A robbery which has just come to light, occurred in this city several nights ago. When Charley Hout opened his butcher shop one morning he found the cash register open and the dollar change, usually left in the till, gone. Investigation disclosed the fact that a hole had been cut in the screen door at the rear of the shop, and the latch raised. The door had been left open for ventilation. Suspicion rests strongly upon a certain party, but nothing has been done in the matter thus far.

A SNAPPY CONTEST.

The Farmers' Defeated the Dudes by a Score of Fifteen to Five.

The game of football played by the second teams of O A C and U of O on the college campus Saturday afternoon was the most snappy and spectacular of any contest seen on the home field in two seasons. While the college eleven did not contain a man that appeared in the game against Pacific university the week before, it put up a game that will hustle the first team to beat. The university employed only second team men, and neither team employed a substitute. This speaks well for the cleanness of the contest.

There was just one feature to burden the pleasure of the afternoon. A burden afflicted and inflicted. Mr. Burden, if you please, physical instructor at the U. of O., whose specialty seems to be in intruding himself into places where he is not wanted. Like "Dr. Fell," he seems to have a genius for being offensive, and a tact for doing the wrong thing all the time. It is unfortunate that the university has such a person in her faculty. Her students are true sportsmen, and their behavior is always gentlemanly. But so long as Mr. Burden is permitted to force himself in as official for the university in any of its contests, just so long will the representatives of that institution be in bad repute in the athletic world. Mr. Burden has been in Corvallis before and he is not welcome here. If he is a gentleman that is sufficient reason for his staying away, so far as participation in anything of a public nature is concerned. If the members of the university team are to be believed, he was not wanted as an official in the contest Saturday, but he offered his services, and they dared not offend by refusing to accept them. A member of the 'varsity team of '99, said Sunday: "Burden came near breaking up the first team that year. He claims that he played substitute on a Yale team, and he wanted to coach the 'varsity. His position as physical instructor gave him opportunity to use pressure, but we withstood him. He can never officiate for the 'varsity again."

Saturday he made himself most obnoxious by his quibbling over trifles, and egotistical behavior. The other officials and the players bore with him patiently, but the spectators were aggravated beyond endurance. Not so in the games with Albany and Pacific university. Although in each case the coach of the visiting team acted as an official, not a decision was questioned and all went smoothly.

THE GAME.

Eugene kicked off, defending the west goal. Rinehart ran the ball in ten yards. And in the first scrimmage Hanley was sent at the line. For a moment there was a mass of writhing humanity and then Hanley was seen to emerge with the ball and head for the visitors goal. Laughlin was close behind him, blocking beautifully and he crossed the goal line safely for the first touchdown in the first 30 seconds of play. Try for goal failed.

Eugene punted to the farmers' 20 yard line and soon secured the ball on downs. After 20 minutes of hard work on the line Starr was sent over for the university's only touchdown. Goal was missed. Soon after the kickoff, U of O was forced to punt. Cathey, at safety full, gathered it in and made a sensational run of 40 yards before he was forced out of touch. Time was called with the ball in the farmers' possession, in the visitors' territory. Score O A C, 5; U of O, 5.

In ten minutes after the kickoff in the second half the farmers sent Hanley over for their second touchdown after a series of brilliant attacks on the line. Ten minutes later Hanley broke through the line and assisted by Cathey ran forty yards for the last touchdown. In this half Eugene was completely outplayed. She had the ball in her possession but once and then tailed to make her yardage. The farmers' were coming rapidly down the field when time was called. Final score, O A C, 15; U of O, 5.

The Eugene youngsters play a clean, gritty game, and they are all good fellows. Of the local eleven, the work of Hanley, Abraham, Laughlin, Cathey, Gellatly and Rinehart was especially noticeable. The two latter guarded the ends like veterans.

Brings Flattering Report.

A. L. Knisley, chemist at the State Agricultural College at Corvallis, was in the city last night says the Portland Telegram, on his way home from a trip to Union, where he spent the past two weeks analyzing sugar beets from which seeds are to be grown next season. Now that the harvest days are over things are very quiet in the little country town of Eastern Oregon, says the chemist, and he found it difficult to convince himself that this was not the week of turkey and cranberry sauce, so heavy had time hung on his shoulders there, notwithstanding the fact that he did two days' work for every 24 hours he was there.

So far as the beet culture is concerned, however, Union is strictly in it, declares Mr. Knisley. On the average all the roots analyzed showed fully 20 per cent of sugar, which means virtually 5 per cent of the entire substance of the root. Some went as high as 23 per cent, which is considered remarkable. "For the sake of comparison," said Mr. Knisley "it may be said that when in New York a few years ago, I was told that beets analyzing 16 per cent were considered very good. The climate of the country about Union is very favorable for beet culture, an abundance of water and sunshine go to make the sweet beet."

The method of analyzing the beets is quite simple when once understood. Mr. Knisley's mission at Union was also to instruct the people there how to carry on the experiment themselves. A small hole is bored diagonally into the beet and the boring pressed and the juice put to a chemical test. The result is kept classified, according to the percentage of saccharine, and the beets graded and placed in bins until Spring, when they are planted for seed. Thus the very best sugar-producing beets can be cultivated. A. B. Leckenby, the grass expert, well known in these parts, is now in charge of the beet industry at Union, and will supervise the analyzing of 40 tons of beets to be planted next spring.

Concerning Yaquina Harbor.

A dispatch from Washington regarding Pacific coast harbor improvements, has this to say of conditions at Yaquina bay:

There is now a balance available for this project amounting to $127,734, which will cover the cost of rock removing at the entrance of the bay. The expenditures to June 30, 1900, $690,027.68, resulted in completing the two jetties provided for by the original projects, as stated above, and in preparing to remove the cluster of rocks as provided for in the present project. The expenditure during fiscal year ending June 30, 1901, resulted in increasing the depth of water over a portion of the cluster of rocks beyond the sea end of the South jetty from 6 feet to 12 1/2 feet at mean lower low tide, which latter is equivalent to about 17 feet at high tide. It is estimated that the remainder of the cluster of rocks may be removed during the present Summer with the funds available. The maximum draft that could ordinarily be carried during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901, at mean low tide over the shoalest part of the bar channel proper was 14 feet, and over the shoalest part of the cluster of rocks at one side of the channel beyond the sea end of the South jetty about 6 feet.

The first steamer of the season blew her whistle at Corvallis, Sunday evening at 5 o'clock. She was the Pomona and this was her first trip to this city. At six o'clock Monday morning she left on the down trip, having added some wheat to the load of freight she had already taken on at Albany. The Ruth came up last night and left this morning with 300 bales of hops. The river is now at good boating stage. During Saturday night it raised five feet, and the Pomona and Ruth will find no difficulty in making regular trips and providing Corvallis with a daily boat service.
