—Fossil Journal. Mr. Whitehead is quite well known in this county, having been a resident of Philomath for years. He is a shoemaker by trade and is running a shop in Fossil at present; he also has a stock farm in that section. Mr. Whitehead is a nephew of E. Walden, of this city.

A mass meeting of all the Young People's societies of the city will be held in the Congregational church, Tuesday evening, March 19th, at 7:30. The purpose of the meeting is to complete the permanent organization of a Young People's Union, to promote aggressive Christian work among the young people of our city, and to create and maintain a more fraternal feeling between the different societies. A hearty response is hoped for on the part of the young people of this congregation. L. MYRON BOOZER, Temporary Chairman.

The regents of the Oregon Agricultural College have secured Prof. A. B. Leckenby to take charge of the experiment station at Union, Oregon. Mr. Leckenby has extraordinary qualifications for investigating all questions relating to the introduction of grasses and forage plants, and the most important of all agricultural problems in Eastern Oregon at the present time is to restore the pastures and increase the capacity of the country to support live stock. Prof. Leckenby is already familiar with the conditions of Eastern Oregon, and will enter upon the experimental work at once.—Rural Northwest.

We are in receipt of a communication from Prof. J. B. Horner, of the Oregon Agricultural College, in which that gentleman expresses a desire to meet the citizens of Newport for the purpose of discussing the question of opening the Summer School for the coming season, and for the purpose of considering and discussing the matter Friday evening at the council room at 7:30 o'clock. We earnestly hope that our citizens will turn out and fully demonstrate their appreciation of the efforts of Prof. Horner in this very important matter, and give the movement their united moral support.—Yaquina Bay News.

A WEEK'S ENGAGEMENT.

Frank Cooley and a Company of Glover People Now Playing at the Opera House.

The Frank Cooley Co. made good all promises at the Opera House last night. The performance of "Lost Paradise" was excellent in every particular and greatly pleased the large audience present. Mr. Cooley and company are a band of earnest and painstaking actors who leave nothing undone in their effort to please. Tonight they present that great English melo-drama "The Black Flag," a play which is full of heart interest and pathos and also affords ample room for some excellent comedy work. Wednesday night an elaborate production of John Drew's beautiful comedy "The Butterflies". The prices are only 10, 20, and 30c, and every one who likes instructive and refined amusement should take advantage of the opportunity and attend every night.

GLADYS KINGSBURY, Leading Lady of The Cooley Company.

From the Philippines.

Jesse B. Lawrence, of Eugene, now a bugler of Co. K, 35th U. S. Vol. Inf., now in the Philippine islands, has written quite a letter to the Eugene Guard for publication. The writer stated that many of the natives of the islands would like to assume friendly relations with the Americans, but did not dare to as they feared their own people. We print the following extract from the letter:

In the towns that I have been during the last dry season, many natives have expressed a desire to help Americans. However, most of them do not come out openly, yet there are some who do. I suppose the public in general often wonder why it is that the insurrection still continues with such force. This can easily be explained. The present forces, except in a few cases, are not found under arms. The guns are safely hidden in rice paddies, swamps and bamboo thickets until an attack is planned. Then the natives, or soldiers, uncover their weapons and assemble at a specified place, which is always under cover. So you can see that our forces are kept at a very great disadvantage. Without the aid of a few natives, who can go among the insurgents' lines and learn their moves, or places of concealment of guns, we are entirely ignorant of their whereabouts. Only during the past few months have we had such natives. Wonders have been accomplished, too. If this new Filipino army can be organized it will do more than the entire American forces. At the present state of affairs a native that turns traitor to his people is very apt to come up missing some morning.

Put His Foot In It.

Nearly everybody, both old and young, have read the tales of the "Arabian Nights." Those who are posted will recall the charming little story of the glass merchant, or rather, peddler, who passed from house to house with his basket of glassware. How he sat down on a door-step, with his basket of ware at his feet, and indulged in one of those "day dreams" that are often of rare sweetness, but generally subject to a rude awakening. The merchant in question, in his dream, multiplied his profits until they assumed great proportions and he erected "air castles" of such splendor that he concluded it behooved a man of his standing to take unto himself a wife. The wife of his "dream" disobeyed him and went to kick her, when lo! in reality he kicked his basket of glassware over and ruined its contents. In an instant he was himself again, face to face with its realities.

He had "put his foot in it." Men have been raising all sorts of "old Ned" ever since with the pedals, large and small. A boy or two ago a good farmer and his wife came over from Linn county to do some trading. They had a basket containing twenty dozen eggs. The gentleman went into a certain business house and asked the price of eggs. On learning what he could get per dozen he passed out, stating that he would see his wife and ascertain what she thought about it. Time passed and he did not return. The merchant was busy and soon forgot the farmer with the eggs, or concluded that his wife had made up her mind to trade elsewhere. Later it was learned that he had climbed into the wagon to get the eggs, and in moving about, unmindful of the frailness of Linn county egg shells, had put one of his No. 10's into the basket. Consternation and confusion reigned for a brief time. His boot looked as though he had stirred a cake with it. Like the Arabian merchant he had "put his foot in it." No further business was done that day and the farmer and his wife drove home in silence.

Doing the Grand.

The young ladies of O A C's senior class entertained the young men of their class in Miss E. J. Chamberlain's rooms at the college, Friday evening. A feature of the affair was that the young ladies acted as escorts to and from the place of entertainment. Some of the boys were evidently very bashful, for the young ladies found a few gates wired. One instance is recorded where a young lady had to climb the fence to reach the house. The girls were a little afraid of the "dark" and it is said that each one carried a lantern. However, the party was a great success in every way. Games, music, guessing-matches and delicious refreshments combined to make an evening seem quite brief. It is quietly reported that one young lady, whose heart failed her when the hour arrived that she was to sally forth and escort the young man to the party, was given a ducking in bathtub Saturday night; this being understood to be the punishment to be meted out to any young lady who showed the "white feather."

Over 103 Years Old.

The following dispatch from Albany appears in Sunday's Oregonian:

"This is the birthday of Albany's oldest citizen, Patrick Brennan, who was born in Ireland, March 16, 1798, and hence has seen three centuries. He came to the United States in 1835, locating in Texas, going from there to New Orleans, where he resided until 1852, when he came to the Pacific Coast. He has visited nearly all parts of the coast, including the Frazier river. He located in Albany about 30 years ago, and declares today that he never felt better, though during his residence here he fell 50 feet from the top of a flouring mill to the ground."

"Old Pat," as he is familiarly known, has many acquaintances in Corvallis, where he visited some four or five years ago. He is a typical son of the "ould sod," and a more honest, kindly heart than Pat's never beat in human breast.

Bids for Wood.

Sealed proposals for furnishing wood for the State Agricultural College at Corvallis, Oregon, will be received by the undersigned up to 3 o'clock p. m. Saturday, April 6, 1901.

The Western Hills.

A gentleman was up from Salem a few days ago with a view to securing an option on the output of the apple orchards during the coming season. He stated that he had just been over on the west side of the summit of the Coast range of mountains. While over there he visited the Bristow apple orchard near Summit. He was delighted with samples of last year's crop, and stated that he had never seen finer Baldwins. These apples were reported to be firm-meated and free from worms, and such a deep red color that they almost looked black. The gentleman was quite enthusiastic in his praise of the country lying on the western slope of this range of mountains the entire length of the Oregon coast and predicted that some day it would be the greatest apple-producing section in the state.

Few people realize what these ranges will look like twenty-five years hence. Much of the timber will have been cut away by the large lumbering companies. In fact there is unusual activity among lumbering men at the present time to secure timber rights. They will help in a large measure to clear up the land, which will then be taken in hand by the agriculturists, horticulturists and dairymen. It will be an even break between the horticulturists and dairymen who will take this section in hand. The man who secures a homestead in these Coast ranges will never have cause to regret such a move.

To Star in Badger Game.

Fayne Strahan Moore, the daughter of Oregon's late chief justice, R. S. Strahan, who has acquired so much notoriety in both America and Europe during the past few years, has been during the past season appearing at the Gaiety Theatre, London, under the name of "Madeline Wilson" in Messenger Boy. It is now stated that she is about to return to America, after dazzling London and Paris and will blaze forth in the theatrical world as a star of more or less brilliancy, appearing in a dramatization of the incidents of her New York career that gave her so much newspaper notoriety, and badger-trial fame.

A deal has practically been closed whereby she will appear in this country next season as a star. The managers rely on the third act of the lurid melo-drama to score its success. In this act Mrs. Moore, who assumes the role of an adventures, will enact as nearly as possible, the alleged badger game, of which the late George C. Mahon complained in court.

NOLAN & CALLAHAN.

Oliver Blackledge left yesterday for Newport. He will look over the field en route, with an eye to building up a trade in the towns between Corvallis and the coast in the interest of J. D. Mann & Co., which firm he is representing. He will be absent about a week.

The death of Mrs. Luina Jane Croft occurred at her home east of Corvallis, Sunday, Mrs. Croft was born December 10, 1851. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. E. Henderson at the family residence at 11 a. m. yesterday, and interment occurred at the Odd Fellows cemetery.

Bicycle paths will this year be used only by wheelmen who are willing to pay a tax of $1 towards their maintenance. This is the latest construction placed upon the law enacted by the state legislature at its late session. While the law was passed too late to permit of the path levy, the provision of the act restricting the privileges of bicycle paths to those who pay the tax is plain. There is no question about this feature of the law, and cyclists know that their use of paths without the payment of the $1 tax lays them liable to prosecution. The sheriff is allowed nothing for collecting these taxes, nor are his deputies allowed anything for making arrests for violations. A penalty of $5 is in store for those violating the law.

For 50 Years mothers have been giving their children for croup, coughs and colds. Three Questions. Before purchasing a piano or organ there are a few questions it is well to consider. First: Is the instrument made to use or simply to sell? Second: Is the tone, action and finish first class? Third: Is the price reasonable? Cheap instruments are expensive at any price. Why? Because they never give satisfaction, being constructed of the cheapest material hastily thrown together. To secure the value of your money there is one certain way. Buy an instrument which has not only an established reputation for years, but which has kept up with every improvement of modern times. If you then would like such an instrument with a tone, action and finish unsurpassed, I have them, and can furnish you any at the lowest price. Call around. MORDAUNT GOODENOUGH. Posts and Fencing. The Corvallis Sawmill Co. have just received a carload of split cedar posts, the very finest posts on earth. Buyers are invited to inspect this stock before purchasing elsewhere.
