W. H. Hamersly, of Corvallis, has purchased the Roseburg Kandy Kitchen, and will take charge this evening. He will remove his family here just as soon as he can find a house.—Roseburg Review.

There were 21 candidates for certificates at the teachers' examination held by Supt. Denman last week. How many were successful is not known yet, as the papers have not all been passed upon.

Miss Maggie Daniel, of McMinnville, arrived in Corvallis, Thursday. She will remain for an indefinite period and help nurse her cousin, Miss Beryl Daniel, who is lying dangerously ill in this city.

Miss Leona Smith arrived home last week on a brief vacation. She will resume her musical studies at St. Helens Hall and will remain there until June. She is studying violin, piano and harmony and is making fine progress.

B. W. Johnson, accompanied by W. S. Gardner, the photographer, made a tour of the Beaver Creek country, last Thursday, in the interest of the Citizens' League pamphlet. They had fairly good success and Mr. Gardner obtained some very good farm views.

Nearly everybody who has taken an interest in music and kept informed on Portland events will remember having heard of Eben Boyce, who has a splendid reputation as a cornetist in the metropolis. He will also remember of his deliberately shooting and killing his wife in Tacoma about a year ago. The supreme court of Washington has just confirmed the decision of the lower court and Boyce will hang for his crime.

A short time ago a couple of Alsea citizens indulged in a swimming contest, says the Newport News. They started across the Alsea Bay in a boat, each man with a full cargo aboard, and when about half way over, decided they could make better time swimming. Accordingly they succeeded in capsizing their skiff, and struck out for shore. A number of their friends witnessed the scene, but apparently not understanding the situation, went and rescued them.

Farmers of Willamette valley are confronted with serious loss to their flocks of sheep. It has been estimated that fully one third of the sheep have died within the last four months. Some judges even say that one-half the sheep have perished from the inroads of the leech. Up to the present time no successful remedy has been discovered after the sheep have been attacked. The sheep get the leeches from feeding on the bottom lands. They are taken internally and attack the liver of the animal.—West Side.

Mrs. Garrow, son and daughter, left Saturday for McCloud, Calif., where they will spend the summer.

Miss Rosa Horton expects to start for Colorado next Monday. She is going there on account of her health.

Dr. R. A. Loggon, of Philomath, was the examining physician in the case of Mrs. Ashur, who was adjudged insane and taken to Salem last week.

It seems that people are beginning to cast about for official timber at the coming city election, and among those prominently mentioned is Hon. Jesse B. Irvine for the office of chief of police.

Mr. D. W. Council was in Corvallis this week. Although past eighty, Mr. Council rode horseback from Will Vidito's place in Alsea to this city, and felt spry as a boy when he arrived here.

John Osburn, who has been so seriously ill at his home in this city, was reported much better yesterday. Dave Osburn arrived Thursday, from Glens Ferry, Idaho, to be at his father's bedside.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gilbert, and Misses Agnes Gilbert, Mand McKay and Ruby Cornell, of Salem, spent Sunday in this city, visiting relatives and friends. They returned home by boat yesterday.

Ira Hunter, Seth Hurlburt, Chaney LeVe, L. W. Sharp, Clyde Trapp and Johnny Irwin drove over to Albany Saturday evening to meet with the Albany tent of Maccabees. They report an enjoyable visit.

Mr. Hughes, representing the Agricultural Implement Works, of Benecia, Calif., was here last week. While here he placed an order with the Corvallis Sawmill Co. for one carload of plow beams, two carloads of ash and four carloads of oak lumber.

The Corvallis Fire Company had a drill Friday evening. The engine was taken out and connected with a cistern on Main street, and despite the fact that it had been some months since the engine had been manned, it worked like a charm and a good stream of water was soon had.

Mrs. J. W. Crawford and Mrs. B. W. Wilson went to Salem on the boat yesterday morning. They are delegates to the North Pacific Women's Board of Missions of the Presbyterian church, which will convene in Salem this evening. They will be absent the greater part of the week.

At their meeting last Sunday evening, the K. L. C. E. presented Rev. L. M. Booser with a nice Bible. This was Rev. Booser's last evening with the society in the capacity of pastor, and the young people took this method of expressing their appreciation of his services during the past two years.

Rev. R. L. Melly, of Baltimore, Md., will occupy the pulpit in the Presbyterian church next Sunday. Mr. Melly has been pastor of the Presbyterian church in Baltimore for the past five years and is on his way to Montana where he has been assigned a pastorate. He will preach here a week from Sabbath also.

Robert Johnson, manager of the Benton County Prune Co.'s big orchard, north of Corvallis about six miles, states that the orchard has pretty well bloomed out. The big prune orchard presents a beautiful appearance when in full bloom and it is not everywhere that one can see 17,000 fruit trees in bloom at the same time.

Prof. Raymond, the archaeologist, will give an interesting lecture tomorrow evening at the M. E. church, beginning at 8 o'clock. The subject will be "Legends of different Indian tribes, mounds of Ohio, comparisons of the customs of the pre-historic tribes of this country with those of the pre-historic tribes of other parts of the world." Admission free.

Prof. J. B. Horner, of the O. A. C., made a trip to the bay Saturday to confer with the people of that section on matters pertaining to the Summer Normal School that is to be held on the coast this season. There was a teachers' institute in Lincoln county last week and the professor desired to have a conference with the teachers composing this body, in order to get their views and assistance in this matter. Prof. Horner is working industriously for the success of the school at the side of "Old Ocean" this summer.

Among the items of the detailed account of the proceedings of the second day's session of the Presbytery of the Willamette, held in Eugene last week, the Register says: "Dr. Thompson was released last January from a pastorate of 14 years over the church at Corvallis, a pastorate long enough to test any man, and the presbytery in formal action recorded its appreciation of the valuable service of Dr. Thompson at Corvallis in which he showed himself to be a Christian gentleman, a man of fervent piety, a loyal friend and a fervent minister of the gospel."

Mr. Holgate Explains.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—Your editorial comment on one of my letters makes it necessary for me to beg space to explain that my article was either very clumsily written or very oddly interpreted.

I referred to a rumor afloat here to the effect that a number of prominent senators of both parties urged Chairman Jones to telegraph the democratic members of the Oregon legislature asking them to vote for Senator Mitchell. I said that even the rumor, since it testified to the public estimate of the senator's relations with his colleagues, was itself an evidence of his strength. Despite the bright light of your criticism, I fail utterly to see that I even hinted that his democratic support in Oregon was an evidence of his strength. I referred to his power as a senator, not a candidate.

As to his election: The fact that he was elected is the principal thing. The mere political alignment of his supporters, since he was elected as a republican, will cut no figure. Senator Morgan has lost no prestige on account of the republican votes given him; nor has Senator Hoar's influence greatly diminished because of the fact every democrat in the Massachusetts legislature voted for him. Of course, as you state, Senator Mitchell should have received the votes of all the republican members of the legislature.

You say: "The mention in Mr. Holgate's letter that Senator Simon and Representative Moody are especially sought out by the special correspondents of the Oregonian and their doings chronicled in a more friendly and elaborate way than the acts of other members from Oregon is very indiscreet. This paper believes that when members are elected to the national legislature it is best to encourage all to work together and to hold up their hands and support each and all of them in every way, dropping the small talk engendered to some extent possibly by antagonistic efforts in political contests."

How indiscreet? If you mean it is not good policy on my part, that is a very small consideration. The statement is absolutely true; and is not, as you seem to fear, discreditable to Senator Simon and Mr. Moody. I cannot agree in your inference that the friendship of the Oregonian stamps a man a degenerate. We ought all to take a pride in knowing that these gentlemen are constantly doing something for the state, worth mentioning. I was not mourning because their good work was reported by the Oregonian, but I simply called attention to the fact that the delegation as a whole has not received, and is not receiving, the fair treatment and support that the best interests of the state demand should be accorded it.

I fear that my letter was not read with that careful deliberation which the commentator usually employs.

H. L. HOLGATE.
Washington, D. C.

Made of Bell-Metal.

A day or two ago W. J. Moore brought to this office a medallion that was found last Thursday by Charley Knotts. Sometime back Mr. Moore purchased some real estate in the Soap Creek country, and among other places, he acquired a quarter section of land of Ira Hunter. The last-mentioned place lies well up on the hills, and is in charge of Mr. Moore's son, Samuel. It was on this place that the medallion was found. The souvenir is quite an attractive piece of work. On one side is the "American Eagle," while on the other appears, in relief, old Fort Dearborn, as it was during the fore part of last century. The medallion is about an inch and three-quarters in diameter and is made from the Chicago court house bell. It bears the date of October 29, 1871, and commemorated the great Chicago fire. The supposition is that somebody had it in his pocket, possibly many years ago, while hunting and lost it.

Mound Openers.

Professor Raymond's class in archaeology, which has recently been organized in this city with Mr. John Smith as president, took its first look backward last Saturday. Early that morning a party, consisting of Mrs. Callahan, Misses Crawford and Chamberlain, and about a dozen students, drove to a point a mile or so east of Shedd's, where they held a grand opening of some mounds which had been located there. These mounds are about fifty feet in diameter and four or five feet high. It is believed that they were thrown up centuries ago by parties now dead. They contain skeletons of prehistoric tribes, arrow-heads, and light on the history of savage man.

It has been discovered that the soil in these mounds is much richer than that of the surrounding country. Whether this is due to the fact that valuables were buried there, or because the builders brought rich soil from a distance, is a matter for the society to determine.

Saturday's party spent a most enjoyable day, and brought home with them numerous beautiful arrow-heads, both white and dark, and a better knowledge of early settlers in this country.

Of Interest to Cyclers.

From present indications, it is but fair to presume that no attempt will be made to do anything officially regarding the collection of bicycle taxes in this county this year. In many other counties no action has been taken in this matter. According to an act passed by the last legislature the matter is practically placed in the hands of the county court, and they may or may not act in the matter as they see fit, although the law says that they "shall" have power and authority to levy at the same time that other taxes are levied, on or before March 1, 1901, a license tax of one dollar, "to be paid by any and all persons riding a bicycle in such counties as have exercised the authority above described on such paths as hereinafter provided."

The Benton county court saw fit to follow the lead of other counties in this matter and made no provisions for the collection of the bicycle tax along with other tax items prior to March 1, 1901, for the reason that the law was only approved about a week prior to this date and the court held no session during the interim.

Section 4 of this act says that the court "may" order a warrant to the sheriff of the county to collect a license of $1 on all delinquents as shall not have paid said license tax prior to April the first of each year.

From the above it will be seen that this matter is left wholly in the hands of the court and it has seen fit to take no action whatever in the matter and in this way will escape entanglements that have befallen other counties.

Fifty Cents an Acre.

E. M. Howell, of the Portland City & Oregon Railway Co., and T. C. Howell, both residents of Oregon City, have completed a deal with A. L. Maxwell, receiver of the Oregon Development Co., whereby they are now owners of 6000 acres of land lying along the line of Corvallis & Eastern, and all other property of the O. D. company. These gentlemen are brothers of J. D. Howell, of Benton county. The new owners propose to place this land on the market shortly, offering it for fifty cents per acre.

The deal includes all lands, docks, wharves, warehouses, jetties, dikes, canals, basins, dry-houses, machine shops, elevators, wagon roads and bridges, and all other property, real, personal and mixed, which the O. D. company owns or in which it has any interest in the state of Oregon. It also includes all franchises of every kind and description. The property included around the bay is the Yaquina water works, car-shops, wharves and a tug called the Favorite. Two steamboats in Portland, the Wm. Hoag and Albany, are no doubt included in the deal. They are now tied up at the wharf in Southern Portland.

For Police Judge.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of police judge at the election on the 20th of May, 1901.

A Wild Ride.

E. E. Wilson and B. W. Johnson, the pamphleteers, had an experience Sunday which would have tried the nerve of men engaged in other lines of business. They left Corvallis in the morning behind a team from McMahon's stables and drove to Monroe, for the alleged purpose of collecting views for the coming Benton county pamphlet. There is no Sunday closing law in Monroe. But that is another story.

Returning home in the evening at 6:30, they had reached a point between the butte and Mac Porter's place, when the bolt which held the single tree broke. The horses took fright and lunged ahead, letting the tongue fall to the ground. It soon struck a bump and a section was broken off. This rendered the buggy unmanageable, and Johnson dragged the lines and began jumping about as a moveable ballast as the buggy rocked from side to side, between the ditch and a barb wire fence. "Jump far out Johnson," said Wilson in that calm tone used by him when addressing a jury. Johnson jumped, doing a couple of half-nelsons and the strangle hold as he grappled with mother earth.

A few yards further on, Wilson alighted gracefully on the back of his neck, rolling up on his feet just as Johnson was gathering himself for a spurt after the team. It was finally decided that the attorney should go to a farm house and borrow a horse and buggy while the postmaster guarded the demolished rig. An hour after, as they were jogging cautiously into town behind one of Dick Irwin's horses, they met John Rickard who informed them that their team was in his stable and unhurt.

M. G. Flynn, manager of the Benton County Lumber Co., was in Corvallis yesterday. The company's mill which is situated 7 1/2 miles southwest of Philomath, begins operations next Monday. It has a capacity of 30,000 feet per day, and mostly yellow fir and cedar lumber will be manufactured. A good road leads from the mill to Philomath. It is the company's intention to establish a lumber yard in Corvallis, shortly.

A hot war is waging between the towns of Albany and Corvallis over the price of eggs. Corvallis raised the price to 15 cents, at a time when Albany was paying 12 1/2 cents, and as a result 2,300 dozen of hen fruit passed in one day, last Saturday—into the hands of the Corvallis merchants. The Corvallis merchants say their paying 15 cents is business; not war nor out-throat competition, but a pure business proposition. Whereat the Albany slurrans stand aghast and shake their venerable heads.—The Dalles Chronicle.
