Manner of Operating.

In a recent article on dairying Prof. F. L. Kent, of O A C, makes the following statement relative to the methods of operating creameries and cheese factories.

Among the proprietary concerns probably the more common method of dealing with the patrons is the charging of a stipulated price for each pound manufactured.

The mention in Mr. Holgate's letter that Senator Simon and Representative Moody are especially sought out by the special correspondents of the Oregonian and their doings chronicled in a more friendly and elaborate way than the acts of the other members from Oregon is very indiscreet.

Our members, however, are able men and from present indications it seems likely that they will move along united, to accomplish good work for Oregon.

Small beginnings in life often lead to great ends. Hon. C. W. Fulton began his career in Oregon years ago as a country school teacher.

or all classes of people of Oregon. The Albany Herald relates the following interesting story of Mr. Fulton's first appearance:

Perhaps not many people know it, but Hon. C. W. Fulton, president of the Oregon senate, formerly taught school in Linn county. Along back in 1876 a young man landed in Albany and hunted up the county school superintendent, at that time Hon. J. K. Weatherford.
