C. MACLEAN, Rector. The other evening when John H. Simpson went home to milk his cow he found that she had fallen into the sewer that is being dug through his property. She had wriggled down to a depth of about eight feet and was wedged in so tight that the milk was squeezed out of her. Mr. Simpson was obliged to have her dug out.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Worman, of Vooiland, Illinois, were in Corvallis this week. Mr. Worman has purchased 160 acres of the Lon Henkle place west of this city, for $4,500, the sale being negotiated by Henry Ambler. With his wife, he has returned to Illinois, but will take charge of his property here within the next year. During his absence, Mr. Henkle will cultivate and have supervision of Mr. Worman's new purchase.

The telephone company is enjoying a very healthy increase in business in this city. When Miss Emma Crawford assumed charge of the local system two years ago there were only about forty phones under the jurisdiction of the local office. Now there are in the neighborhood of 150 phones and the business is in a flourishing condition. People naturally like to talk, and anything that caters to this weakness of the human family is a sure winner.

R. A. Bowman has just completed the task of finishing the front doors of the Hotel Corvallis and the entrance to the Willamette Valley Bank. The woodwork, paneling, etc., was finished in imitation oak, boxwood and black walnut and was splendidly executed. There is a trifle more work to be done on the building, among other things, sanding a portion of the front in imitation of stone, when operations will cease for the present.

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blakeslee on last Wednesday at 12 o'clock. Their daughter Della was given in marriage to T. Frank Porter, Rev. H. A. Deck, officiating. The bride's dress was tan Venetian cloth trimmed in chiffon applique. Her bouquet was white Magnolia roses. Her brides-maid, Miss Mable Hubler, wore blue. Louis Zeis acted as best man. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Wellsher, Mr. and Mrs. Porter and family and the parents of the bride. The young couple took the afternoon train for Portland, where they will reside.

A meeting of the presidents of the various educational institutions of the state will be held in Portland, shortly, for the purpose of discussing the subject of inter-collegiate athletics, and selecting a systematic set of rules to govern the coming athletic contests between the various institutions. Such a meeting was suggested to the heads of these schools by President Campbell, of the University of Oregon, and it has met with hearty approval.

H. B. Thompson has been in Corvallis during the past day or two canvassing for subscribers for a sort of attorney's directory. He is securing the photographs and write-ups of the leading lawyers of the state. Where one lawyer of a place is induced to subscribe as a "leading" attorney the rest are practically obliged to subscribe in self-defense. And they are all compelled to pay a liberal fee. Some of the old time jurists of the state, who acquired prominence in the pioneer days will be given recognition without paying a fee.

H. W. Kaupisch, manager of the Corvallis Creamery, has signified his intention to begin operations yesterday with the creamery that he recently established at Halsey. The Corvallis Creamery has done a splendid business all summer and continues exceedingly busy. Mr. Kaupisch is a conservative business man and thoroughly understands everything relating to a creamery. When he has determined on a business proposition there are good reasons for his course, hence it is natural to conclude that the new creamery at Halsey will be a success.

Max Dille was the victim of an accident a few days ago, which resulted in a fracture of the left leg below the knee. Two small boys, Adrian Kemp and Harold Strong, were coasting on a bicycle on one of the walks at the public school. One of the boys was seated upon the handle bars, while the other boy propelled the wheel. Max' attention was absorbed in something and he did not see the wheel bearing down in his direction. As it neared him he stepped backward, and he was knocked down, the wheel passing over his leg.

The O. A. C. Pigskin.

Unless all signs fail, the O A C will put out one of the strongest football teams in its history, this season. The material is there, the coach is there, and the enthusiasm among aspirants for gridiron laurels is all that could be asked for. Every evening from 35 to 40 stalwart young athletes do strenuous work for nearly two hours on the new field just south of the armory, and they are rapidly acquiring knowledge of the game and rounding into condition.

The many enthusiasts from down town, who occupy the new grand stand regularly from 4 to 5:30 p. m., declare that Coach Herbold understands his business from A to Z, and that no coach, not even excepting Bloss, has been able to get as much out of the men. There is one thing certain, it will not be the fault of the coach if O A C doesn't Wisconsin every team it meets this season. Bruce Burnett and Charley Small, veterans of former teams, are ably assisting as under coaches.

Selections have not yet been made for places on the first team. While many of last year's team are back, the new men are showing up so well that it is anybody's race for first team. Of last year's players, Captain Gault, Burnaugh, Bower, Gellatly, Abrams, Abraham, Rose, Williams, Espey, Wilks, Cooper, Rinehart, Allen, Nash, Laughlin, Wimer and Dickey, are on the field every evening. Sharp and others who have represented O A C in former seasons, are back again, so the outlook is good.

A practice game between picked teams will occur on the new field October 8th. So far the following games have been scheduled: O A C vs. W U, at Corvallis, October 18th; with U of O, November 8th, and with P U, Thanksgiving Day. Manager Charles Johnson is in correspondence with Stanford University, U of C, and Washington university and agricultural college, and other leading teams of the Northwest, and games with some of them will be arranged.

Has no Diploma.

A. J. Hall, who resides near Wells, this county, is one of our best known farmers. It is said that he is particularly gifted with an insight to the various ailments that afflict animals of the farm. While he never took out a diploma as a veterinary surgeon, he seems to have acquired some standing among his neighbors for his knowledge and skill along these lines.

Not long since he responded to a call to attend a sick hog. Although pretty busy, he repaired to the place and diagnosed the case. However, he determined that the pig needed bleeding. The most up-to-date method of bleeding a pig is to cut its tail off. This Mr. Hall proceeded to do. The hog soon died.

Mr. Hall used to pet the hogs that he kept about the farm until they became gentle and he could go up to a hog that was lying down without creating any alarm on the part of the swine. He used to mark his hogs by cutting the tip off of each ear, and when he would find one lying down that had not been marked he would pet it awhile, then suddenly cut its ear off with his jackknife, which was always sharp. One day he found a hog asleep, as he supposed, and he clipped a piece out of one ear. The porker did not show any alarm and Mr. Hall operated on the other ear. To his surprise, it laid quietly where it was. This made him angry at the fool hog for taking such a calamity so calmly, so he kicked it—the hog was dead.

Mrs. Cooper's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. E. E. Cooper, whose death was announced in Tuesday's GAZETTE, was held in the Congregational church in this city yesterday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. P. S. Knight. Interment was made in Crystal Lake cemetery. The funeral party arrived at Albany, Wednesday afternoon, and the remains were brought to Corvallis the same evening. The services here were largely attended.

May not Come.

The success that Mr. Leroy and his company is meeting with elsewhere and the numerous applications for the attraction may be the cause of canceling the date of his appearance here until a later time. Should this occur, it is to be regretted, as the play, "Other People's Money," has been widely advertised and a cancellation would disappoint many people.
