

KIDNEY TROUBLE CURED.

General Health Greatly Improved by Pe-ru-na.

MRS. M. J. DANLEY.

Mrs. M. J. Danley, Treasurer of the Rebecca Lodge, I. O. O. F., writes from 124 First St. N., Minneapolis, Minn.: "I was afflicted for several years with kidney trouble which became quite serious and caused me considerable anxiety. I spent hundreds of dollars trying to be cured, but nothing gave me any permanent relief until I tried Peruna. It took less than three months and only ten bottles to effect a permanent cure. I was worth more than as many hundred dollars to me. I am fully restored to health, know neither ache nor pain and enjoy life."

This experience has been repeated many times. We hear of such cases nearly every day.

Mrs. Danley had catarrh of the kidneys. As soon as she took the right remedy she made a quick recovery.

A Prominent Southern Lady's Letter.

Miss Laura Hopkins, of Washington, D. C., niece of Hon. E. O. Hopkins, one of the largest iron manufacturers of Birmingham, Ala., writes the following letter commending Peruna. She says: "I can cheerfully recommend Peruna for indigestion and stomach trouble and as a good tonic."—Laura Hopkins. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. OPINIONS OF GREAT PAPERS ON IMPORTANT SUBJECTS

Emigration to Canada.

Can American emigrants be "assimilated" to institutions and types of government inferior to those of their native land? That is a question raised by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat in reference to the American emigration to the western provinces of British America. It is very much to be doubted whether the institutions and types of government which the American emigrant will find in Canada will impress him as at all inferior to those of his own country. He certainly will find that they guarantee quite as large a liberty as those of his native land, and that the monarchic element which is supposed to be injected into the Canadian government by its nominal relations to the British Crown is, so far as its practical influence in the affairs of the Government is concerned, a legal fiction. Nevertheless it is quite possible that any large American emigration to the Northwest British provinces might prove a disturbing political factor. Not because the Americans would be at all discontented with the political institutions of the country, which in some respects are freer and better ordered than our own, but because they would add a new impetus to the growth of the opinion that the interests of that region would be greatly promoted by annexation to the United States if annexation shall prove to be the only means of removing the obstacles to free commercial intercourse. At present sentiment of loyalty to the British Crown is strong among the British Canadians that the motives of self-interest which prompt their occasional consideration of the benefits of closer relations with the United States are held in abeyance. But this sentiment would probably be gradually availed, or at least lessened, by the American element in the population of Northwestern Canada. So that although Canadian experience heretofore has been that American immigrants very readily assimilate with their Canadian cousins and adapt themselves to Canadian institutions, they have heretofore been known in Canada rather as transient visitors than permanent settlers, and the latter at least have been too few in number to have any particular influence on Canadian politics. But if they get to going to Canada in large numbers they are likely to precipitate problems which Canadian statesmen desire above all things to avoid, or at least to postpone.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Carelessness in Behavior.

The traditional freedom and naturalness of American social relations have a charm and a value when under proper training they are made to promote in both boys and girls mutual respect and unfeigned modesty. Doubtless, too, that unchaperoned companionship of young people which so shocks foreigners results for the most part in virtuous affections and happy marriages. But this is something far different from the license and disregard of decorum which is becoming alarmingly prevalent, not among the lower orders in the social scale, but in families which are considered intelligent and well bred. The manners of young men have degenerated. They will act and speak in the presence of women in a way that would not have been tolerated a generation ago, and young women who are unquestionably without evil intent will conduct themselves as no woman could have done a few years ago without serious damage to her reputation. There is evidently need of a revival of the unobtainable art of bringing up children. Boys and girls are growing up to be lawless. Lacking respect for authority and conventions, they easily lose respect for the virtues which authority and conventions seek to guard. Lastly in homes and schools, contact under unfavorable conditions of young men and women in business life, the rush, selfishness and bad manners of our crowded streets, shops and public conveyances, all tend to the destruction of that good breeding which commands respect and nurtures modesty.—New York Tribune.

Men with Small Capital.

It has been objected by some that technical education should not be fostered with public funds because the fields for its employment are being rapidly pre-empted by the trusts and gigantic combinations of capital in manufacturing and other productive technical industries. Frequently we are told that the man who has only skill and small capital is being put out of the way of business and success by the overshadowing combines. Yet it should be plain to any observer that there are hundreds of profitable technical industries that the trusts have not captured and, in the nature of things, could not consolidate and control. The profit to be made from them in any given locality is too small to engage the cupidity of a trust and yet is sufficient to amply repay the enterprise and industry of a small operator. Now inventions are creating new industries almost daily and in the exploiting of these the man with technical education and small capital finds plentiful opportunities for steady occupation and satisfactory returns. We find from the census that in 1890 there were 9,977 manufacturing establishments in the city of Chicago. There were 19,203 in 1900, or an increase of nearly 100 per cent. But the average amount of capital to the establishment was 20 per cent less in 1900 than in 1890, which shows that plenty of men found chances to invest their brains, skill and small capital in good enterprises. The trusts do not own all those nearly twenty thousand factories in Chicago, nor the majority in St. Louis, Cincinnati or Atlanta. The truth is that the argument for giving varied technical instruction to the youth of the land was never stronger than to-day.—Atlanta Constitution.

degenerate sons of hard-working fathers, are making a great change in the matter of hours, beginning the day earlier. The business day has thus been lengthened, not for the pa'd underlings, whose hours have always been from eight or nine until five or six, but for the men who manage the great transactions in the world's commerce. Not long ago the head of a great house in the lower end of New York City was asked when he could be seen the next day. "I'll be at my desk at seven-thirty in the morning," he answered. "There is no need to get down so early," said the other. "My regular hour," replied the great merchant; "I am there at that time six days in the week." This merchant is in a business in which quotations from European markets are important to his other houses in the West, and he is getting quotations on the wires while others sleep. The vice-president of a Wall Street bank is at his desk at half past eight every day. The president of a Broadway bank reaches his desk at nine in the morning. As he lives up the Hudson, he has to rise at six. One man said that getting to work at eight was the greatest help in the world. He got well started on his day by nine, whereas a few years ago, when he used to arrive at his office late, there seemed to be no morning left in which to accomplish anything worth while. "Then, too," he added, "I get the invigorating morning air. By the time I get to my office I have heard the birds sing and have had the early sunshine. I have met not a few in the glow of health, which tends to inspire me."

city hydrant. The city of Chicago rendered a bill for $65, the cost of a new hydrant. A few days following Commissioners of Public Works Block received

The Burlington road held that the value of the scrap iron should be deducted from the bill—that scrap iron was worth two cents a pound. Deputy Commissioner Brennan figured that a hydrant sold for scrap iron would bring about $1.97. So this amount was deducted from the bill. You would scarcely expect a great corporation to be so particular about the pennies. But watching the pennies makes dividends possible. Big concerns pay high salaries to men who can save more than their salaries by keeping an eye on the little leaks. Great industrial enterprises are conducted with success by making their entire profits from the utilization of what was formerly waste. "Take care of the pennies. The dollars will take care of themselves." Individuals as well as corporations must learn this lesson. Most men fail because they have never learned the old-fashioned way of economy. There is a big difference between stinginess and economy. The manager of a business who can make the distinction, the manager who can run the line between thriftiness and niggardliness is the manager who succeeds. A large volume of business on a small margin of profit with somebody to look after the leakage—that is modern business.—St. Louis Chronicle.

Church Entertainment.

The prediction lately made by a minister in one of the Western cities—Chicago, we believe—to the effect that the only way in which it would soon be possible to maintain an interest in church work would be by means of "the continuous vaudeville," startled a great many conservative church goers, and possibly shocked some of them. However, the stream of tendency seems to have set rather strongly in the direction of a fulgural hop, amateur theatricals, secular concerts, ledgerman, charades, sociables, fairs, suppers, primarily for purposes of revenue, music of doubtful sacredness—if there is a dividing line between the sacred and secular in music; all of these have come to be recognized as adjuncts of more or less value in church work. The underlying idea seems to be to make the church an attractive social club, and thus bring within its sphere of influence many who value a church connection at the outset chiefly for the social opportunities it offers. It would be difficult to find a serious objection to the view of so much of the work of a church may properly be considered secular. There may be a line which it would be dangerous to cross, but where it lies would probably be as difficult to define as is the Alaskan boundary.—New York Times.

These Need Encouragement.

The person who really needs the attention of the school commencement speakers is the man who has passed his college days and has found in his dismay that sheer force of circumstances has crowded him into a rut. This is the individual whose mind has stopped on a grade and who has found that his education was "completed" when he left his high school or academy or college. Very likely some misguided professor assured him at the time that his education would prove invaluable to him. He looks back and fails to see where it has advanced him materially. He has forgotten most of the facts he learned save a few vague generalizations. He would be at a loss to extract the square root of any number of four figures; he could not construe a Latin sentence or conjugate a Latin verb to save his life; physics, chemistry, mathematics—all are sealed books to him. That he decides to put these things behind him, concludes at his time for education past and puts aside with sullen resignation all future opportunities for learning is not at all surprising.—Chicago News.

Prospect of Longevity.

Timid people and pessimists are inclined to fear that the progress of invention is increasing the dangers of accident and disease to such an extent that human life must necessarily be shortened. This fear appears to be groundless. Collected statistics show that the average duration of human life is steadily increasing. Some interesting and striking facts along this line are presented in a recent report of the Chicago board of health. The average duration of life has increased in a third of a century from fourteen years to more than thirty-one years. Exclusive of suicides, deaths from violence have decreased 6.3 per cent. Deaths from railway and car accidents have decreased more than 5 per cent. Since the partial abolition of the death penalty, the introduction of tenders on cars, six years ago, deaths from this source have decreased 12.6 per cent.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Marriage Not a Failure.

Is marriage a failure? The answer is in the wide-staring eyes of that dimpled bundle in the cradle. Marriage a failure? Ask that young mother as she cradles over her firstborn. Ask the white-faced little woman in black over there as she kisses the cheeks of her stalwart son, and sends him into the world to conquer. "All is lost but you, Mary," chokes out the gray-headed victim of a business collapse. An arm steals about his neck, and a wrinkled hand strokes his brow, and the sweetest lips he ever knew whisper words of soulful sympathy and courage in his ear. Ask him about marriage.—Cincinnati Post.

Hen-Peaked Sparrows.

Female sparrows are especially tyrannical toward their partners, especially at nest-building time, when they frequently attack their husbands fiercely on account of their laziness. At such times the female voice can always be detected, both louder and shriller than that of her mate, as she pecks and tumbles him, until he beats an ignominious retreat. Hen blackbirds and thrushes are often very overbearing and even spiteful toward their mates when their houses are in course of construction.

Intoxicating Beans.

Among the peasants of Southern Italy, Sicily and Sardinia a curious malady has been noticed by physicians, which is caused by eating beans. One of the most remarkable effects of the malady is a species of intoxication resembling that produced by alcoholic drink. In some cases persons predisposed to the malady are seized with symptoms of intoxication if they pass a field where the bean plant is in flower, the odor alone sufficing to affect them.

What English Will Do.

A report in a Missouri paper is quoted by the Chicago Chronicle as an example of what queer tricks the English language will play on one who does not master it. At a recent church entertainment the master of ceremonies announced: "Miss Bates will sing. Oh! that I had wings like a dove, for then would I fly away and be at rest," accompanied by the minister."

CATARRH

The treatment of Catarrh with antiseptic and astringent washes, lotions, salves, medicated tobacco and cigarettes or any external or local application, is just as senseless as would be kindling a fire on top of the pot to make it boil. True, these give temporary relief, but the cavities and passages of the head and the bronchial tubes soon fill up again with mucus. Taking cold is the first step towards Catarrh, for it checks perspiration, and the poisonous acids and vapors which should pass off through the skin, are thrown back upon the mucous membrane or inner skin, producing inflammation and excessive flow of mucus, much of which is absorbed into the blood, and through the circulation reaches every part of the system, involving the Stomach, Kidneys and other parts of the body. When the disease assumes the dry form, the breath becomes exceedingly foul, blinding headaches are frequent, the eyes red, hearing affected and a constant ringing in the ears. No remedy that does not reach the polluted blood can cure Catarrh. S. S. S. expels from the circulation all offensive matter, and when rich, pure blood is again coursing through the body the mucous membranes become healthy and the skin active, all the disagreeable, painful symptoms disappear, and a permanent, thorough cure is effected. S. S. S. being a strictly vegetable blood purifier does not derange the Stomach and digestion, but the appetite and general health rapidly improve under its tonic effects.
