Preparations are being made by the boys at the O. A. C. for a grand ball to be given at the Armory on Thanksgiving night. There is no question of the affair being most delightful and in all probability the attendance will be large.

During the past few days the Corvallis sawmill has only been able to operate at the planer. The reason of this was on account of the supply of logs giving out. However, logs are to be had in great quantities and the mill will be kept running in full blast from now on.

Otto Headrick came out from Alsea, about a week ago and since then has been visiting friends in this locality. In the course of a week he expects to be in Seattle, where he will have employment. However, before going to Seattle he will visit with relatives and friends in Salem.

N. S. Lilly returned home, Tuesday, from Oak Creek, Douglas county, after a visit of about ten days in that section, during which time he was the guest of his son, Leslie. Mr. Lilly states that every thing is looking excellent in that section and that Leslie is getting along nicely.

O. V. Hurt returned home, Tuesday, from Portland, where he had been a few days visiting his son Frank. Frank is employed as checking clerk at Ainsworth dock for the O. R. & N. Co. He has a pretty good situation. Mr. Hurt says times are pretty lively in Portland and any laboring man can secure employment if he really cares to, and at good wages.

The next and fourth lecture of the series of Stat Course Entertainments will be delivered in this city November 20th by Prof. G. L. Gaston. His subject will be "Yosemite," and it is a lecture of the most entertaining character. Prof. Gaston can be persuaded to give a free lecture in one of the churches of this city on a Sunday evening during his visit in Corvallis, and it is sincerely hoped that somebody will show sufficient interest in this matter to take in hand.

Our readers will recall the fact that Prof. Chesnut, of National Department of Agriculture, and Prof. Lake, of O. A. C., began the study of poisonous plants last Spring. Prof. Lake, in his annual report, makes the following allusion to this matter: "A study of the plants of the state reputed to be poisonous to stock, especially sheep, was commenced this spring in connection with the National Department of Agriculture. It is expected that investigations will cover several years, though a preliminary report of the work done this year will be published shortly."

The Albany Herald accuses the GAZETTE of despondency, because we said that in the matter of athletics the O. A. C. is "practically where she was ten years ago." Let's see. Didn't O. A. C. defeat Albany college in a game of football by a score of 62 to 0, along about that time?

Frank Groves leaves in about ten days for Puget Sound Navy yards. Some months ago he took the civil service examination for employment under the navy department, and last Wednesday received notice of his appointment as storeman at the Puget Sound station. He begins on a salary of $75 per month.

S. H. Horton, of Monroe, is undoubtedly entitled to the name of being the champion pea raiser of Oregon. From five square rods of a plot of Canada field peas planted last February, he recently harvested two bushels and seven pounds of peas. One strip of two rods, yielded an even bushel. This is a yield of 80 bushels to the acre.

Preparations are being made for digging a drainage ditch from the orchard of the college farm to a point west of Gauthorn Hall, distant some 50 or 60 rods. A ditch is also to be dug from the prune dryer to connect with the one running from the orchard south. If the weather will permit work will be commenced today.

The Baptist people have greatly improved the interior of their church by covering the floor with a pretty carpet from Mr. Blackledge's excellent stock. Also varnishing the woodwork, papering the hall, and putting up additional lamps, giving it a bright and cheerful appearance, much to the delight of their pastor on his return from attendance at convention in Portland. He with all the members realize their great indebtedness to all their generous friends and desire acceptance of their heartiest thanks. Services as usual on Lords day. Come and welcome.

The preliminary examination in the case of The State of Oregon vs Pearl Cooper occurred in Justice Holgate's court Tuesday afternoon. The state was represented by Deputy Prosecuting Attorney E. B. Bryson, and Judge W. S. McFadden appeared for the prisoner. But two witnesses were examined, John Post and E. E. Norton. Cooper informed the court that he did not desire to make a statement at this time. The cross examination, indicated clearly that the defense will urge accidental shooting. Justice Holgate stated that the evidence was sufficient to hold the defendant to answer before the next term of circuit court, and placed his bond at $500, which was furnished.

After Ten Years.

After an absence of ten years, Professor Ed Lyman, now of Shanghai, China, visited old friends in Corvallis this week. Ten years ago Professor Lyman was a fellow student with the GAZETTE man at the Agricultural College. After two years in that institution he went to California and entered Stanford university, graduating in the same class with Professor Shelton, now a member of the faculty of the University of Oregon. Mr. Lyman then taught in a high school in Southern California for one year, and later was chemist in a large beet sugar factory.

Three years ago he went to China to accept the chair of chemistry in the Polytechnic school in Shanghai.

Three weeks before the attack upon the foreign representatives at Pekin, he was in that city, and only by the merest accident missed being there during the siege. He was in Shanghai, however, during all the season of hostilities.

Recently the Chinese government offered him the position of instructor in chemistry in the Nang Yang college, at Shanghai, which he accepted. He leaves today or tomorrow for San Francisco, from which city he will depart six weeks hence for China.

Professor Lyman's success thus early in life is no surprise to his friends, who recognized in him in his first years at the O. A. C. the qualities which make for and deserve success. Tuesday, he visited the college, and at the request of Professor Skelton, talked to the students in the department of mathematics, concerning educational matters in China.

Nang Yang college is a government institution, largely attended by Chinese students, and having as a corps of instructors, only Americans and Europeans. The Chinaman is quick to learn, but slow to reason. He is studious, thoroughly in earnest, and eager to acquire. His feats of memory are remarkable, but when required to resort to original research, helplessness overtakes him. The Chinese system of education has been woefully lacking in inductive methods, but Professor Lyman believes that the empire is on the eve of a great awakening.

Animal Husbandry.

The annual report of the Oregon Agricultural College and the Experiment Station for the year ending June 30, 1901, has just reached us. It is full of information pertaining to the college and station affairs. In his report, Dr. James Withycombe, vice-director or the experiment station, touches on "animal husbandry" in a way that will be of interest to stock raisers. Speaking of cattle and sheep, he says:

The results of the experiment of feeding steers were not satisfactory, owing to the continued wildness of the animals and their failure to become reconciled to confinement. For this reason they could not be induced to eat sufficient food to give profitable returns. This points to the importance of an effort on the part of farmers to maintain a more highly domesticated condition of the live stock of the farm.

Experiments in sheep feeding under sheltered and unsheltered conditions were undertaken. For this work 12 fall shorn wether lambs were selected, which were as uniform both in size and breeding as could be obtained. These were divided into two lots. Six of these lambs were placed in a clean enclosure without shelter, and the other six were sheltered in a comfortable, clean, well ventilated and well lighted pen. The rations of the two lots were the same, and they ate practically an equal quantity, except the waste was slightly greater with the unsheltered lot.

At the end of the feeding lot 1 had gained 155 lbs.; lot 2, 149 lbs. They were then shorn and lot 1 produced 21 lbs. of unwashed wool; lot 2, 27.75 lbs. Ten pounds of wool from each lot were carefully tub-washed and dried, with the result that the sample taken from lot 1, after this treatment, weighed 7.75 lbs.; lot 2, 8 lbs. This showed that while lot 1 made the larger gain in live weight, lot 2 made the more profitable gain, when the value of the wool was taken into account.

Wedding Bells.

Two well-known Benton county families had occasion to gather around a richly laden table on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ruth Buchanan in this city, whose daughter, Alice, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert C. Herron. The parlors were tastefully decorated with ferns and flowers. At 2 p. m. Mrs. Fred Buchanan took her place at the piano, and while the strains of the wedding march filled the house, the bride and groom entered unattended and took a position in the center of the front parlor, where an impressive ceremony, including the presentation of the wedding ring by the groom, was pronounced by the Rev. Frank L. Moore. The bride was attired in white organdie and carried a bouquet of white cosmos. If a thought follows a wish, and a reality follows a thought, then judged by the hearty expressions of good will, their new home will have much of pleasure in it.

Fast Traveling.

Clarence Starr returned home, Tuesday, from Seaside, Oregon, where he had been employed for several months in a sawmill. He relates an amusing story at the expense of the little pumpkin-vine railroad that runs from Warrenton to Seaside. While en route home, traveling over this line, the train slowed down, that is, it went slower than usual, and the whistle was repeatedly blown in vain efforts to give the right of way and a wearied passenger finally agreed to give her a start, which he did. She seemed quite alarmed at the demonstrations of the passenger and, throwing her tail to the breeze, continued her way on down the track at her liveliest gait. The passenger climbed back onto the "whole train" and the engine was turned loose to make up the time lost. After about half an hour's run the train was again slowed down and the shrill whistle resounded along the coast. The passenger inquired what was the matter now. He was answered by the conductor who stated that they had caught up with the cow.

A Wonderful Plow.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—We had quite a little excitement the other day at Hugh Click's, where a field test was made of the Benecia Disc Plow, which is handled by J. H. Simpson. Several of the farmers gathered in to see it work, as we are all looking for something new in the plow line. The lightness of draft and the excellent character of the work are pronounced the finest ever seen in this part of the country by all present. It worked equally well in black and red dobs and prairie soil. Three horses drawing a 2-disc plow, cutting 12 inches each and 8 inches deep, are worked no harder than they would be if drawing a 16-inch walking plow at the same depth, and the soil is turned over and pulverized in a far better manner than any mould-board plow can possibly do the work. One man and four horses with this plow can do as much work, and do it better, than two men and six or eight horses do with walking plows. Yours, FLOW BOY, Bruce, Ore., Oct. 26, 1901.

Chemawa vs. O. A. C.

Tomorrow the Chemawa eleven will meet the O. A. C. team on the college campus, and the result is by no means a foregone conclusion. While the Indians have been defeated in both contests in which they have participated this season, Chemawa is always a hard nut to crack. The farmers, also may be counted upon to put up a far better contest than that of last Saturday. They have good stuff in them and Captain Ganit knows how to bring it out. They are by no means discouraged over their defeat in their game with Albany. They regard that as merely a preliminary skirmish, and while they are none to sanguine of victory tomorrow, still they expect to render a good account of themselves by the end of the season.

The student body needs discipline as much as does the team. Enthusiasm and college spirit seem to be unknown quantities with them. While anything resembling unsportsmanlike conduct is to be avoided, students can manifest an interest by appearing en masse along the side lines, and the players will be encouraged to supreme effort if approval is given when it is deserved.
