One of the young men of this city got gay the other day and proceeded to be tough by sticking a knife into a bicycle tire. He had no particular excuse for this very cute little trick, consequently the owner of the bicycle swore out a warrant for his arrest. The agent of the Oregon Fire Relief Association came over from Albany, Monday, to adjust the damage sustained by Amy Cameron and relatives when they were burned out recently. The agent allowed Mr. Cameron $265 in lieu of his goods burned.

We were misinformed in regard to the whereabouts of Miss Nellie Cameron and her sister-in-law Mrs. E. G. Cameron, last week when the Cameron fire occurred. Instead of being out at the Armory watching the dancers, they were at a select party down town.

"Why not spend the vacation at Yaquina bay, where can be had excellent fare, good fishing, good boating, safe bathing, alluring rides and rambles. The courses and exercises at the Summer school, of 1901, at Newport, will afford great variety of instructions, diversion and entertainment. No other resort offers equal attractions and advantages."

B. Fallows, of Portland, an expert mining engineer and geologist, who was for a number of years employed by the Northern Pacific railroad company, was in town a few days this week. He is interested in some of our citizens in mining properties in the Ladrean district in British Columbia north of Roseland. We believe they will not regret their investments. Fallows is not the man to misrepresent anything.

Quite a serious accident occurred Monday afternoon, up on Greasy, in which Robert Logan was the victim. Mr. Logan was employed in Prickett & Logan sawmill and in stepping over a revolving pulley the leg of his trousers caught just below the knee and his leg was terribly lacerated. Dr. Loggan, of Philomath, was called and made the sufferer as comfortable as possible. No doubt is entertained regarding Mr. Logan's recovery, but it is feared that he will be left slightly crippled.

Mr. Henry French is working systematically in his efforts to land Benton county in first place in the exhibit contest at the coming state fair. He is not letting things go until the last moment, but is endeavoring to secure specimens in their season. Just now is the time when strawberries, gooseberries, cherries, currants and raspberries are in their prime. The committee desires to secure a pint bottle of each variety of these fruits grown in Benton county. Every Bentonite, who has any pride whatever in his county, should exceed the efforts of the committee and submit specimens of these fruits. Samples may be left at this office, or Mr. French will call whenever notified.

A few days ago Amy Cameron erected a gate, built on the lines of the patent taken out June 6, 1899, by Ephriam Cameron. The gate is one of the finest in simplicity of action that one can conceive of. The gate has what is called a locking beam, consisting of two parts locked together. This locking beam is connected to a post with a hinged swivel, and by means of a pulley the gate is operated. It is very simple and the price of a gate and appliances will range from $2 up, according to the kind of a gate that is put in. However, the cost of appliances will remain the same regardless of the gate itself.

For fine dress goods, silks and velvets go to Nolan & Callahan.

Born, Thursday morning, to the wife of Charley Adams, a daughter.

The annual meeting of the board of regents of the agricultural college will occur in this city, July 17th.

D. Zurcher left for his home in Eastern Oregon, yesterday. He will edit the college "Barometer" next year.

The stage of the water is now so low that no more steamers will reach Corvallis this season. Agent Tapscott leaves in a few days for Portland.

Fred Cooper, who was so severely injured by an angry bull, some six weeks ago, was able to get out of bed for the first time Wednesday. Indications now are that he will improve rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Cooley, of Brownsville, attended commencement exercises at O A C, both being graduates of this institution. Mr. Cooley is secretary of the Brownsville Woolen Mill company.

Clem Hodes, of Corvallis, made his regular Sunday visit to this city, remaining until Monday. Our city offers numerous attractions for the young men of Corvallis and they are always welcome.—Herald.

The target shooting contest between members of the junior class of O A C was won by Noble Leadbetter with a score of 93 out of a possible 125. The range was 100, 200, 300, 400 and 500 yards, each contestant having 25 shots.

John Van Groos, of Eugene, a graduate of O A C, arrived in this city, Monday, to be present at the commencement exercises. He has been assistant instructor in mathematics at the U of O during the past year, but will accept a scholarship recently awarded him by Yale college.

Mrs. Esther J. Reid, who has been taking the pharmacy course in the O A C during the past three years, will leave for Portland tomorrow. After a few days visit with friends in that city, she and her sisters, who have been attending school in Portland, will go to their old home in Lake county, Oregon, where they will reside.

Yesterday, Mack Porter shipped a fine yearling bull to the son of Judge Bellinger, of Portland. The animal is of the Alack Poll Angus breed and is a remarkably fine one. Few men in this or any other state take as keen an interest in fine cattle as does Mr. Porter, and it would be a difficult matter to find a finer herd of full-bloods than is owned by him.

D. C. Rose was in McMinnville last week to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Oregon Fire Relief Ass'n. The meeting was called to elect a president of the association to fill the place made vacant by the death of the late O. H. Irvine. Mr. Rose nominated Emanuel Northup, dean of the faculty of McMinnville college, who was elected.

There is some uneasiness felt by farmers regarding the weather of the past and its effect on growing crops. The general opinion seems to be that if it is good weather from now on everything will be all right. Mr. Allingham and wife were down from Peoria during the week. Mr. Allingham stated that grain crops were looking fine in his section. It is an undisputed fact that this weather has not been ideal hay weather.

Much anxiety has of late been expressed by interested parties as to what has become of the rack crusher purchased sometime ago by the county. We have the pleasure now of informing all interested in said machine that if they will go to the ferry landing they can have a free look at it, as everything is free down that way. The crusher came up on the last boat, and on account of its weight, was discharged at the ferry landing. It is not large but is a heavy machine.

During commencement exercises Wednesday morning, President Gatch spoke a word to stragglers, which was duly appreciated by punctual members of the audience and to which the tardy may well give heed. There was a neat bit of sarcasm in the announcement that the O A C would hold commencement exercises next June, and the hope that a portion of the audience would arrive a half-hour earlier, which should not soon be forgotten. It would be well in the future, to lock the doors at the hour set for beginning the program, and open them after the benediction.

Prof. E. J. Lea will leave in a few days for Cottage Grove to visit relatives. Since leaving here a year ago he has been for many months in the employ, as chemist, of a large beet sugar manufacturing concern at Grand Junction, Colorado. Prof. G. W. Shaw holds a good position with this company. About Christmas time the factory changed hands and Prof. Lea availed himself of an opportunity to take a special course in chemistry at Berkeley, California. In a short time he expects to leave again for Grand Junction, having been offered a good position as chemist in the sugar factory.

Thirty-Four Graduates.

The thirty-second commencement of the Oregon Agricultural college occurred in the armory Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The showers of early morning deterred many of the fair sex from attending these exercises, but for all that the gallery and auditorium of the armory were crowded with a happy and expectant audience. Promptly at the hour set for beginning the orchestra was signalled to begin the opening number. Rev. Humbert pronounced the invocation, the orchestra played a beautiful selection from "Martha," and Charles H. Horner, salutatorian of the class of 1901, stepped forward to deliver his oration on "Intellectual and Technical Training." His paper was ably and concisely written; his delivery easy and in perfect keeping with his subject. Mr. Horner is practical and thorough in all his undertakings, and his effort Wednesday was a credit to his class and to himself. A solo by Professor Fulton followed. Mr. Fulton has a voice of remarkable purity and power, and his name always adds strength to a program.

The address to the class was delivered by Hon. W. W. Cotton, of Portland. The speaker did not indulge in any flights of oratory or flourishes of rhetoric. His words were those of a parent to his children; words of wisdom spiced with wit—just enough levity to relieve the occasion of solemnity. No finer address has been delivered to a graduating class of the O A C. The speaker told the class that so far in life's journey they had trod a common pass but now they reached the parting of the ways.

"Think of a pass," he said, "in the mountains ending upon a great desert over which no road is marked. Through the defile the road is plain and must be followed; but when the desert is reached the traveler must pause, take his bearings, consider well the course to be pursued, and then follow that course without deviation. If he does not take these wise precautions, he will probably never reach a place of safety and will wander miserably about until death overtakes him.

"It seems to me that you, in company with each other, have just passed over a well-marked road, and are standing today looking out upon the great plain of life. Is it not fitting that you should now pause and determine upon the point which you intend to pursue—and then resolve that you will follow that course with a fixed and steadfast purpose?"

A vocal duet by Mrs. E. F. Pernot and Miss Chamberlin, preceded the oration by Miss Ivy Burton, valedictorian, on "Luther and Liberty." Miss Burton's paper was elegantly written, and her delivery was stirring and effective.

President Apperson, of the board of regents, presented the diplomas, and President Gatch conferred the degrees. Following are the members of the class: Science course—Ivy Burton, Flora Wilson, Henrietta Campbell, Carrie Danneman, Myrtle Herbert, Grace Michael, Maud Hoover, Bessie Michael, Mabel Jones, Mabel Withycombe, Ethel Kyle, Blanche Riddle, Bessie Smith, Lizzie Hoover.

Agricultural course—Robert Withycombe, Ivan Brown, William Junkin, Charles Horner, Fred Stump. Mechanical course—Stanley Herbert, Alfred Campbell, William Hillman, John Wiley, Martin Johnson, William Pate, Leo Kraps, Edgar R Shepard.

Pharmacy course—Blanche Holden, Mabel Davis, Fred Colvig, Ernest Redd, John Stalker, Clyde Williams, Frank Ward. Degrees were conferred as follows: Master of Science, John F. Fulton, '92; C M McKellips, Purdue University, '96; Dr W W Smith, '95; A R Woodcock, '99.

The class wore black gowns and mortar-boards.

Behind the Footlights.

"The most enjoyable entertainment ever given by a senior class of the Agricultural College," this is the verdict pronounced by all who witnessed the production of "A Modern Ananias" at the Opera House Monday evening. The play—and the play's as much the thing in winning the favor of an audience as it is in catching the conscience of a king—is peculiarly adapted to the amateur stage. It is a modern version of a comedy which has had merit enough to live for over 250 years. Booth included the original in his report and many eminent comedians have starred in the revised edition.

Mr. George L. Paul, under whose direction the play was produced, discovered talent in the cast and developed it to a degree which surprised the faculty and students, and delighted the audience. Monday night's performance shows what may be accomplished by a month of hard work intelligently directed.

Mr. Stump and Mr. Brown do their best work in the second act, when "Colonel Lyon" attempts to prove "Derby Dashwood" a liar. The scene between Mr. Stalker, Mr. Shepard and the uncle which leaves all three in tears, was admirably worked up and evoked roars of laughter. Miss Burton as "Nellie Golden-gate," and Miss Holden in the role of "Prudence Mayflower," were pretty and graceful. Much praise has been accorded the fidelity of their impersonations. Miss Rusk cleverly sustained the part of "Baby," while Miss Wilson made the most of her opportunities in the character of "Kitty."

Roy Ortel Hurt.

While getting ready to unload some hay off of a wagon at the barn of H. F. Fisher, Tuesday, quite an accident occurred. The wagon load of hay had been driven into the driveway of the barn and one of the men employed to mow the hay started up a ladder for the loft. This scared the horses and they dashed out of the barn. Roy Ortel, an Alsea boy, was on the load of hay at the time, but it was impossible for him to get the reins and check the animals. He saw that he would strike some timbers and be badly injured and undertook to save himself. In some unaccountable way he was thrown to the barn floor, a distance of some 12 or 14 feet. He struck on his hands and face, and in the fall his throat was quite severely cut and both of his wrists were badly sprained. A physician was summoned and the sufferer was made as comfortable as possible. The team did not run a great distance before it was stopped.

The team and wagon escaped with slight damage. Mr. Ortel is getting along as nicely as could be expected, but it will be some time before he fully recovers.

Big bargains in broken lines of boys' and children's suits at Nolan & Callahan's.

James Flett is now guardian of the city at night. He was elected at a meeting of the council held last Monday evening. George Emerick and John Young were candidates for the position.

The alumni of the Agricultural College held its business meeting Wednesday afternoon. James Gibson was elected president, but aside from this little else was done at the meeting. The annual banquet was held at the armory Wednesday evening. The class of 1901 was welcomed in an address by Prof. Berchtold. There was an address no set program, although numerous excellent toasts were given during the progress of the banquet.

The gymnastic exhibition given by the classes in physical culture at the college armory Tuesday evening, was largely attended and highly enjoyable. After numerous drills by the various classes and feats of dexterity by a picked team, A. C. Gilbert gave a marvelous exhibition of fancy bag punching which elicited much applause. A pleasing feature of the program was the Amazon drill and series of tableaux by a special class of young ladies under the direction of Prof. Helen Crawford. The posings were graceful and every tableau formed a beautiful picture.

Arthur Bier came near being the victim of a serious accident Wednesday morning. While passing over the mill race bridge south of town in a single buggy, he met Jack Wright, who was driving a double team hitched to a wagon. The bridge was a trifle narrow for Jack, and he crowded Arthur's horse off into the water. As the animal passed over the railing, the front wheels of the buggy followed. Arthur was thrown into the stream and was saved from injury by the depth of the water. Jack assisted in extricating the horse and badly broken vehicle from their perilous position, and offered words of sympathy to the owner who stood dripping in the road.
