JUDGE WILLIAMS' ADDRESS.

We are indebted to Sunday's Oregonian for a full report of the address of Hon. George H. Williams before the Summer School at Newport. It is replete with patriotism, wisdom and felicity of expression and we regret that we cannot present it to our readers in its entirety.

After defining public opinion as "the aggregation of individual opinions," he says of its reformation:

"Reformation should begin at the bottom and work up. I am of the opinion that in our time too much value is attached to the forcible correction of evils through the functions of government and not enough to the improvement of individual citizenship. Legislative enactments that do not embody and represent public opinion are for the most part a delusion and a snare. My faith in legislation to make men good, moral or generous is a minor quantity. What is most needed is something that will develop and impart controlling power to the individual."

Our "moral reformers" should profit by this, forego their efforts of moral reformation by law and direct them to more fruitful purpose. Of reformatory agencies, he said:

"Looking at the subject in the light of history, it appears to me that the most effective instrumentality for the expansion and elevation of the moral faculties of man is the influence of religious institutions upon human affairs. What I want to emphasize is that the development of our moral faculties is the greatest necessity of the age, and that religious institutions are the best means now known to stimulate and expand these faculties."

He deplores the selfish spirit of commercialism and finds but one adequate remedy for it. He says:

"My observation impresses me with the belief that the most effective way of overcoming the cruel selfishness of the world is to impregnate the hearts of the people with the teachings of Jesus of Nazareth."

He believes these teachings are gaining ground.

"I should say that sectarianism, dogmatic theology, the ceremonials of religion and the claim of the inerrancy of the Scriptures were losing the hold they formerly had upon the popular mind, but that the essential teachings of Jesus Christ are gaining ground I entertain no doubt."

Speaking of the influence of the clergy, he says:

"Next to the public press, the most potent influence upon public opinion proceeds from the clergy. Some of these gentlemen are erratic, some have a zeal not according to knowledge and some are illiberal in their views, but the aggregate result of their labors, without question, is to uplift humanity to a higher and better life."

This conclusion is doubtless correct, and we imagine if the erratic, the ignorant and illiberal were unfrocked and their places filled with the most efficient men the "aggregate result" would be about ninety per cent. more uplifting.

He justly deplores the evils of vicious journalism:

"Newspapers are more numerous and more ably conducted now than ever before and wield an incalculable influence upon the thoughts and actions of men. They are winged messengers of intelligence, the avenues of knowledge to the people, the searchlights of the political world, but then the moral influence is not what it might be or what it ought to be."

He deplores the publication of vice and crime as demoralizing, and deprecates the indiscriminate abuse of public men and officials:

"Many people dependent upon the newspaper for their information take up the idea that our government is rotten from top to bottom, and that most of our public men are 'grafters,' when the fact is that the administration of our public affairs is as free from peculation and fraud as it has ever been since the formation of the government."

This is doubtless true, but it has been mainly through the influence of a free and fearless press that it is true. While "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty" so long will a fearless and independent press keep its searchlights turned upon public men and their conduct of public affairs.

He is not afflicted with monopoliphobia:

"We are confronted with a sudden and extraordinary outgrowth of trusts, monopolies and corporations, filling the minds of many people with painful apprehensions as to the futuro. I do not fully share in these apprehensions because I do not believe in the permanency of any business policy that is unnatural and unjust. Combinations of capital are not always unjust. They have always existed and always will exist, but when these combinations step out of the sphere of legitimate business and enter upon a speculative policy and become extortionate and oppressive, their ultimate failure is a mere matter of time."

Of course these combinations give him no feeling of apprehension nor should they any properly informed and thoughtful man. Why should they? Modern conditions of business demand they exist. Only by massing capital is it longer possible to maintain a high wage scale and cheaper products. There must be economy in production, and that can be reached only through combinations and aggregations of capital. Never has the whole country been so healthfully prosperous. Never has prosperity been marked by so little spirit of speculation, extortion and oppression. Mr. Williams sees this, for he says:

"The greed for gain is not now so narrow, sordid and mean as it formerly was. I believe that good influences are now gaining ground and that the world in all respects has improved. Never have the habitations of men been as good and as conducive to the health, comfort and happiness of their inmates as they are now. Never has the laboring man been so intelligent, so highly respected, so independent and so well paid for his labor as he is now."

Age usually renders men pessimistic in their views. Through all his honorable life he has kept in close contact with men and affairs. His training, his wide experience and observation give peculiar weight to his conclusions, such weight as cannot possibly attach to the deductions of men who glibly prattle at three thousand miles range of conditions and things of which they practically know nothing:

Average Wheat Yields.

The agricultural department at Washington, D. C., issue the following concerning the wheat growing conditions of the Pacific coast:

There are on an average, 4,343,801 acres of wheat harvested in the Pacific coast region each year. The averages for the past 10 years show that this section ordinarily will yield about 15 bushels per acre and produce a total annual crop of 65,017,582 bushels.

The average yield per acre in Oregon during this ten year period has been 17.7 bushels. In Washington the average yield is 20.9 bushels. The Idaho yield is 22.8 bushels per acre.

makes kidneys and bladder right.

The greatest skin specialist in America originated the formula for Banner Salve. For all skin diseases, all cuts or sores, and for piles, it's the most healing medicine. Beware of substitutes. Graham & Wortham.

Mr. W. J. Baxter, of North Brook, N. C., says he suffered with piles for 15 years. He tried many remedies with no results until he used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and that quickly cured him.—Graham & Wells.

Those famous little pills, DeWitt's Little Early Risers compel your liver and bowels to do their duty, thus giving you pure, rich blood to recuperate your body. Are easy to take. Never gripe. Graham & Wells.

Mrs. S. H. Allport, Johnstown, Pa., says: "Our little girl almost strangled to death with croup. The doctors said she couldn't live but she was instantly relieved by One Minute Cough Cure. Graham & Wells.

In cases of cough or croup give the little one One Minute Cough Cure. Then rest easy and have no fear. The child will be all right in a little while. It never fails. Pleasant to take, always safe, sure and almost instantaneous in effect. Graham & Wells.

Question Answered

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mother and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to cleanse out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Get Green's Prize Almanac.—Graham & Wortham.

Eruptions, cuts, burns, scalds and sores of all kinds quickly healed by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Certain cure for piles. Beware of counterfeits. Be sure you get the original—DeWitt's. Graham & Well's.

"I had a running sore on my breast for over a year," says Henry R. Richards, of Willseyville, N. Y., "and tried a great many remedies, but got no relief until I used Banner Salve. After using one-half box, I was perfectly cured. I cannot recommend it too highly." Graham & Wortham.

O. O. Buck, Beirne, Ark., says: "I was troubled with constipation until I bought DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Since then I have been entirely cured of my old complaint. I recommend them. Graham & Wells.

P. T. Thomas, Sumpterville, Ala., "I was suffering from dyspepsia when I commenced taking Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I took several bottles and can digest anything." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the only preparation containing all the natural digestive fluids. It gives weak stomachs entire rest, restoring their natural condition. Graham & Wells.

The Great Scourge

Of modern times is consumption. Many cures and discoveries from time to time are published but Foley's Honey and Tar does truthfully claim to cure all cases in the early stages and always affords comfort and relief in the very worst cases. Take no substitutes. Graham & Wortham.

Don't be satisfied with temporary relief from indigestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure permanently and completely removes this complaint. It relieves permanently because it allows the tired stomach perfect rest. Dieting won't rest the stomach. Nature receives supplies from the food we eat. The sensible way to help the stomach is to use Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which digests what you eat and can't help but do you good. Graham & Wells.
