

ABOUT LATERAL SEWERS.

Widely different views are entertained by various individuals, regarding the necessity and propriety of constructing lateral sewers. When a system of sewers is thoroughly completed, a town becomes more healthful and the death rate decreases. Many of the older residents of Oregon will remember when the metropolis of our state was considered exceedingly unhealthful which was at a time when the water supply was not so good as now and the sewerage of the city was crude and incomplete. Later on Bull Run water and a thorough system of sewerage took the place of the previous unhealthful condition, until now it is said that the death rate of the city is about as low as that of any city in the world. It is probably natural that people in our small towns, having all their lives been accustomed to the bare ground to dump sewerage upon, remain satisfied with their conclusion that lateral sewers are not needed and that the construction thereof would entail upon them a needless expense. They forget that a new village can be started upon a new clean area of ground where the surroundings are reasonably pure and good, and that with moderate care fair conditions of health will prevail for fifteen or twenty years, the location gradually growing more unhealthy as time passes, until after forty or fifty years the grounds become so completely saturated with refuse matter that occasional surroundings will at times become breeding spots of disease and destruction of human life. It is only a few years ago that the unfortunate death of all of the children except one of the family of Wm. B. Carter, deceased, which was generally conceded at the time to have been caused by the impure public alley near by at that time. Mr. Carter was sick about the same time, but partially recovered. His health was so badly shattered, however, that his death was supposed to have been hastened by the former sickness. The same winter several children of J. W. Sonthner near the same locality died of the same disease. About the same time and only a block and a half away from the children of M. H. Bell fell victims to the same malady. All of the places where the disease proved so very fatal to these unfortunate families were located near impure public alleys. At several times since, as the years have passed, numerous instances have occurred where fatality to life has been attributed to imperfect drainage. A proper system of lateral sewers would relieve most of these increased dangers to human life. A very prominent and convincing object lesson can now be held in point to remind every one that a whole family would not have been stricken down for weeks had complete lateral sewers been in use at the premises.

much more than before the improvement was made, and would place property remaining vacant in condition so that tenants would be glad to lease and pay good rents. No doubt the small amount anyone would need to pay for the improvement could be borrowed and repaid on easy terms and small payments. It is not the spirit of the GAZETTE to urge these matters upon the public, but simply to call attention to the various points involved. It might be considered unwise to wait until a severe spell of sickness should seize some one, costing them enough to build a half dozen sewers, and should they recover find that the improvement was not made, but that the money was expended.

The Loss of Sheep.

Prof. E. R. Lake of the O. A. C., who returned a week ago from a tour through Eastern Oregon in search of information regarding plants that are poisonous to stock, is credited with the following statements: In the field work we have found that the losses from poisonous plants have been much less this year than usual, although scarcely a day passes that a number of sheep are not lost in the sheep-range counties. The plants doing the chief amount of damage are those known as larkspur, lobelia or death camas, and the various loco plants. So far as observations have been made, these plants are generally distributed over the sections of Eastern Oregon and Washington, and the losses in some sections have been estimated to be between 5,000 and 6,000 sheep within the past three years, or about 2 1/2 per cent of the stock ranging in the district. The heaviest loss was two years ago, when as many as 500 head would die in one night. Cases of poisoning have been reported from all counties of Eastern Oregon, and from several counties of Eastern Washington. Some two or three plants heretofore unknown to be poisonous have been reported with quite sufficient evidence to condemn them. In the field work, data covering the losses, the character of the trouble, together with photographs of ranges and herds, and the suspected and known plants, have been collected. The photographs of the plants have been taken, in most instances, natural size, as they are found on the ground.

Think it Over.

Which is better, to buy your pianos and organs of an agent who represents the factories where they are made, or of one who only represents San Francisco and Portland jobbing houses? Is it worth while to pay an additional profit to city middlemen for the sake of getting goods which have passed through their hands, with double freight charges added to other needless extras? Would not the best plan be to have all your money count on the value of the instrument itself? We think so, and for this reason import all pianos and organs direct from the factory, depend on quick sales and small profits and thus give you a high grade instrument at a moderate price. All kinds of small instruments such as guitars, violins, mandolins, etc. Call at office and residence one block west of court house.

Save Money.

Owing to the fact that we have had to take a good share of the lumber cut by our Tualatin mill, and that we also have a large amount of fire logs coming in the big drive from the McKenzie, we are getting overstocked and will be able to sell to make room. Our stock is A. I. Save money by buying now. CORVALLIS SAWMILL CO.
