In response to a popular demand on the part of a number of our business men, J. B. Paterson, physical director at the O. A. C., will organize a class in gymnastics for clerks, teachers and business and professional men, November 19th, at 8:00 p. m. The work to be given is designed for health and recreation. The class will have the use of the college gymnasium, and a fee of $7 for a term of 14 weeks will be charged.

For the third time in the history of Oregon intercollegiate football, the teams of Pacific university and O. A. C. are to meet on the local campus tomorrow. Their first meeting resulted in a scoreless game, and the second contest ended 5 to 5. This year there eleven are considered to be nearly equal in strength and a close and exciting game is to be expected. The whistle will be sounded at 2:30 sharp, and the side lines should be crowded with enthusiastic supporters of the orange.

In an older day when the public was less sophisticated there might have been a field for the sensational evangelist, but the time is past. For every person of an emotional nature that is brought into the church by the traveling revivalist the arder of half dozen is cooled by his extravagances, to say nothing of the daily shocks to their intelligence. The best work that is done for the church has no band-wagon accompaniment. It is done quietly and unostentatiously from day to day by the regular clergy, but it is effective.—Detroit Free Press.

We are in receipt of a very interesting account of a coyote hunt which occurred last week near Wren, but lack of space precludes other than mere details. The chase started on the Lilly farm, two miles from Wren, at 7:15 a. m., and the game was run to quarry about 9 a. m. The hunting party consisted of O. L. DeAtteley, William Gerard and Mr. Elliott, assisted by our dogs, Clifford Johnson and John Stroud heard the dogs and joined in the chase. To them given the credit for shooting the varmint. A mate is still at large, and a hunt for it was to have been started last Tuesday.

The audiences and the interest in the revival at the Christian church is increasing. The sermon on Wednesday night was a masterpiece. The subject was "Supreme Realities." Those who missed this sermon missed an intellectual and spiritual treat. Four young men responded to the invitation at the close and confessed their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

M. L. Chamberlain clerk of the State School Land Board, reports an unusual demand and an increased number of sales by the state of farming lands. That a good majority of these sales are made to new-comers indicates a constant and increased immigration of a desirable class of people who have sufficient means for investing in homes and becoming identified with the interests of the community in which they locate, and the state at large.

A petition has been circulated and signed by 52 residents across the river, asking the City Council to allow free passes across the toll bridge for revival meetings services on Sunday and for funerals. The petition is to be presented to the City Council at its regular meeting tonight. Sec. 3248, of the General Code of Oregon, page 1441 of Hill's Code, provides that no toll on toll roads or bridges shall be collected from people going to funerals, elections to vote, or to church services on Sunday. It is believed the law will apply to the Albany bridge.—Herald.

The board of awards, Henry Wortham, A. J. Metzger and Clem Hodes, sat in judgment Monday evening on the drawings offered by the Black Cat Sketching Club in the contest conducted by S. L. Kline at his big store. About 30 artists contributed to the exhibition, and Tabbies, Toms and Marias of all colors and descriptions meandered for recognition. But only the most comical and original drawings stood a chance for the prize. The session of the committee did not consume as much time as the Schley inquiry, but it was quite as deliberate, and its choice fell upon a belligerent fellow with quaint frame and glaring eyeballs, the product of the pencil of Edwin Woodcock.

Horace Underhill of Summit was in the city yesterday. He is just recovering from the effects of injuries received some six weeks ago by being thrown from a pony. The animal became frightened and threw Mr. Underhill. He struck on his back and was severely bruised. Speaking of the new school building at Summit, which is nearing completion, Mr. Underhill said it would be ready for the spring term of school. It was built by private subscription and a dance will be given at Summit on the 22nd of November to raise funds to complete the work. Citizens of that district are very thankful to the business men of Corvallis, who so kindly aided them in the building of the new school house.

Will Fieshter, formerly of this city, but now proprietor of a candy store at Pendleton, Oregon, was the victim of robbery Sunday morning, by which he lost nearly $100 in coin. When Mr. Fieshter appeared at his store at the hour for opening, he found the front and back doors were locked as they had been when he left his place of business the previous evening. None of the windows had been disturbed and it was a question as to how entrance was effected. Close examination by officers disclosed that the back door had been opened. The key in the lock was removed with a pair of pinchers from the outside and a skeleton key then used to open the door. After the burglar got inside the room he put the key in the lock and looked the door. The money was secreted in two small tin boxes hid in an empty cigar box under the cigar counter. After the burglar had secured the cash and a fine double-action revolver, which was in the cash drawer, he went out through the front door and sprung the lock after him.

His Train Was Wrecked.

Mr. John Schouldt arrived home Wednesday from a short visit to his old home in Chicago after an absence of 17 years. He is suffering considerably from injuries received in the train wreck which occurred two miles east of La Grande, Monday morning about 5 o'clock. At that hour the west bound passenger train plunged into freight No. 21, which had stopped to repair a broken journal. The passengers were badly shaken up and many received severe bruises. Mr. Schouldt was nearly thrown from his berth. His head was thrown against some portion of the berth so violently that a number of his teeth were knocked out, and he has suffered much pain in his jaws and head ever since.

Claim Agent Hall, of the O. R. & N. was on the ground, and Mr. Schouldt accepted the company's offer of $75 to cover his claim for injuries, rather than to engage in a long lawsuit.

Although Mr. Schouldt was a resident of Chicago for 19 years, he felt like a stranger in the windy city. He returns to Oregon satisfied to make it his home, and he will probably locate in this immediate vicinity.

A Bright Beginning.

A meeting was held at the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening to make preparatory arrangements for the annual meeting of the Valley Choral Union to be held in this city next May. The meeting was enthusiastic and largely attended. Hon. Wallis Nash presided. Sixty-three signers were secured to the roll of active members, and this was increased to 173 when the roll was opened for signatures at chapel meeting in the college Wednesday morning. Virgil Waters, R. H. Huston and Prof. A. B. Cordley were appointed on the finance committee, and the committee on membership is composed of the following members: Mrs. Callahan, Misses Chamberlin, Orla Thompson, and Lulu Spangler, and Dr. Cathey, Bert Geer and J. D. Zercher. This committee will report at a meeting of the Union to be held on the evening of November 25th.

Each member will be expected to furnish his own music which will cost from $1.00 to $1.40. Active practice will begin the second week in January.

Mrs. Additon is Home.

Mrs. Lucia F. Additon, for many years a resident of Corvallis, has returned to Portland from a three months' trip to the Middle West in the interest of the W. C. T. U. work.

At Clinton, Ia., on Labor Day, Mrs. Additon was received with much enthusiasm, and the Labor Congress insisted upon her return next year. She also organized a Consumers' League.

Addresses were delivered before colleges, women's clubs, parlor gatherings, labor unions, churches and conventions, where the well-wishes were most cordial. At Des Moines, Iowa, Mrs. Additon had two especially delightful meetings. One was a parlor gathering of the prominent Suffrage Club, and the other, a joint meeting of three Women's Clubs and W. C. T. U., at which a Consumers' League was organized. Mrs. Additon spoke in Montana, Dakota and Nebraska. In Wyoming, she attended a political primary with the women voters, and was impressed with the order and moral atmosphere.

Mrs. Additon is one of the brightest W. C. T. U. workers on this coast, and is interested in all of the departments. Several of the newspapers spoke of her as one of the ablest speakers of the National lecture force.

Is a Noted Scout.

Capt. Geo. E. Bartlett, one of the best rifle shots in the world, now traveling salesman for the Peters Cartridge Co., gave an exhibition of his prowess with a rifle before a number of interested sportsmen on the flat near Marys river Tuesday. His skill with fire arms is marvelous. Clay pigeons were broken with a shotgun at 60 yards without a miss and pieces of brick no larger than a marble were thrown in the air and hit on an average of four out of five times with a 22-calibre rifle.

An interesting test was made to show the superiority of Kings smokeless shotgun powder, and Kings semi-smokeless powder in metallic rifle and pistol cartridges. After firing 250 shots from a 22-calibre rifle, using Peters cartridges, it was examined and found to be bright and clean. Then three cartridges of another make were fired from the same rifle and they left more fouling than the previous 250 shots had done. Thirty shots with Peters cartridges were fired which virtually cleaned the gun of the residue left by the previous three.

Simpson & Huston have ordered a supply of these cartridges for their customers.

A writer recently speaking of his career as an Indian scout in the Black Hills country and the Dakotas, says:

"He won great distinction as captain of the police Indian scouts at Pine Ridge agency, S. D., in 1890 and 1891, and was at the Wounded Knee fight December 29, 1890, when 400 Indians and 45 United States soldiers were killed. He also was sent in command of the relief party, who went out to the battle ground on January 1, 1891, to pick up the few wounded Indians that had been left there to die, and with his own hands unfolded a dead mother's frozer arms that encircled a baby girl, that was still alive and unharmed."

"The little Indian girl was afterwards named Lost Bird (Zitkalan Nuni) and was adopted by Mrs. General Colby, who is now educating her in Washington, D. C., where she is admired by all who know her, for she is pretty and very bright—as well as a rare reminder of a ghastly, murderous fight, and the ghost-dance war with the Sioux."

This is Captain Bartlett's first trip to the Willamette Valley, and he is delighted with the trip.

All Oregon Talent.

Oregonians are gradually awakening to the fact that their grand old state is just as prolific in good things as any other state, anywhere, and literary and musical talent is not the least of these acquisitions. That dramatic genius is native to our soil has been demonstrated in the entertainments given this week at the Opera House by the Fischer-VanCleve Company.

The cast is made up almost entirely of Native sons and daughters of Oregon, and considering the fact that they are all young people, and that the season has not yet advanced far enough for them to get well into the harness, they give a meritorious performance.

Miss Babe Fischer, a winsome little lady not yet in her fifteenth year, gives evidence of exceptional talent. She displays rare taste and tact in rendition of each character entrusted to her, and gives an intelligent interpretation. Mr. Covington can be depended upon for a painstaking and finished performance, and the work of Bert VanCleve and J. B. McCowell has elicited much favorable comment.

Of the other members of the cast, Eva VanCleve deserves mention. Tonight's bill is "Tatters," and Saturday night "East Lynne," in which the company is said to be especially strong, will be given.

Joseph Ebner.

A large number of friends and acquaintances of the late Joseph Ebner attended the solemn services conducted at the Catholic church in this city, his old home, by Rev. Father Jurek Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

After an illness of three years, Mr. Ebner died at St. Vincent's hospital, Portland, Monday morning, of diabetes. His mortal remains were brought to Corvallis, Tuesday on the S. P. train.

Joseph Ebner was born in Ohio forty years ago. He came to Corvallis in 1886, and became a clerk for August Hodes, in whose employ he remained for several years. Six years ago he was united in marriage with Mollie Thompson, of this city, who, with a little five-year-old daughter survives him.

The interment was made in the Catholic cemetery.

What the Chief Thinks.

Corvallis, Or., Nov. 14, 1901.
EDITOR GAZETTE:—Please allow us space to state some facts concerning the Fire Department of this city. Some time ago some members of the department spoke to me about taking some action to prohibit the Social Club from holding dances in the Fireman's hall. I then stated that I was willing to do whatever was necessary and in my power providing such action was approved by a majority of our members. I advised that suitable resolutions covering the matter, be introduced at a regular meeting of the department, and, if there approved, there was no doubt, but that the city council would act in accordance with the wish expressed.

At our last regular meeting no such resolutions were introduced, although I learned after the meeting had adjourned that resolutions had been gotten up, and the same are now in the hands of the secretary. I was requested by several members to call a special meeting of the department to act on this matter. I would not do so without the regular form being complied with—namely, that an application signed by at least seven members be secured. This application was handed to me later, signed by fourteen members of the department. I declined to call such a meeting in the usual way by posting notices, but instructed our secretary to notify each member by mail, and he at once proceeded to do so. However, before he had time to write out and mail these notices, several of those that had signed the requisition came to me and wished to have the call revoked, and after due consideration, I did so. I then learned that a petition would be circulated for signatures asking the city council to prohibit the Social Club using the hall for dances.

On Monday evening a member of the fire department handed me a paper addressed to the city council. I looked it over and handed it back. I asked him how many he could get to sign this paper. His answer was, "I can get lots of them." I then supposed it was his intention to proceed to do so. I was surprised to hear a paper somewhat similar read at the council meeting and signed "Several Members of the Department."

I wish to say that I do not approve of any such proceedings. No member of the department has any right or authority to address such a paper to the city council, or any where else. They have a perfect right to do so, provided they attach their names to the same. I am sorry any unpleasantness should arise, as I would like to have harmony in the department if possible. It is very important that we should maintain an efficient fire department.

By the action of the council at its last meeting, the control of the fireman's hall has been assumed entirely by them. This relieves the fire department from any responsibility in the matter, and any individual or organization wishing to use the same must secure permission from the city to do so.

I, however, believe that every fire department should own and control its own hall, and it would have been much better for our department if it had remained separate and independent from the city in this matter. As it is, I believe that the action of the council was the best for all concerned.

Respectfully,
F. P. SHEARGREEN,
Chief C. F. D.
