

RESULT AS EXPECTED.

The splendid support given republican policies in Tuesday's election throughout the entire country, is an emphatic endorsement of these policies as interpreted by William McKinley and executed by Theodore Roosevelt.

The first act of Theodore Roosevelt, when he became president, was to assure his fellow citizens that he would follow the path outlined by his illustrious predecessor as closely as he had light to see it, and a great sigh of relief went up from the heart of the American people.

As for the actual results of the election, the next house of representatives will have a republican majority of twenty-five, and that party will safely control congress.

WHY AMERICA?

For many years the German authorities have been greatly worried concerning the emigration of Germans, especially to the United States. Such emigration to German colonies is not so much deplored as that to this country.

We find that he much prefers to come to this country rather than to emigrate to any German colony. It is just this fact that appears to give the German authorities great concern.

For many decades England pursued a narrow, illiberal, harsh colonial policy. It required the loss of her North American colonies to convince her that a more liberal policy would inure to her benefit.

from England. Until she does the tide of German emigration will be to the United States. But the United States bids fair to set before both England and Germany a higher and better colonial policy than any they have heretofore conceived.
