

PURELY SENTIMENTAL.

In all that has been said in favor of giving Mrs. Waggoner the $1,500, offered for the "capture and return" of the body of David Merrill dead or alive, we have failed to find one sentence showing the justice of such a proceeding. Sentiment has been running riot among the papers of the state, and the argument we hear is, "Don't be stingy; let the women have the reward."

Supt. Lee has been severely criticized, because he did not meet Mrs. Waggoner at the depot when she arrived in Salem and pour the $1,500 into her apron. But it is probable that Mr. Lee remembered that the money belonged to the people of Oregon, and that he had the right to spend it, only when the terms of the contract had been complied with.

Mrs. Waggoner had made no effort to capture the convict. She simply met one of the conditions named in the offer of reward. She returned the body. Half of the reward, $750, is certainly all she should ask for. Had the finder of Merrill's body been a man, strong and able-bodied, we venture the assertion that there wouldn't have been one voice raised in favor of giving him the full reward. But, oddly enough, Mrs. Waggoner is a woman, and it was given out at first that she was poor and a widow. Then sentiment laid hold of the editorial pen, and columns have been written on "Pay the Widow," "Poor Mrs. Waggoner," "She Needs the Money," and kindred themes. Let us lose sight of the sex and financial condition of the finder of Merrill's body, and remunerate that person in accordance with the service rendered.

Coach Herbold Confident.

Football will be revived at the Oregon Agricultural College again this year, and the students of that institution expect to turn out a championship eleven, says Monday's Oregonian. Two years ago the regents of the Agricultural College decided to abolish all inter-collegiate athletic contests, as far as the Corvallis school was concerned. This experiment was tried for one year, and found to be unwholesome so last season a team was put in the field, and efforts made to revive the sport.

Last season's eleven was a weak one, victories being few and far between, but this year the Oregon Agricultural College expects to do great things on the gridiron, and other teams throughout the Northwest will have to look to their laurels, or the "farmers" will walk away with the championship. Fred D. Herbold, of Eugene, will coach the Agricultural College team this year, and he is most enthusiastic over the prospects for a victorious aggregation. Mr. Herbold is in Portland, and said yesterday:

"The Oregon Agricultural College will have the championship football team of the Pacific Northwest this year. Besides last season's men, the team will contain 'Pap' Hayseed (McAlister), Walter McBride and a number of old-time football stars, all of whom will strengthen the team. Games will be played with all the colleges and universities of the Northwest, and with Multnomah. The team will probably go to California, as the Corvallis boys think they are capable of playing Stanford and Berkeley. It is quite likely that games will be played with the University of Washington and Whitman College. In short, the Agricultural College will have the best team in the Northwest, and ought to win the championship over all comers."

A Thrilling Experience.

The GAZETTE is in receipt of a marked copy of the Brimfield, (Illinois) News, containing an account of a recent experience of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moore, who left Corvallis some weeks ago to visit their old Illinois home:

"Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moore had a thrilling experience last Thursday evening which they do not care to repeat. They were visiting at Mr. Connell's near Trivoli and were sitting in a room chatting with members of the family when a thunderstorm came up and the house was struck by lightning. The lights were extinguished by the shock and several of the company were knocked from their chairs to the floor, but fortunately no one was seriously injured. Mr. Moore says thunder and lightning are almost unknown in his Oregon home and their friends admonished them when they left home to be careful and not get killed in the Illinois storms. He thinks their advice good now and says he doesn't relish the idea of traveling a couple of thousand miles to visit the old home and then have the lightning make a target of him. Hereafter when a storm comes up he will make for the cyclone cellar or crawl under the bed."

Much Interest Taken.

A correspondent to the Home-Steed gives Willamette Grange the following mention, which shows that the work of the grange holds the interest of the farmers of that section:

Willamette Grange No. 52, Benton county, Oregon, met at its hall on July 12th. We have changed our regular time of meeting from the first Thursday to the second Saturday as many of our families had children old enough to join the Grange who were at school. The change has been a success though it makes the Sunday morning's work heavy for the house-mother one Sunday in each month. None will complain at that, however, so long as it is so great a benefit to the order and to the children we are bringing up in it, to take our places by and by. We have a live, active Grange now. Conferred the first and second degrees on a young man and his new wife. Of course the hay-fields drew many away but we had a good attendance and a good meeting. It has been our custom for years to close our Grange during August and September, but this year our Master says the sisters can and will run those meetings alone. If any of the brothers can come they are promised a welcome but no man will be asked to speak, read, or sing, as that will belong to the sisters for those meetings. Being a woman, our Master has sublime faith in the sex rising to any occasion—no matter what comes up in the Grange work.
