

OBSERVATION OF THE SABBATH.

What constitutes the proper observation of the Sabbath Day is a question which has been discussed for centuries.

The Scriptures record that the day was instituted by the Creator who, after the six days work of creation "rested on the seventh day," and that he "blessed the seventh day and sanctified it."

If the consecration of the Sabbath is coeval with the Creation it must have been with the purpose of celebrating the completion of the work of creation. It is remarkable that between the creation and the Exodus there is no record of the observation of the Sabbath. It seems probable, however, that the Jews never wholly lost sight of it.

After their deliverance from Egyptian bondage Moses gives this as a special reason for the observation of the day, which from Sinai they had been commanded to remember to keep holy.

The prevalent conception of the chief characteristic of this Jewish institution is the prohibition of work. Concerning this an eminent Christian scholar says: "The prohibition of work is only subsidiary to the positive idea of joyful rest and recreation."

The Apostolic writings are almost silent on the subject of the Sabbath. They give no rules for its observation, never denounce its violation, and never include "Sabbath-breakers" in their list of offenders. From its beginning the Christian church has observed the first day of the week, or Sunday, as a day for meeting together to break bread, to give and to receive instruction, to take offerings for charitable purposes and for meditation and prayer.

Scripture says very little concerning this day. It appears to have been chosen by the Apostles because it was believed to have been the day of Christ's resurrection. It is quite certain that for two hundred years it was kept distinct from the Jewish Sabbath. During these first two centuries of its life the Christian church did not make any prohibition of work or occupation on the Lord's Day.

After the conversion to Christianity of the Emperor Constantine he issued several edicts prohibiting the pursuit of many occupations and forms of pleasure on the Lord's Day. Gradually this day assumed the characteristics and place of the Jewish Sabbath.

The sect of Pharisees had invented many prohibitions respecting the Sabbath of which there is no trace in the original institution of the day. These were arbitrary and fanciful. The Pharisaical spirit dies hard. Many of these arbitrary conditions passed over and became incorporated with the observance of the Lord's Day, or Sunday. Thus it occurred that a day of joyful rest and recreation, divinely instituted to meet the requirements of man's physical and spiritual life comes to us burdened with harsh, irregular conditions.

The Puritans excelled the Jewish sect in adding "burdens too grievous to be borne" to the observance of "first day." A man might not kiss his wife, might not whistle, nor visit friends, nor engage in any recreation nor amusement whatever on that day. Its hours must be given "to the services of the public sanctuary, to reading the scriptures, to meditation and to prayer."

The Creator gave the Sabbath for man; these would give man to the Sabbath as formulated by themselves. Protestants are accustomed to depreciate the manner in which Catholics observe Sunday, but of a truth it seems to be more in accord with the Sabbatical idea and purpose. There is a wide difference between the Catholic and the Puritan observation of the day, and multitudes of pious men and women occupy a middle position. Many men living in cities are enforced to toil six days in the week. When Sunday comes they are thankful that they may have "mother" prepare the lunch baskets and that parents, children and the "hired girl" may take one of those godless Sunday trains and hie away to some shady, quiet nook and have a joyous, pleasant and restful day. They "find tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones and good in everything." Who dare say they have desecrated the Sabbath and offended the Creator? They have had a day of rest, of rational enjoyment. Instinctively their souls have been drawn up from contemplation of Nature to Nature's God, with whom they have come into closer, holier communion than if they had remained in the city and heard Rev. Dr. Clericus discuss the Fourth Commandment.

Because it is often sadly desecrated we would not abolish the Christian Sabbath; no more would we deny to those whom the stress of life's battle calls to six days unremitting toil amid the heat and dust and rush incident to city life such innocent diversions and rational pleasures as they may choose to pursue on Sunday, even though Dr. Clericus write "anathema" upon each one.

The Deer Law.

As the season for hunting deer is near at hand many hunters will want to post themselves on the law covering this matter. It is as follows:

The open season for deer commences July 15th and ends November 1st. It is unlawful for any person to take, capture, kill or destroy in any open season more than five deer. Any person who lawfully kills five deer can make an affidavit before any justice of the peace to that effect, and said justice shall thereupon deliver to said person one leather tag (designed and issued by the state game warden) for the hide of each deer, not exceeding five in all.

One of these tags shall be securely fastened with wire to each deer skin, and the owner is then entitled to offer such deer skin for sale or exchange or transportation to any point within the state. The punishment for violation of any of the provisions of the act is by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $500, together with the costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than 30 nor more than 120 days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Question Answered.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mother and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to cleanse out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Get Green's Prize Almanac.—Graham & Wortham.
