
At this season the housekeeper must look specially after the baking powder.

As she cannot make good cake with bad eggs, no more can she make cake that is light, delicious and dainty with inferior baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable for the preparation of the finest food. It imparts that peculiar lightness, sweetness and flavor noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, doughnuts, crusts, etc., which expert bakers say is unobtainable by the use of any other leavening agent.

The "Royal Baker and Pastry Cook"—containing over 800 most practical and valuable cooking receipts—free to every patron. Send postal card with your full address.

There are cheap baking powders, made from alum, but they are exceedingly harmful to health. Their astringent and cauterizing qualities add a dangerous element to food.

SAVED BY A PUFF OF WIND.

A Merchant Who Escaped Robbery Through an Unforeseen Accident.

"If the truth were known," said the head of a large wholesale house of this city, "I dare say we would be startled at the number of men of affairs in any large place who habitually sign letters and other documents without reading them. They become convinced that it is physically impossible to even glance at everything requiring signature and resign themselves to the necessity of 'trusting somebody.' I used to have that idea myself," continued the wholesaler, "but it was exploded by rather a startling incident, and since then I have never set my pen to an unfamiliar paper. The affair to which I refer occurred years ago, when I was in the manufacturing business in another city. We had an enormous mail that grew larger every day, and while I dictated very few answers myself I made it a rule to sign all outgoing letters as president of the company.

"Sometimes there would be several hundred in a batch, and my confidential clerk, in whom I had the most implicit trust, finally got to bringing the in with the ends overlapped, so all could see was a succession of lines for my signature. I didn't like the plan, but it seemed the only way of getting rid of the job, and I would grab a pen and slap down a succession of autographs at lightning speed. Of course I was kept advised as to the general character of the mail, but unless some question was raised I never thought of taking out a letter and reading it. One winter day—I will never forget it as long as I live—the clerk brought in an unusually big batch of letters to be signed and was about to deposit the sheaf on my desk, when somebody opened an outside door and let in a severe blast of wind. Fully half the sheets were blown over the room and some went into the fire. The old clerk instantly dropped on his knees and began collecting the papers in frantic haste. I was astonished at his excitement and especially at his agitation when he failed to find some of the lot. 'Why, a dozen or so were burned,' I said, and at last he went away, very reluctantly, to prepare copies.

"When he left the room my stenographer handed me a sheet that had blown under his desk. It was an order on my banker for my safe deposit box, which contained at that time over $35,000 in currency. I was dumfounded and while I was trying to decide what to do my dear old confidential clerk quietly walked out a side door and was never heard of again. I think the order was merely one document of several, all covering an elaborate scheme to loot the concern, but, be that as it may, I had my lesson and since then I have never been too busy to read a letter before signing it. I find it can be done easily enough by the use of a little system."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

PRINCE AND CLERGYMAN.

Wales' View of a Man Who Never Picked a Winning Horse.

Anecdotes of the new sovereign of Great Britain will doubtless be popular for some time to come—at least until the novelty of his accession shall have worn away. A short time ago he was staying at a friend's country place in the West of England, where, among the guests, was a somewhat conceited, straight-laced, and interfering clergyman. Entering the billard-room one morning shortly after breakfast the person found his royal highness deeply interested in a sporting paper. Instead of retiring at once, as any man of tact would have done, the clergyman forced himself upon the prince.

"Might I ask your highness if such a paper as you are reading really interests you?" said he.

"I am not in the habit, sir, of reading what does not interest me," said the prince very rigidly, and then turned again to his paper.

The parson, however, determined to have his say, continued in a somewhat dramatic tone of voice:

"Don't you think, your royal highness, that horse racing and betting are a great curse to this country? Now, what would your royal highness think of a man (alas, once a friend of mine) who lost $50,000 through betting? He told me himself that he never won $500 in his life through backing horses. What would your royal highness think of such a man?"

The prince, disgusted, said very quietly: "What do I think of such a man? Well, I will tell you, sir. I think him a mighty bad judge of horseflesh!"—London Express.

Freak Signs in New York.

Along Broadway, New York, when the day is fine and the streets are thronged, the thrifty shopman hangs out a sort of a cart du jour which, with its staring black and white letters, compels regard, and if there are no stops of the speeding car the impression made by these placards is uncommonly amusing.

"Washable Boys' Suits!" allows the mind to dwell for a moment upon the possibilities if boys were not washable.

"Half Off—Men's and Boys' Suits!" A nearer view might show a temporizing per cent, but the flying car makes no allowances.

'Society for the Encouragement of Wearing Clean Shirts!" The purification committee flashes in and out of mind, and for small favors the voice rises in thanksgiving.

"Dinners Ten Cents and Up!" And why not, if it really is not worth more.

"Wear One of Our $5 Suits and You Will Have a Fit!" one firm tersely and facetiously puts it.

"Ladies Skirts Rebounded!" is the encouraging promise lettered by a little Polish tailor unacquainted with the intricacies of our tongue.

Requirements for Citizenship.

Until a few years ago Minnesota accorded the right of suffrage to civilized Indians certified by district courts to be fit for the exercise of the suffrage. In Florida a requirement of suffrage was enrollment in the local militia. Tennessee provided that persons of color who were competent witnesses in a court of justice against a white man might vote in that State.

There are half a dozen ways of doing everything, but there is always one way better than any of the others.

What Will Become of China?

None can foresee the outcome of the quarrel between foreign powers over the division of China. It is intcsesting to watch the going to pieces of this ancient but unprogressive race. Many people in America are also going to pieces because of dyspepsia, constipation, blood, liver and stomach diseases, We are living too fast, but strength, vigor and good health can be retained if we keep off and cure the above diseases with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

SAW DARK SPOTS

A Victim of Biliousness and Inflamatory Rheumatism Tells How He Became Free From Disease.

A recommendation that is not based upon experience is without value but in the following interview the reader will at once recognize the force of advice that is the result of personal knowledge.

Mr. Ned Yerkes Hawley is a traveling man whose home is at 1926 W. Boon Ave., Spokane, Wash. He has recently had an experience of more than general interest and in an interview with a representative of the Spokesman-Review, of Spokane, he said:

"In June, 1899, I became bilious and subject to dizzy spells. I had no appetite, my heart seemed to flutter at times and beat irregularly, and dark spots seemed to float before my eyes. This continued for about six months. During that time I was troubled with lameness in my back and pains over my kidneys. I was under a physician's care and he told me my trouble was biliousness and inflammatory rheumatism. I was in bed for over four weeks and did not seem to be getting any better.

"One day I saw an advertisement in which it was stated that a case similar to mine had been cured by Dr. William's Pink Pills for Pale People. I procured some of the pills and within two weeks the inflammatory rheumatism which had become very acute and caused me the most intense suffering, was entirely cured.

"You will therefore realize that I am a firm believer in Dr. William's Pink Pills. They cured me and I am so sure that they will prove equally valuable in other cases that I have recommended them to a great many people."

NED YERKES HAWLEY.

Dr. William's Pink Pills for Pale People are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Sold by all dealers, or sent direct from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Easily Adjusted.

"Pardon me," said the busy man to the insurance agent who had forced his way into the office, "but I am not prepared to talk to you today."

"Don't let that worry you," replied the insurance agent, "I'll do the talking."—Philadelphia Press.

AUTHORS AS GOOD WALKERS.

William and Mary Howitt, the Widely Known Writers.

It is said that the best footmates of the nineteenth century were William and Mary Howitt, the writers of so many charming bits of literature. They began to walk on their wedding day, and kept on walking during nearly sixty years of married life.

In 1824, when walking was far from fashionable, this sturdy Quaker pair walked 500 miles among the Scotch mountains, carrying necessary luggage on their strong young backs. They climbed Ben Lomond, waded streams, crawled over bogs, scrambled through bracken, and slid down sheer defiles in the course of this wild tramp. Doubtless the peasants fancied they were mad.

In the fifty-first year of their married life, when Mrs. Howitt was over 70 and her husband almost 80, they started out one summer morning to climb an Alp of the Tyrol. From the village of Taufers they climbed a road too steep for vehicles, walking steadily for five hours.

At dusk they came to a farmer's chalet; there they were cordially invited to supper, and there for two nights they slept on the sweet, fresh hay in the barn, and employed the days in twice climbing to the mountain top.

An excursion which had been planned for William Howitt's birthday, after he had passed his eightieth year, was reluctantly abandoned because of the rain. A year or two later his wife wrote:

"Father and I have just come in from a pleasant walk right into the country, amongst picturesque houses and such ancient orchards and parklike fields scattered over with grand old Spanish chestnuts."

Mr. Howitt died in 1879, aged 84 years. For a few years more his faithful footmate took quiet strolls and gathered the flowers her husband loved. And when she had lived to see eighty-nine years she gently fell asleep.—Youth's Companion.

LONG TRAMP WHILE ASLEEP.

Kentucky Man Walks Ten Miles Without Being Aware of It.

Mack Sublette, a well-known young man, boards at the Dean house, in Versailles, Ky. His father, Arthur Sublette, lives five miles south of Versailles, on McCowan's ferry turnpike. When Sublette started to his room, between 11 and 12 o'clock the other night, he remarked to a friend:

"My sister is very sick, and I ought to have gone home to-night. I'll drive out to-morrow."

He went to sleep at once. At 1 o'clock in the morning a policeman met Sublette walking hurriedly toward McCowan's ferry road. He hailed him and received no reply. About 2 o'clock Sublette walked into his father's house and to his sister's bedside, inquired how she was, conversed with his stepmother some minutes, and before the family was aware of it he left the house. He walked back to Versailles and returned to bed at the hotel.

When Sublette awoke at 6 o'clock the next morning he was footsore and exhausted, but knew nothing of his nocturnal jaunt until, according to his plan, he drove to his father's, and they questioned him about hurrying off in the night.

Sublette ridiculed the idea of having been there until the family's evidence was supported by that of his roommate, who missed him, the testimony of Policeman Albert Curtis, who met him in the street, and his own blistered feet and exhausted body.

Stormy Inauguration Days.

Presidents have in many cases been loath to depart from traditional customs or to disappoint the throng gathered for the inauguration ceremony, and in some cases have seriously endangered their health by insisting upon taking the oath of office in the open air, regardless of the state of the weather. It was such an adherence to precedent that brought on the cold which resulted in the death of William Henry Harrison. President Lincoln had the most inclement of inauguration days, as did also General Grant. President Benjamin Harrison was almost hidden from the crowd by an umbrella when he took the oath of office, and the natal day of President Cleveland's second term was characterized by the appearance of a full-fledged blizzard. Presidents Hayes and McKinley were indeed the only chief executives who in recent years have been smiled upon by sunny skies. —Conkey's Home Journal.

Where Women Propose.

There are some curious customs connected with marriage in the Torres Straits Archipelago. It is almost universally the woman who proposes. Having found a young man to her liking, the girl makes a string armlet and gives it to his sister, who acts as a go-between. A meeting is arranged in the bush, and a harmless conversation takes place, during which, however, the following questions and replies, in some form or other, will probably be made: He: "Do you like me proper?" She: "Yes, I like you with my heart and eye, You are my man I like you altogether." The wedding day is fixed then and there for no distant date. —Conkey's Home Journal.

Unlucky.

"My wife has an impediment in her speech," said the man with the gray temples.

"Lucky man," said the man with the brown chin whiskers.

"Don't you believe it. She has just as much to say on certain occasions as any woman would have and it takes her twice as long to get through."—Indianapolis Press.

UNITED STATES SENATOR ROACH

Says: Peruna has greatly helped me in strength, vigoo and appetite.

Hon. W. N. Roach U. S. senator from North Dakota, in a letter written from Larimore, North Dakota, says:

U. S. Senator Roach, of North Dakota.

"Persuaded by a friend I have used Peruna as a tonic and am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."

glance at the history of Peruna.

Never before in the history of medicine has any remedy received so many endorsements from people of national importance, as Peruna.

The explanation of this remarkable circumstance can only be found by a

In the first place, it should be noted that catarrh is one of the most prevalent and universal maladies known to medical science. Nearly everybody has catarrh in some degree or phase.

In the second place, it should be noted that Peruna is the only scientific, internal catarrh remedy yet devised.

This explains the almost universal use of Peruna. Everybody uses Peruna, high and low, rich and poor, great and small. Peruna has fought its way out from among the host of catarrh remedies, and stands unique and alone today as the catarrh remedy par excellence. By its well-earned merits it has attracted the attention of the greatest, and the busiest, and the wisest people. It is equally applicable to all ages, to both sexes, and to every climate.

Nothing in the history of medicine has ever equalled the growth of this remarkable remedy. Catarrh has become a national disease. Peruna has become a national remedy. Dr. Hartman, the inventor of Peruna, has become the best known physician in the United States.

All this is explained by the fact that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Catarrh is liable to attack any organ of the human body. Catarrh is not a local disease, but a systemic disease. Peruna is not a local remedy, but a systemic remedy. Peruna cures catarrh by eradicating it from the system.

Such cures are not temporary but permanent.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.
