

SPRING 1901 STYLES

-IN-

Suits and Skirts.

We have now on sale, and new

Spring Suits & Dress Skirts.

Our suits comprise the newest and best of the late creations such as coat and bolero effects and postillion backs. New style skirts are also shown and jackets too.

The price of our suits range from $8.00 up.

S. E. Young & Son.

Albany, Oregon.

LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Chipman were passengers to the coast Tuesday.

Rev. L. M. Booser will preach in the Mt. View school house Sunday afternoon at half past two o'clock.

Mrs. Dora Porter of Halsey spent a few hours in Corvallis, Wednesday, on her way to Newport for a two week's recreation.

Baptist church—Sunday School as usual at 10 o'clock. No preaching till first Sunday in September. Rev. Noble and wife having gone to visit their son in North Yakima, Washington.

Rev. L. Myron Booser will preach in the United Evangelical church, morning and evening on Sunday. Morning sermon, "The Prayer Life." Service of interest to all in the evening. A cordial invitation to all.

A belated telegram to the Oregonian announces the death of Dr. Clementine T. Bell, at Tunnel No. 7, near Glendale, Or., July 15th. Mrs. Bell was formerly a resident of Corvallis and was highly respected here.

Attorneys C. E. Woodson and Roscoe Bryson returned Tuesday from a several days hunting trip in the Alsea country. They report large catches of fish, but say that a party of hunters who recently visited that section with dogs drove all the deer out.

Percival Nash passed through Corvallis, Monday, en route to Portland from his parents' home at Nashville. It is thought that after a short visit in Portland Mr. Nash will again embark for Dawson City, where he has made his home during the past few years.

Jas. S. Booth arrived in Corvallis Wednesday, from the coast, and yesterday he passed on to Portland en route to Issaquah, Wash. He returns to his position which he held in that place. Mrs. Booth will remain at Nye Creek until the close of the summer season.

S. N. Wilkins leaves today with the W. O. W. excursion for Portland, and will proceed to The Dalles to visit his wife, who is with her father in his lonely home at that place, and attend to some business interest he has in that vicinity during his visit. Mr. Wilkins will be absent four or five days.

Monday, E. W. Strong and family started for Belknap Springs on a camping tour. Mr. Strong will be away a week or such a matter, but Mrs. Strong will probably camp in that section for six weeks or two months. During their absence Harold Strong and wife will occupy the dwelling of Mr. Strong's parents.

The quarters in the Occidental building that have heretofore been occupied as a saloon will in a short time be converted into an office for the use of Wells Fargo & Co's. Express. W. O. Heckart will do the necessary work of remodeling and when the proposed changes have been made, Legan Hays, the genial local agent, will preside over an office of which he may be proud.

Tomorrow, C. A. Gerhard will assume the proprietorship of the Book Store in this city. I. R. Daniel retires to engage in other business and the necessary papers will be made out tomorrow. This is not Mr. Gerhard's first venture in this business. It will be remembered that he was at one time the proprietor of this identical store. He desires all his old-time patrons, and many new ones, to call on him at his place of business. We second the motion.

It now devolves upon the book publishers having the contracts to place their books in the several depositories designated by the state law, creating the Text-book Commission and providing for the depositories to be established in every county in the state. These books must be deposited by the publishers and kept on sale at the contract prices and the old books heretofore in use in this state may be exchanged for the new selected by the Commission to take their place. Depositories in Benton county are located in Corvallis, Monroe, Philomath, Wells and Dusty.

W. A. Sanders, THE watchmaker.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall is dangerously ill.

Fred Overlander returned, Wednesday, from a business visit to Portland.

The first water melons of the season were in the Corvallis market Wednesday.

Mrs. Danneman and family are moving into the residence just north of the home of Jas. Flett.

Rev. P. A. Moses is moving into the Standlee home recently purchased by his son, Victor Moses.

Mrs. Thos. Jones and child are expected home, Sunday, from a visit with relatives at Seaside and Astoria.

Arthur L. Finley, a Portlander, was in Corvallis yesterday. He is visiting his uncle, Hugh Finley, of Irish Bend.

Rube Kiger figured in a runaway accident Wednesday evening, when he was slightly used up and his hack badly damaged.

The Corvallis creamery is shipping between 80 and 100 gallons of cream daily. This represents an industry of great importance.

The Gospel Temperance Meeting will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Humbert will deliver the address.

Mrs. E. W. Fisher is dangerously ill at her home in this city. Her daughter, Mrs. Allie Thompson, and other relatives have been called to her bedside by telegraph.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Reed and family and Mrs. A. F. Peterson and family expect to leave today for Upper Soda. They expect to camp in that section for two or three weeks.

The threshing outfit of Norm Lilly will be put in operation next Monday. The first work will be done on the H. F. Fischer place, just south of town. Mr. Lilly is making preparations for a lengthy run this season.

Prof. A. S. Hitchcock, of the department of agriculture, was in the city Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Mr. Hitchcock is an expert in grasses and shrubs. Wednesday, in company with Prof. E. R. Lake, he visited the farm of Hon. T. H. Cooper to suspect some rare grasses.

Wednesday forenoon, the threshing machine of Linderman & Co. began threshing some English Rye for Geo. W. Smith, north of town a short distance. In the afternoon they started threshing grain. Yesterday the threshing outfit of Scott & Bennett started to work up on Beaver creek. In a few days reports of the yields can be had and we will all know about the way our crops are sizing up.

Marion Woods leaves with his family next month for Moscow, Idaho, to accept the position of foreman of the farm and chair of assistant professor of agriculture in the agricultural college of that state. Mr. Woods has been employed on the farm at the O A C for the past three years and is regarded as a valuable man at that institution. While his many friends regret his departure, they wish him success in his new field.

Without disparagement to the interiors of other churches of Corvallis we believe that the appearance of the walls and ceiling of the Christian church are now the most beautiful and artistic of those of any of our houses of worship. The Barnhart brothers have just finished these decorations. The walls are papered and the ceiling is painted in water colors and finished in relief work. This is the first of this kind of work done in this city. Its effect is beautiful.

The one thing that Oregon needs above all others is advertising. Man can not improve upon her resources, her climate, her fortunate geographical location nor the number and direction of her rivers. These things are her own and were hers before she knew the white man. Man can develop her resources, enjoy her climate, take advantage of what nature offers. Those of us who are here owe it to ourselves and the people abroad to let the world know wherein Oregon excels. To do this we must advertise. We clip the following from the Representative of Nevada, Iowa: "A small box of Royal Ann cherries has reached this office from N. F. Gillespie, of Corvallis, Oregon. They are, we think, the richest cherries we have ever tasted, and we should heartily endorse the cultivation of that particular variety of cherries in Iowa. If Oregon is the only state that can raise them then Oregon is a good state to live in."

The show window of F. L. Miller's establishment presents a display of shoes that is in every way creditable to any city. The window is full of the celebrated "Top-Round" shoes—none better on earth, at any price.

Services Sunday morning and evening at the Methodist Episcopal church. Some special music provided for the evening apart from the service of song.

FRANK L. MOORE, Pastor.

Summer Religion.

ACCIDENTALLY DROWNED.

Reese Beery Meets Death in Eight Feet of Water Almost Within Reach of a Half-Dozen Spectators.

Three weeks ago Reese P. Beery and his young wife came to Corvallis, strangers, and took up their home among us. Today his corpse starts on its long journey for the home he left in Michigan three months ago, accompanied by the broken-hearted little woman who has received such loving sympathy and assistance in her bereavement from the kindly people of Corvallis. The GAZETTE mentioned his arrival in Corvallis, but aside from this introduction few people had formed his acquaintance. Just before noon, Wednesday, the news was spread that a man had fallen off the ferry, and soon Beery's name was upon every lip. Some curious people rushed to the ferry landing and gazed at the water, but no effort was made to recover the body until T. W. Dilley arrived on the scene about one o'clock. He immediately set about arranging a drag and with the assistance of Geo. Egin began searching for the body. Later R. S. Huston and Roscoe Bryson secured a boat and joined in the search. Soon the river bank was lined with people, who remained silent spectators until the body was lifted into their boat by Bryson and Huston shortly after 2 o'clock. The corpse was brought ashore, and after a little delay taken to the undertaking parlors of S. N. Wilkins, where the inquest was held.

Examination of witnesses was conducted by Attorney E. R. Bryson before Coroner Wilkins and the following jury: W. P. Lafferty, A. Kisor, J. E. Martin, Geo. W. Henkle, J. Wraga, and W. J. Howell.

After examining the body, Dr. Pernot stated that he found no marks of violence; that the lungs were filled with water, and that death resulted from drowning.

From the testimony of R. L. Taylor and T. W. Dilley these facts were gleaned: Beery came to Corvallis two weeks ago last Sunday. Being a Maccabee, he approached Mr. Taylor, of the local tent, and stated that he came to Oregon from Millgrove, Michigan, about three months ago. He was married at that place about two years ago, and since his arrival in this state he and his wife had been residing at Suver. The next morning after his conversation with Taylor he asked Mr. Dilley for employment. Mr. Taylor introduced Beery around and later he brought his wife and household effects to Corvallis and moved into the house just south of the Dilley house. A week ago Wednesday night he visited the Maccabee lodge, and those who made his acquaintance were most favorably impressed. His papers showed that he was a member in good standing of Delano Tent, No. 902, of Allegan, Mich., and carried a policy for $2,000.

Upon inquiry the GAZETTE finds that he was a faithful worker. Some days ago he went to Philomath with T. E. Morse to saw wood. When they reached that city they found the steam woodsaw broken and Mr. Beery was disappointed in securing this employment. He remarked at the time that he was "the most unlucky man in the world." July 23rd, he was at Mr. Morse's home, and told the family that that was his 25th birthday.

Last Tuesday morning he told Fred Blumhart, the ferryman, that he would like to secure work of some kind. He was told that the Spaulding company wanted a man to assist in keeping the logs in their drive now passing Corvallis from fouling the ferry. He was given this task and began work at noon that day, pushing the logs out of the ferry's course with a pike pole. He said he could not swim and Mr. Blumhart warned him of the danger, and advised him to stand at the rear end of the ferry and assist in propelling it, leaving the more experienced men to handle the logs. He was ambitious, however, and worked at the bow of the boat.

The story of his death is thus told by T. B. Jones, an eye witness: I saw Beery for the first time Wednesday. I was crossing the river on my way to dinner, and was helping to keep logs out of the way of the ferry. We were approaching the west shore and had gone about two-thirds of the way across the river, when Beery, who was standing at the upper front corner of the boat placed his pike against a log and shoved it away. When it passed out of reach of the pike, Beery let the end of that instrument drop to the bottom of the river. The other end he held in his hands, and turned with his back in the direction of the shore we were approaching, the pole across and in front of him. As he stood outside of the pole, when the apron of the ferry struck it he was thrown backwards into the river. I was about ten feet from where he had been standing on the lower side of the apron. He passed under the apron and came up about midway of the ferry on the lower side and shouted "Help!" I dropped my pole, jumped over the guard rail and tried to reach him with my hand. He remained at the surface about ten seconds, and I never saw him again alive." The water was eight or ten feet deep, where Beery fell in, and about the same depth at the point where he was taken out, 60 or 70 yards further down the stream. Other persons on the boat at the time were Fred Blumhart, a Mr. Kendall and two or three strangers. There were also a couple of teams and wagons. Mr. Blumhart was at the wheel. He did not see Beery fall in. He heard one of the teamsters shout, and saw Jones climb over the guard rail. He ran to see what was the matter and saw Beery just as he was sinking. He was making no effort to swim. He was about 10 feet from the ferry. A hooked pole was reached to Beery without result. Byron Nixon saw the accident from the ferry landing. He rowed out in a small boat to the scene, but could see no trace of the drowning man.

R. L. Taylor carried the news to Mrs. Beery. She had prepared dinner and was standing in the door watching for the loved one whose dead body was lying at the bottom of the river. She fainted from the first shock of the dreadful tidings but, later calmed herself and bore her bereavement with much fortitude.

VERDICT OF CORONERS JURY. In the matter of the inquest upon the body of Reese Beery. Having been duly sworn, find that the deceased came to his death by accidental drowning, having fallen from the ferry boat at the crossing of the Willamette river at Corvallis.

W. P. LAFFERTY, G. W. HENKLE, J. WRAGE, A. KISOR, W. H. HOWARD, J. E. MARTIN.

Corvallis, Or., July 31, 1901.

Mrs. Leona McNulty.

The life of humanity is so complex that the death of even a "stranger within the gates" causes a feeling of sadness. When, after a residence of many years spent in a life of active service in our midst, a good woman passes away, the sadness deepens into sorrow and the loss becomes a personal one to a large circle of friends. Such is the loss Corvallis has sustained in the death of Mrs. Leona McNulty. A child of the Sunny South, she was married in her teens and at the early age of twenty years was left a widow with an infant son, and soon after coming with the family of her father, the late B. T. Taylor, to this town where she has resided continuously since. She was a woman of strong individuality, of generous impulses and great energy, and while she made her home with her father, she preferred to be independent. With a passionate love for the beautiful and naturally artistic, when she turned her attention to dress-making she proved a success, and for over twenty years her life has been a busy one. Her child had grown to early manhood, and giving promise of more than ordinary talent, when he fell, a victim of consumption. He was a devoted son and her loss was irreparable. Of fine personal appearance, a woman of queenly carriage, she was a true type of the southern matron who graced the homes of the South in its palmy days. But when the conditions changed they bravely met the issues and carried into their business lines that touch of dignity that always commands respect and she was ever a welcome guest in the homes of her patrons on all occasions. When, a few months since her health failed, she hoped by care and rest to regain it. But when a few weeks ago it was revealed to her that she was in the last stages of consumption, she met her fate with the same high courage that had sustained her in the past, and conscious of a life well spent, she went forward bravely to meet the end, with a full assurance that the Ruler of the Universe is not unkind of His own, and that "He doeth all things well."

Leona Taylor was born at Columbus, Miss., August 29, 1846. She married James McNulty in that city, December 27, 1866. In company with her parents and other members of her family she and her husband came to San Francisco via

OUR PRICES
ON ALL SUMMER

Shirt Waists, Crash Suits & Skirts

WILL BE
Fifty Cents
ON THE Dollar

FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS.

THAT MEANS THAT YOU CAN GET A

Fifty-Cent Shirt Waist at.....	25c	Fifty-Cent Crash Skirt at.....	25c
Seventy-Five-Cent Shirt Waists at...	38c	Seventy-Five-Cent Crash Skirt.....	38c
Dollar Shirt Waist at.....	50c	Dollar Crash Skirt Skirt at.....	50c
Dollar Fifty Shirt Waists at.....	75c	Dollar Fifty Crash Skirt at.....	75c
Two Dollar Shirt Waist at.....	1 00	Two Dollar Crash Skirt at.....	1 00

Five Dollar Crash Suits at $2 50
Four Dollar Crash Suits at $2 00

This is a Genuine Bargain Sale, so come early and get first choice as they will not last long at these prices.

KLINE'S WHITE HOUSE

the Isthmus of Panama, in 1869. That same year Mr. McNulty was accidentally burned to death at Stockton, California. Shortly after his death the family moved to Corvallis and Mrs. McNulty has resided here continuously until her death, about 10 o'clock last Tuesday night. She was the mother of but one child, Claude B. McNulty, who died of consumption, in 1886, at the age of 18 years. Mrs. McNulty was one of ten children born to Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Taylor. Of these, but three survive her: Mrs. M. L. Ledgerwood, of Seattle; and Dr. E. H. Taylor and James C. Taylor, of this city.

The funeral service was conducted at the family residence by Rev. Dr. E. J. Thompson yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A large number of friends were present, and followed the hearse to the Odd Fellows' cemetery where the last rites were performed.

McFadden-Whitaker.

The wedding of Attorney Julian N. McFadden and Miss E. Agnes Whitaker occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Whitaker, ten miles south of Corvallis, Wednesday afternoon, July 31, at 4 o'clock. Rev. Father Jurek performed the impressive service of the Catholic church in the presence of relatives and immediate friends of the bride and groom. After the ceremony lunch was served and the happy couple left for their new home in this city at the corner of 8th and Monroe streets.

The groom is the oldest son of Judge W. S. McFadden. He was born and grew to manhood in this city, and is now junior member of the law firm of McFadden & McFadden. His bride is also a native of Benton county. She is well known in Corvallis where she has many friends. The GAZETTE joins these in wishing the young couple a happy and prosperous married life.

Killed a Deer.

Walter Wicks has a young bird dog of which he is quite proud. Wednesday afternoon, in company with Cass Bryant, he went into the prune orchard of Joe Bryant, a mile or so north of Corvallis, for the purpose of teaching the pup to retrieve. Walter had a shotgun loaded with No. 6 shot and desired to shoot something with features on in order to see how his canine would act. The boys "jumped" a deer in the orchard and Walter shot at it, the charge taking effect in the back of the deer's head. It ran a short distance and stopped, when the young deer-slayer sneaked up and shot it again, this time with fatal effect. The lads were greatly excited and nearly wore themselves out in an attempt to cut the animal's throat with an old pocket-knife with a badly nicked blade. The animal was a 2-year-old buck. Deer have frequently been seen near town of late. Yesterday morning, while going out to the Odd Fellows' cemetery, Oliver Treese and Henry Gerber saw a deer just west of town.

BENTON COUNTY LUMBER COMPANY
Manufacturers of all kinds of—
Rough and Dressed Fir Lumber
IN CARLOAD LOTS

YARDS AT CORVALLIS
Corner of 5th and Washington Streets.

For prices enquire at yards or address the company at Corvallis or Philomath, Oregon.

Job Printing
at this office

Corvallis' Most Popular Eating House
THE Pioneer Bakery AND RESTAURANT.

Fresh bread daily. A complete stock of candies, fruits and nuts kept constantly on hand. Smokers supplies a specialty.

H. W. HALL, Proprietor.

Our Expansion Sale
ON
Men's and Boys' CLOTHING

Owing to the fact that we will have the largest and best stock of Men's and Boys' Clothing that ever came to Corvallis this Fall, we will have to expand our clothing room. Therefore we will sell all remaining clothing

At a Liberal Discount
15 Per Cent

Our new clothing will be the well-known Hart, Shaffner & Marx Brand; best clothing on earth at the price

S. L. KLINE.