A Portland dispatch says Adjutant General Gantenbein, O. N. G. who returned today from Washington, D. C., announces that the Second Oregon Regiment will receive about $22,000 additional for their services in the Spanish war. The additional pay is for the period of their services between the date of assembly at the state rendezvous and the muster into the United States service, and will be at the rate of $1.50 per day. The average amount will be about $15, for 1500 officers and men.

The concert given in Philomath last Saturday evening by Miss Mabel Cronise, vocalist, Ruthyn Turney, violinist, and Mordant Goodnough, pianist, was in every way a success. There was a large attendance and the audience proved a most appreciative one, proving that Philomath people are not behind the times in music and matters of art. The concert was under the management of Prof. S. L. Pratt, of the public schools of Philomath, and for the benefit of the library of the schools. Prof. Pratt made a brief announcement of facts concerning the public school, stating that the library was thought to be the largest of any public school in the county.

Sunday's Oregonian contains a half-tone of the White Stars, the winning basketball team of O. A. C. This is the first male basketball team ever organized by the college to represent it in inter-collegiate contests. The team is composed of R. H. Cate, Fred Steiwer, Darby, Wilson, C. C. Cate (Capt.), and K. Steiwer.

Speaking of the performance of "The Wife," given at the Marquam Grand last Thursday night by amateurs, the Oregonian's critic says: "It was the best amateur production ever given in Portland. As all the participants were amateurs, individual mention is unsafe." This critic has evidently been there.

W. Gifford Nash, who has been director of music at the university, has resigned his position to take effect in June, 1905. Mr. Nash asked the board of regents for an increase of $400 in his salary and stated that if not granted he would resign. As the board declined to grant the increase Mr. Nash made his word good and has sent in his resignation. He has many friends here who regret to see him leave the institution.—Eugene Journal.

On February 12th and 14th the third annual convention of horticulturists will be held at the Oregon Agricultural College, this city. During the two days' session there will be entertaining talks and lectures on horticultural topics, followed by discussions, that will beyond doubt be most instructive. Heretofore great success has attended these meetings and there will be a good attendance this year in all probability. The railroad companies will give the usual reduced rates on the certificate.

A. C. Neilson, of Wisconsin, has closed a deal with G. C. Millet for his 1,500-acre farm near Junction City. The transaction represents $50,000. The land was purchased for a colony of Danish folks from Wisconsin who will locate upon it in the near future. The newcomers will engage largely in dairying, and it is probable that a creamery will be established. Mr. Neilson, their representative, states that the farm will be divided into small tracts and every acre made to yield all that is possible. A small portion will be set aside for a church.

The regular Short Course at the Oregon Agricultural College will close with a special Fruit Growers' Convention for Oregon, as in previous years. We go to press earlier than usual this time and cannot announce the program but know that Dr. Withycombe and Prof. Lake have been at work for some time securing papers and addresses for the occasion. The dates fixed for the convention are February 13 and 14. Special rates will no doubt be given by the Southern Pacific Company on the certificate plan. Corvallis is a central point for Western Oregon, and the opportunity of seeing what the College and Experiment Station are doing, and of meeting the members of the Experiment Station Staff is a strong attraction. The convention at Corvallis affords an unusually good opportunity, also, for fruit growers to call the attention of the Experiment Station authorities to matters which need scientific investigation.—Oregon Agriculturist.

A Student Concert will be given in the college chapel next Friday evening under the direction of Miss Philbrick, director of the department of music. The program for these exercises was received too late for publication in this issue. The public is invited.

Dr. L. G. Altman returned, yesterday, from Chicago, whither he went a few weeks ago, fearing that he must undergo a most critical operation. Examination by the experts, proved that this was unnecessary, and Dr. Altman returns greatly improved in health.

Rev. C. C. Poling Ph. D., of Dallas, will preach in the United Evangelical church Friday evening at 7:30. At the close of this service will be held the last quarterly business of the church for this conference year. All are invited to attend.

The following juniors delivered orations at the college chapel Friday afternoon: Harvey C. Pugh, "The Future of our Nation;" Ethel Smith, "Eccentric Americans;" Edward Rosendorf, "Sampson's Part at Santiago;" Rose M. Ingram, "The Basis of Success."

Commissioners court meets tomorrow. After the transaction of regular business, it will adjourn to meet again February 12th, at which time it will listen to suggestions, remonstrances and objections, regarding the list of judges and clerks of election recently selected by the court.

The funeral of H. L. Wilkins, occurred Friday afternoon from the home of his son in this city. Unfortunately the GAZETTE erred in stating that these services would be held at the undertaking parlors. A newspaper is not infallible, and if those acquainted with the facts in any case, through lack of interest or neglect, fail to apprise the newspaper man he has to rely upon whatever source of information he can find.

Mr. Alex Rennie has resigned his position in the establishment of Nolan & Callahan and will leave shortly for McMinnville, where he will take the management of The Farmers and Grangers store of that city. "No better man could have been secured for the position," said Mr. Nolan yesterday. This is a pretty tribute from the head of the firm in whose employ Mr. Rennie has been for the past eight years. While regretting his departure, his many friends here will be pleased to hear of his advancement.

A Hanford, California paper, recently received by S. L. Shedd, of this city, contains an obituary of the late Orin Belknap, who died at Hanford January 9, 1902. Mr. Belknap was born in New York in 1815. He moved to Ohio in 1835, and was married in that state to Miss Nancy Starr. In 1847, with his family he came to Oregon and settled at what is now Bellfountain. Here he lived until the late 60's, when he moved to California. Mr. Belknap was the father of 11 children, one of the survivors being Mrs. Rachel Walters of Monroe. He was an ardent christian, and a man of great strength and nobility of character.

The college printing office has just completed station bulletin No. 68, containing an annotated list of the birds of Oregon, being a thesis which was presented for a degree of Master of Science by A. R. Woodcock. Six thousand copies have been printed, for free distribution. The bulletin contains 119 pages. The object has been to make as complete a list as possible from the information at hand, of the avian species which have been taken and observed throughout the state, with the localities from which each species has been reported, the names of observers, and their notes. The notes aim to cover briefly the relative abundance, time of migration and nesting and food habits, although in the latter line apparently but little work has been done in the state. This is the first compilation of this kind ever attempted in Oregon.

W. O. W. Social.

It is the custom of members of Marys Peak Camp and Circle to hold a joint social on the fifth Friday of every month in which there may be so many days of this name. Therefore, last Friday was the occasion of much sociability. There were ten or fifteen Woodmen present from Philomath Camp, and with local members and their friends those present numbered about 200.

There was a musical and literary program rendered, as follows: Vocal solo, Miss Sophie Elgin; recitation, Miss Tartar; club-swinging by five little tots, the class of Miss Lura Flett; vocal duet, in German, Miss Magda Schoenfeld and J. Wraga; song by little Miss MacLean; trombone solo, Victor Moses, accompanied by Miss Hattie Herron; recitation, A. E. Tully; vocal solo, Miss Hazel Elgin. All of the numbers were unusually well given and received.

At the conclusion of the program tables were spread and a most elaborate banquet was given, concluding the festivities of the evening.

This order is a very strong one in Corvallis. The local camp has 148 members. This order is only about eleven years old, but in nine of the western states it has a membership of 80,000. Marys Peak Camp and Circle have opened a campaign for the purpose of further increasing the membership of the local lodge. Head Consul Falkenburg will be in Albany, February 10th, and many members from adjoining cities will arrange to attend the lecture that will be given on this occasion.

Thayer is at Dawson.

An exchange gives the following portions of a letter written by Ed Thayer, from Dawson City, to Billy Wright, of Portland. Both parties are former residents of Corvallis:

The weather in Dawson January 2nd was all that could be wished for at this season of the year. They had a cold spell for a couple of days in the latter part of December, when the thermometer went down to 65 degrees below zero. Since then it moderated considerably, so that the mercury stands pretty steady at 35 degrees below, which is considered very reasonable and pleasant weather.

Among other items sent by Thayer is one relating to the robbery of a gambling house, where two or three men went in and stole $1,400 of the game's money and escaped, so far as heard from.

Thayer says that in about two years more Dawson's star of glory will have set, as by that time it will be an easy matter to get into the country at a comparatively small expense, and the country will be overrun with people who have just money enough to reach the Yukon. That will cause a reduction of wages. Those who are in there now are preparing themselves against such evil day.

Miss Tillotson Heard From.

Miss Lottie Tillotson, an electioneer, whose sharp practices almost got her into trouble in several valley towns, is continuing her work in California, as appears from the following from the San Francisco Bulletin:

San Leandro, Dec. 19.—Considerable satisfaction is felt among the women of this city over the news that has come from Martinez to the effect that Judge Pratt, of that place, has fined Miss Lottie Tillotson $25 for trying to defraud a benevolent society out of the proceeds of an entertainment she was managing. The same Miss Tillotson played her game with considerable success and got away with much of the money cleared by a ladies' society at a recent entertainment in this town.

Mr. Cohen's Lecture.

"Oil from an Ancient Lamp," was the subject of an address delivered before the students and faculty last Friday evening by Hon. D. Solis Cohen, of Portland. The chapel was well filled with students and citizens, and many were turned away. The Talmud was used as a theme for a scholarly discourse. The speaker reviewed the history and contents of this remarkable book, so replete with wisdom, yet so little known or understood. Its compilation covered a period of 300 years, from about 200 B. C. to 200 A. D. Its contents are as varied in their character as in their subjects. There are passages containing the loftiest expression of religious feeling, while interspersed throughout the whole are numerous tales and fables. Here Aesop's fables are forestalled, and Shakespeare's sublimest passages foretold. Mr. Cohen's delivery is no less pleasing than his diction.
