

CANDIDATES AND ISSUES.

In both parties there is already more or less casting about on this subject. The republican party is well supplied with first class presidential timber and has so fully met the demands of the people that it may calmly and confidently look on while the democratic party selects a standard bearer and decides what issue it will present for the approaching contest.

There is considerable perturbation in the democratic camp and it looks as if a candidate will first be agreed on and then an issue sought to fit the man. It is quite natural the easier part of the task should be first accomplished, as it will give longer time for considering the more difficult and perplexing one of what the issue shall be.

Of possible candidates Tom Johnson, of Ohio, now appears to receive most favorable consideration. His late election to be mayor of Cleveland, usually a republican city, has again brought him into public notice. His election to this office does not indicate any increased popularity up to that time. The republican nominee was regarded as an unfit man by large numbers of his party to whom his nomination was extremely unsatisfactory.

They made protest at the polls, and to this, more than to anything else, Mr. Johnson owes his election. The issue was that of three cent street car fares which he favored. He amassed large wealth in the protected steel business, yet he advocates free trade. He increased his wealth by the promotion of steel railways, and yet he opposes corporations and trusts and favors a very low street car fare. He has large holdings of real estate, but favors the single tax; that is, all taxes should be collected from real estate. Surely, so many-sided a man would make an ideal democratic candidate.

Carter Harrison, for the third time elected mayor of Chicago, is another possible candidate. His popularity in Chicago is because he upholds the rights of the city against the street railway corporations. His most active following, however, is found among those who favor a loose administration of the laws for the suppression of vice and corruption in the city.

David B. Hill, of New York, may also be regarded as a possible candidate. Since the coinage question has been settled and the democracy has gracefully accepted the single gold standard, Mr. Hill should be an acceptable candidate.

With so many prominent men in the party who have been vociferous advocates on all sides of every public question the selection of a candidate should be an easy matter.

Altogether different and far more difficult is making up an issue. Opposition to trusts will not do, for the democratic party is as responsible for the existence of these as is the republican. Besides this there is a rapidly growing feeling among wage-workers that trusts insure more constant and remunerative employment, because, through their intelligent control of production so that it shall not exceed demand, strikes and lock-outs become less frequent. If this feeling is well grounded, and the activity prevailing in the manufactures of iron and steel would indicate that it is, the wage-worker will not support any party in a war upon trusts. The recent advance in the price per ton of steel billets and plates, to be followed by an advance in steel rails; the fact that the rail mills have orders for home consumption which will keep them at their utmost capacity for many months to come, so that they are unable to entertain foreign orders, and the knowledge that such conditions exist largely through the controlling influence of certain combines and trusts, induce the wage earner to assume

UNBEARABLE ITCHING

It had a breaking out all over my back. The itching was almost unbearable, and at times I felt that it would be a relief to tear the skin off my back. I tried doctors' prescriptions, and several remedies, without even relief. I read of your CUTICURA remedy in the Indianapolis News. After three applications, my back quit itching, and by the time the box of CUTICURA was half used the breaking out had all disappeared.

Speaks in Praise. Much has been said relative to the matter of poisonous plants with regard to stock in Oregon. The Albany Herald has the following to say regarding the efficient work that has been done at the O. A. C. and the work now in progress: The Oregon Agricultural College is doing the state good service in practical tests of various crops and the dissemination of the information obtained from these tests at farmer's institutes throughout the state. Just now the college is doing another valuable service in preparing a bulletin on plants which are poisonous to stock. For the benefit of stockmen the state department of agriculture and the Agricultural College will publish an illustrated bulletin showing the poisonous plants in various stages of growth from the root of the bulb to the ripening of the seed. When the field work has been completed statistics will be compiled giving the exact number of animals lost yearly in the different regions of the country inspected. Much interest has been aroused among stockmen relative to this subject, and they have repeatedly requested that work be continued in regard to ascertaining more definite information as to losses from different plants, the plants themselves and the best remedies.

Think it Over. Which is better, to buy your pianos and organs of an agent who represents the factories where they are made, or of one who only represents San Francisco and Portland jobbing houses? Is it worth while to pay an additional profit to city middlemen for the sake of getting goods which have passed through their hands, with double freight charges added to their needless costs? Would not the best plan be to have all your money count on the value of the instrument itself? We think so, and for this reason import all pianos and organs direct from the factory, depend on quick sales and small profits and thus give you a high grade instrument at a moderate price. All kinds of small instruments such as guitars, violins, mandolins, etc. Call at office and residence one block west of court house.

It can't help but do you good. Prepared only by E. G. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. The $1. bottle contains 2 1/2 times the $3. size.
