

THE MOST DANGEROUS.

The most dangerous trusts are not the great manufacturing ones but those which dominate the money markets and those transportation companies which own and control immense bodies of coal.

New York City is the financial center of the country. Recent occurrences reveal the facts that the banks of New York are controlled by three or four banking syndicates. These determine the borrowing rate for money and control such immense sums that they have no difficulty in either withholding them from circulation or flooding the market, just as they chose and their own interests may determine. It is easy to see what power they have for good or evil when we know that apart from their own immense capital they control deposits aggregating not less than $600,000,000.

Nearly the whole of the Pennsylvania anthracite coal field is owned by three or four railway companies. The Philadelphia & Reading is the leading one. These companies absolutely control the rate per ton coal must pay, and what its market price shall be. The freight rate on coal always has been excessively high, and is now several times more than on other commodities carried greater distances.

It is charged that these companies purposely provoke strikes. There was a time when they doubtless did so, but for many years they have had such complete control of the whole business they have not done so. In fact, they have sought to fortify themselves against strikes by keeping near them a large number of unemployed or but partially employed men. These men are ready and willing to assume the place of strikers. It is with these, protected by the military, the operatives hope to start up their mines in defiance of the Miners' Union.

For years Pennsylvania has attempted to bring these companies under such legal control as would protect the public from their rapacity. It has never been done. The mining laws have benefited the conditions under which the miner formerly worked, but so far no adequate control of these corporations in the interest of the general public has been effective.

The present strike would not be an unmitigated evil if it should develop a method by which these harpies controlling a prime necessity of life may be compelled to righteous dealing.

These are the trusts which are hurtful, dangerous, arrogant. These are the trusts which are the president marks for restraint, and it is the promoters and beneficiaries of these who decry the course of the president.

His party and the people as well, stand by him and will hold up his hands in such measures as are needed to place such combinations under just restraint.

IMPORTANT WORK BEGUN.

The census office, which is now a permanent institution, has three men in the field in the irrigation investigation. An office force is conducting a careful inquiry by correspondence, into irrigation conditions for the year 1902, and this inquiry is supplemented by the work of the three field agents—H. L. Holgate, of Oregon; C. J. Blanchard, of Minnesota and Ralph Nutting, of New York. Mr. Holgate will visit Southern Oregon, Nevada and California.

The present work of the field agents is not so much the gathering of detail data, as it is a general survey of the irrigating portions of the country for use of the office in planning a method of keeping an accurate record of irrigation statistics, making such changes from time to time as will be made necessary for the building of new systems and the abandoning of old ones. The office has begun the work of indicating on the maps the location of every irrigating ditch in the United States. This will be a considerable task, but such maps and the record mentioned will be of great use to the geological survey, to which bureau has been entrusted the very responsible work of constructing the government irrigation system.

The irrigation committee of the house will take rank with the most important committees of congress, and it is fortunate for the country that the committee has as its chairman such a strong, capable and well-informed gentleman as Mr. Tongue.

Money in Clover.

The Kiger-Harding-Raber clover huller completed this year's run Saturday. All told about 200 bushels of clover was hulled this year for parties who reside a few miles north of this city. This is quite an industry and if managed on the right lines there is good money in raising clover seed for the market. Clover seed at present is worth in the neighborhood of 12 cents per pound and it weighs 60 pounds per bushel.

Richard Kiger says that he has gained considerable information regarding clover during his experience of the past two years. Clover, he says, is easily wasted in hulling if it is the least bit damp, and it pays to put off hulling it until all of the dew is off the clover. The first crop of clover should be cut for hay, as it does not fill well for seed. The seed of the first crop has a tendency to shrivel, while the second crop produces splendid seed. Another matter of importance is that the first year after a clover crop is sown it will produce more seed than at any future time. A good stand of first-year clover will produce about three bushels of seed per acre. At the present price of seed this will bring $21.60 per acre, in addition to the crop of hay that should have been cut. The huller is capable of turning out from 50 to 60 bushels per day in anything like a good crop.

Trespass.

It is supposed by some persons, that before they can commit trespass on the premises of others, that the owner thereof must post notices forbidding trespassers, which is not the case. It is not necessary at all, as all trespassers do so at their own peril without regard to notices being posted. The following from the laws of Oregon defines trespass, under certain conditions of the terms:

"Sec. 27.—It shall be unlawful for any person at any time to enter into any standing or growing grain, or upon any enclosed premises not the property of the person entering into or upon the same, with intent to catch, recover, take or kill any bird, or wild fowl or wild animal, or to permit any dog or dogs with which such person may then be hunting or do so for such purpose, without permission from the owner or person in charge of such premises."

As I have men working in the timber on my lands who may become crippled by a stray shot, also gentle cattle running thereon which may become crippled by shooting on the premises, or wild from the presence of dogs. I hereby warn all persons to take notice of the above statute, and cease trespassing on my premises. M. S. Woodcock.

Mrs. Fred Unrath, President Country Club, Benton Harbor, Mich. "After my first baby was born I did not seem to regain my strength although the doctor gave me a tonic which he considered very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband insisted that I take Wine of Cardui for a week and see what it would do for me. I did take the medicine and was very grateful to find my strength and health slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my usual duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

Wine of Cardui reinforces the organs of generation for the control of pregnancy and childbirth. It prevents miscarriage. No woman who takes Wine of Cardui need fear the coming of her child. If Mrs. Unrath had taken Wine of Cardui before her baby came she would not have been weakened as she was. Her rapid recovery should commend this great remedy to every expectant mother. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow.
