

WHAT THEY EXPRESS.

A general analysis of the late election shows the results to be most gratifying not only to republicans but also to all friends of good government.

The result in Pennsylvania is the peoples' unmistakable expression of satisfaction not only with their local governments but with republican policies.

In Ohio the re-election of Gov. Nash is especially gratifying to republicans.

The people of Ohio approve republican policies, not simply because they honor the memory of McKinley.

Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Iowa are still found in the republican column and give ample evidence of their purpose to remain with it.

The results in Maryland and in Kentucky are what should have been expected by every one.

Race prejudice alone will keep the south solid for an indefinite period. We expect to see the south divided on many policies.

The rapid industrial development of the south is contributing to this, and if the race problem were once removed or finally settled the south would cease to be so closely identified with one party.

The late Booker Washington episode but served to confirm the southern people in this attitude.

The elections show that there will be no new alignment of parties. The country was never before so prosperous.

"I had a running sore on my leg for seven years," writes Mrs. Jas. Forest of Chippewa Falls, Wis., "and spent hundreds of dollars in trying to get it healed.

Selections from Roman History

A Literal Translation from Eutropius by C. Maclean, Ph. D.—Death of Mithradates, Cassius's Conspiracy.

While these things were [lit. are] being carried on pirates were infesting every sea in such a manner that for the Romans, the conquerors of the whole world, sailing was not safe.

In the consulships of Marcus Tullius Cicero, the Orator, and Caius Antonius, in the year after the founding of the city six hundred and eighty nine.

In the six-hundredth and ninety-ninth year after the building of the City, in the consulships of Decimus Junius Silanus Murena, Metellus celebrated a triumph for his conquests in Crete, and for Pompey for his victory in the war with the pirates and with Mithradates.
