In our last issue, we stated that J. K. Berry's expert bicycle repair man Mr. C. F. Hawkins, was from Portland. We wish to correct this by saying that his home is in Eugene. Berry says he is no "blacksmith," but the "real thing," at bicycle work.

The fourth recital by the musical department at the college, occurred last Friday evening under the direction of Miss Philbrick. Twenty-five pupils took part on the program, which attracted a large audience. Many persons reached the college a few moments after 8 o'clock and were unable to get in side.

Rev. Carl D. Thompson, of the Social Crusade, will speak at Corvallis, in the court house, at 2:30 p. m., Saturday, May 10th. His subject will be "Socialism—What it is; why we urge it." Rev. Thompson will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church, Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock. Everybody invited.

D. J. Yergin, the prisoner confined in the county jail in this city, held for Lincoln county, is quite an old man and his health is failing him. Confinement seems to be the cause of illness. Sunday he was given an outing and he seemed to enjoy it very much. He will be held here until the meeting of the circuit court for Lincoln county, next July.

According to the latest account, Miss Bertina Thrasher, who is in an hospital in San Francisco on account of a leg broken nearly two years ago, is getting along nicely. She is now allowed to walk about with the aid of crutches. Just when she will return home is not yet determined. To judge from the many kindnesses and courtesies shown her, it is easy to suppose that she has become quite a favorite at the hospital.

The constantly growing business of the Corvallis Creamery calls for enlarged quarters and continued improvement. A packing room is the latest addition. A large vat, of the same dimensions as the cooling and about three feet deep, is filled with water. Being placed near the ceiling it keeps the room cool, and at the same time supplies the necessary water for the creamery. S. B. Bane has the record for the greatest weight of milk brought to the creamery by any one party in any one day. Last Monday he brought in 817 pounds of milk. He has fifteen cows.

The O. A. C. authorities have just entered upon a series of new experiments. They have commenced to give a milk cow drinking water which contained typhoid germs and it is the intention to make a daily analytical examination for the purpose of finding out how long a period must elapse before the germs of disease make their appearance in the milk.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Winslow leave today for their home at Newberg, after a visit with Mrs. Winslow's mother, Mrs. Ruth Clark. They will visit Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hall, at Buena Vista, on their way home. Mr. Winslow is soon to assume entire charge of the jewelry store in Newberg in which he is a partner with his elder brother, Ralph, the latter retiring from business.

T. T. Barnhart arrived home, Monday, after an absence of three months. During this time he has been employed at his trade in Everett, Wash. He says that work is to be had in abundance there, but that the cost of living is so great that he would not be justified in moving his family to that point. A decent dwelling will rent for as much as $20 per month. Everything considered, he says that he can do as well in Corvallis. There is no use of arguing to the contrary, Corvallis is the place to live well cheaply.

ANYTHING FOR VOTES.

This was the Position Assumed by Mr. Chamberlain in his Talk Here Wednesday Afternoon.

Geo. E. Chamberlain, democratic candidate for governor, spoke to an audience that comfortably filled the court room in this city, Wednesday afternoon. A number of ladies attended, and many furnish buttons indicated that those present were not all democrats. Mr. B. F. Irvine introduced Mr. Chamberlain in a short speech, the burden of which was "scuttle, scuttle, scuttle," and a beautiful word picture something about the cascade range, the billows of the Pacific and the tower on the Oregonian building.

After a few introductory remarks, Mr. Chamberlain launched out on the set speech that he has made throughout the campaign. All who read the papers carefully, therefore, were familiar with what Mr. Chamberlain was going to say before he began. He has a free and easy style of delivery that is catchy, and his negative policy and Barkis-william attitude is calculated to antagonize no one and leave his hearers in good humor. Of course, Mr. Chamberlain's only hope of election lies in a campaign of benevolent assimilation of republicans. He is anything to be elected. While he makes strenuous efforts to convince republicans that there is no principle or politics involved in the campaign, he is the nominee of a democratic convention and all who vote for him must vote the democratic ticket to do so.

If elected governor and it should be necessary for him to appoint a United States senator, he would send a man to congress who would support the plank in the democratic platform demanding that the Philippine islands be abandoned.

He says that he is for keeping the old flag floating wherever it has been planted by American valor, and yet he supported and voted for W. J. Bryan two years ago on a platform that called for scuttle, and he will support him and vote for him two years hence on the same kind of a platform.

He believes that the governor of Oregon should accept only the $1,500 salary prescribed by the state constitution, and yet he is offering to give up an office that now pays him a salary of $4,000 per annum for this salary of $1,500. His plea is that he is a poor man, and he is for exchanging one honorable position for another and losing $2,500 of salary a year.

He boasts of sitting in democratic conventions with W. J. Furnish, being a party to his plans, sharing his confidence, aiding and abetting him in his campaigns, and still he says Furnish's campaign methods are rotten.

He ridicules republicans for adopting measures formerly advocated by populists, and then tells his hearers that the democratic platform—issued at Portland a week after the republican platform was issued—has adopted all the principles of the republican platform.

He admits that Oregon has been prosperous under republican state and national administrations, and that she is now on the verge of a great substantial development which will place her foremost in the sisterhood of states, and then asks that the present order of things be reversed to satisfy the ambitions of a "good fellow." "My opponent is a most estimable gentleman," says Mr. Chamberlain; "about him as a citizen I have naught to say but what is most kindly." That is to catch republican votes. But, he adds: "He intends to make such a campaign as will debauch the politics of Oregon and bring them to a standard of degeneration only equalled by the mother-in-law, Mrs. A. E. Hanna, Platt, Quay and Croker." Here is a bit of Bryanism which crops to the surface to win the allegiance of the erstwhile followers of the disciple of free silver and anti-expansion.

Commissioners Court. The commissioners court was in session Wednesday and yesterday.

The bids offered for building the bridge across Marys river, were all rejected, being above the amount considered reasonable by the court, and new bids will be advertised for immediately.

Road Supervisors Reese, Farley, Spencer and Peck presented subscription lists which had been circulated in their districts, containing the amounts various property holders had contributed toward road work, provided the court would contribute from the funds of the county like amounts. The court took action in the matter by issuing an order which states that as there are sufficient funds in the treasury raised by the 2-mill road tax to pay for all the road work that can be done until the next regular term of court; and as the law provides that the road master shall receive all reports of supervisors and make report to the court, it is practical and lawful to leave the final consideration of the matter until the June term of court.

C. E. WOODSON Republican Candidate for County Judge.

The nomination of C. E. Woodson for county judge elicited a wave of universal approval throughout Benton county. With him in the executive chair the people know that their public business will receive that thorough personal attention and dispatch, and honesty of administration that is characteristic of the man.

Charley Barnhart accompanied his mother-in-law, Mrs. A. E. Hanna, to Portland, Wednesday, to see her safely started East. She is going to Morris, Minnesota, where she will make her home with her son. She is 85 years old and has been on the Pacific coast for about 13 years.

President Wallis Nash, of the Choral Union, announces that a rehearsal of the entire local chorus will be held in the armory Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Every member of the chorus has the liberty of inviting a friend to attend this rehearsal.

A very interesting meeting of the Corvallis Improvement Association was held at the court house on Monday evening. Many subjects of interest were suggested and discussed. The most important, however, at least for the present, being that of putting our town in good order and making it as attractive as possible to the many hundreds of people we expect to entertain during the coming week. Names of members not before published: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Curran, Mr. Gray, Mrs. Booth, Mrs. Gage and Miss Glass.

The five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Calkins developed a case of smallpox Wednesday. Her uncle has been confined in the same house with the disease and it has made its appearance against her. She is the only inmate of the house who has not been vaccinated. No anxiety is felt regarding the case.

Hon. J. D. Lee, of Salem, and J. F. Yates, of this city addressed the citizens of Philomath, Tuesday evening from a republican standpoint. A large audience listened to them with close attention. Frequent applause interrupted their utterances, and the first mention of the name of Hon. W. J. Furnish received an ovation, showing that Philomath republicans are for the man and the party that stood for Wm. McKinley.

The total registration of voters in Benton county to date is only about 1,500. Two years ago the registration for Benton county was 1,955. It is estimated that the registration should exceed 2,000 this year. It will be seen that there are still fully 500 voters unregistered and only five days in which to have themselves enrolled. In order to complete the work of registration voters must present themselves at the rate of 100 per day from now until May 15th, or they will be obliged to resort to blank "A" on election day. Should they all conclude to do their duty and register, it will be as much as one clerk can possibly do to register them, and only one clerk can work on the registration books at a time.

Joint Canvass.

James A. Tate.

There are many who believe that the South is going to lead in the prohibition reform. The North took the lead in abolition; the South may regain lost ground by taking the lead in a second great reform. Already the prohibition reform has given the country some great leaders, and one of them is James A. Tate, of Nashville, Tenn.

He is secretary of the National Prohibition Committee and has been engaged to speak in the court house on Saturday evening, May 10th, at 8 p. m. The following is from the Daily Democrat, of Rogers, Ark.: James A. Tate is one of the youngest, most brilliant, most sensible, and most logical temperance lecturers on the platform.
