Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.
As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surface. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Halls Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Halls Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle. Halls Family Pills are the best.

One Form of Argument.

A Denver justice comes to the support of the New York crusade against wheeling baby carriages on the sidewalks by saying that if God meant babies to go on wheels he would have put wheels on them.

Economy.

Any good housewife can readily see the economy in paying 5 cents more for a 3-pound can of solid packed tomatoes than for a 2½ pound can which is half water and of inferior quality. And this, to say nothing of the satisfaction which you may have in getting the very best which the market affords. This satisfaction may be yours if you ask your dealer for tomatoes and other canned goods of the Monopole brand. They have no equal at any price. — Wadhams & Kerr Bros., packers, Portland, Ore.

Marriage of Domestic Servants.

In Paris male domestic servants are encouraged to marry, as they are observed to be more settled and attentive to their duty than when bachelors. In London such marriages are discouraged, as rendering servants more attentive to their families than to those of their masters.

Recluses Live Apart From the World.

One day in the early fifties a Cambridge woman passed from human ken. For over thirty years she had been seen by none, her meals having been left outside her room to be taken in when no one was by; and it was only through her neglecting to do this for three consecutive days that apprehension as to her safety was aroused. The door of her room was forced and she was found dead on her bed. The reason for her eccentric conduct never transpired.

An equally mysterious recluse dwelt in a Kentish town. A trusted civil employe, he one morning quit his post for no ostensible cause and retired to his house, where he lived on a scant annuity he possessed. Such food as he needed was purchased by a blind sister, with whom he lived, and he gave no sign of existence, save when at night his steps could be plainly heard pacing his backyard, which, he might escape prying eyes, he had roofed in with canvas. The mystery at his death remained unsolved.

A physician named Blore, who lived at the end of the eighteenth century, was suddenly seized with a hatred of his kind and resolved until his death never to see or be seen by man. So he had made a large bell-shaped structure of wickerwork, open at the top to admit air and food. Into this, having caused it to be placed in the hall of his house, he, having bidden a solemn farewell to his wife and daughters, descended through the aperture. In this case insanity was at the bottom of the matter and Blore perished by his own hand in less than a week after he had taken possession of his odd dwelling.

Another curious instance of mania was that of a gentleman whose family was well known to the writer. He was stricken with the strange fancy that he possessed a Gorgon's head, so that everybody who beheld him would be turned to stone. He therefore retired to a couple of attics, and though he would admit no one, and to which doubtless he might with propriety have been relegated to an asylum, his family respected his bizarre whim and he remained religiously secluded for over three years, when he recovered his normal senses.

The victim through an accident of a ghastly disfigurement, a wealthy Parisian, says the London Tit-Bits, made a vow never to be seen again by man. He kept to a special suite of rooms in his house, where he was waited upon by two well-trained blind servants, who were the intermediaries between himself and the other members of his household. No exception was made even in the case of his wife and children, who, from the day of his accident to that of his death, never again set eyes upon him.

The late E. P. Whipple, the American lecturer and critic, used to tell of an eccentric New Yorker who, having read a pamphlet on immurement as practiced by the mediaeval religious orders, was possessed by an irresistible desire to copy their procedure, though not in his own person.

This he gratified with the assistance of an elderly pauper, who, in consideration of a handsome annuity allowed to his wife, agreed to be confined in a small dungeon built in the walls. In this cell he spent four years of his life, being fed through a small aperture so contrived as not to permit a sight of the voluntary prisoner. A strange fancy seized a Viennese watchmaker some years back. He shut himself up in his house, and till his death, seven years later, was never again seen by mortal eyes. All the windows were closely shuttered and such communication as he had with the outside world was carried on after dark through an aperture made in the door. He continued, to some extent, to work at his trade, at which he was an expert; watches, clocks, etc., to be repaired being taken in and returned through the same small opening.

PICKING OUT THEIR CAREERS.

Children Begin in These Days as Soon as They Talk.

A group of five Brooklyn children, cousins, were playing in the nursery a few mornings ago, the eldest perhaps 10 years of age and the youngest, the only boy, nearly 5. Their mothers are club women, alert and intelligent, and these youngsters had heard much discussion of "the new woman" and of "advanced" topics mentioned in addresses before the club. They had absorbed more of the information than their parents realized, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

On the morning in question the children were talking over what they had heard and the oldest said: "Well, everybody's got to be something nowadays. Mother says you can't be just humdrum and comfortable and sit around home any more. Must have a career. I shall be a musician. People will come to hear me play and will clap and give me lots of 'plaws.'"

"I, I, I," said Jeannette, "shall be a sculptress. I already make very nice things in clay modeling at school."
"Prouder!" yelled the others.
"No, I ain't." "I know my limitations," as mother says when she reads a paper. But I know what I can do! So now!"

Marie thought she would be an actress or a teacher, she had not decided which, only that she "would know a lot" and wear a long gold chain.
"I'll be a p'lesman," piped up little brother. "Nen if you ain't good I'll ketch you any you'll be good. 'Nat's all."

Dear little Marjorie, 6 years old, who had many dolls to care for, sat contentedly in her little chair rocking, hugging her baby doll and crooning a "bye-bye" to it. She had not spoken and was asked to contribute her idea of a career to this symposium. She glanced up, a puzzled look on her contented little face. "Yes, I heard you all talk!" said she with a sigh. Then her usual happy expression returned, she lifted baby doll to her shoulder close under her chin and said: "I'm just goin' to be a mother with a nice family o' chil'ren."

If a man has plenty of money his fool remarks are considered witty.

HIS SHAMEFUL STRATEGY.

Wanted Mrs. Bighead to Have Some Company, but She Was Suspicious. There was evidently something on his mind, for he did not even notice that the coffee was cold and that the cook and the housemaid were quarreling audibly in the kitchen.
"It can't be the dressmaker's bill," mused the wife, "for she has only sent it to me twice as yet; it will only go to his office as a last resort. Anyhow, if it is anything unpleasant he'll speak of it soon enough," and she poured herself another cup of tea, which was hot.

At last he spoke. "By the way, my dear, it seems rather dreary for you alone all day in this large house. How should you like a visitor this winter?"

"Whatever put such an idea into your mind, Clarence Bighead? I'm sure I have no time to spend in inventing amusements for a girl who would make me a stranger in my own parlor. To be sure, Helen is engaged, and by coughing every time I come into the room—but then, I've made all those lovely new sofa pillows. I can't have them ruined. Then there is Eddie—look here, Clarence, had you any one in particular in your mind?"

Mr. Bighead looked alarmed. "Not at all, I assure you—that is, I mean—the lady I had in mind is quite middle-aged—elderly, in fact."

Mrs. Bighead stiffened. "It is quite impossible. In the first place, the guest chamber isn't fit to be seen and, anyhow, I don't want anybody to sleep in that lovely bed. It would spoil the set of pillows. Besides, I shall be too busy to talk to anybody this winter; the house takes up all my time."

"But what I was thinking was that you might be glad of a little help in your housekeeping."

"That is just where you are mistaken, Clarence Bighead. When I want any interference in my domestic affairs I'll let you know. Oh, yes, I know just how much she would enjoy putting a finger into my pie."

"You quite surprise me, my dear. Still, you must know her better than I."

"That is the first time since our marriage that you have shown any appreciation of my judgment. I'm glad you've learned its value at last."

"Oh, well, I only thought to give you pleasure."

"Great pleasure, I'm sure. I only hope you haven't already invited her. If you have, I give you fair warning I shall just expose myself to smallpox and have the house quarantined, so she can't come."

"Of course I haven't asked her. I thought I'd just suggest it, lest you didn't like to, and you'd enjoy asking her yourself."

"And enjoy hearing all winter how she brought up ten children without ever a seakskin jacket or ever going to balls or parties of any kind."

"Really, I was not aware that you

"Of course you were not aware of anything. Well, I'll not have any company this winter, that's final. I'm going to fit up the guest chamber as a private gymnasium and I'll have no room for any one."

"Very well, then, that settles it; we'll say no more about it. I wasn't overanxious for it myself." He was struggling into his coat as he spoke.

"I only thought you might like to ask your mother down for a little visit."

Mrs. Bighead gasped. "Oh, Clarence!" she gasped, "my mother! I thought you were thinking of your own mother. Certainly, of course, it will be very—"

But he was already far enough down the street, says the New York Times, to be out of earshot.

LIFE IN THE SEA.

The Curious Things That Thrive in an Aquarium.

Mr. Spencer, the superintendent of the New York Aquarium, a few days ago was busying himself by picking a lot of sand fleas from a dipper and dropping them into a jar of anemones. As they fell into the water they straightened themselves out and then slowly dropped to the bottom, kicking as they fell. A few of them alighted on the body of an anemone, which promptly closed up. One, unfortunately, found himself, when he had settled, on the tentacles of one of the anemones. These began to serve the purpose for which they were bestowed upon the anemone, and the flea, or scud, suddenly found himself inside the capacious maw of the anemone, and the life was soon squeezed out of him.

"All is glist that comes to our mill," quoted Mr. Spencer. "These were on a lot of mussels which came in a little while ago I thought I would save them. There is life everywhere in the water. Look at this!" He held up a dozen mussels, held together by what appeared to be a vegetable growth. "That is an animal growth, known as setularia," said he. "In this bunch you will find all sorts of animal life. There are scuds, or sand fleas, and rock crabs. Look!" He held up one of the valves of a mussel shell. On it was a sea anemone. "Notice that reddish coating, part of which has flaked off. Look at it closely. Doesn't it look like lacework? That is the bryozo coral, the lowest form of mollusk coral. You will find life on nearly everything that comes from the sea. Here's one of the rock crabs." He took out of the maw of a mussel a little crab, about the size of one's finger nail, and dropped it into a jar of water. — New York Tribune.

Something of Real Value.

"I notice in the horrid newspapers that some person ovah on the continent has discovered the microbe of hydrophobia, don't you know?"
"Deah me, how strange! But, weally, that doesn't concern me nearly so much as would the discovery of some means to counteract, don't you know, the effect that is produced on a blooded dog by biting common persons. My little Fido was quite ill the last time he bit an ordinary child on the street, don't you know?" — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A red nose may not be conclusive evidence of inebriety, but it imposes upon its possessor the burden of proof.

DISGUISED CATARRH

A Stealthy, Insidious, Weakening Enemy to Women—Many Thousands of Women Suffer Needlessly From This Cause.

There are a multitude of women, especially housewives, and all other women obliged to be on their feet constantly, who are wretched beyond description, simply because their strength and vitality is sapped away by catarrhal discharges from the pelvic organs. These women get up in the morning tired, drag themselves through their daily duties tired, only to go to bed at night as tired as before.

Mrs. Eva Bartho, 133 East 12th Street, N. Y. City, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for three years with what is generally known as leucorrhoea, which is a disease of the womb. The doctors advocated an operation which I dreaded very much, and strongly objected to go under it. Reading of the value of Peruna, I thought it best to give this well known remedy a trial, so I bought three bottles of it at once. Now I am a changed woman. Peruna cured me; it took nine bottles, but I felt so much improved I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am today in perfect health, and I have not felt so well for fifteen years." — Mrs. Eva Bartho.

MRS. LOUISE MAHON.

Mrs. Louise Mahon, 3 Glen Bellis Street, Toronto, Ont., Canada, Secretary of the Kings Daughters and Secretary of Lady Macabees, writes: "I all women know of the benefits I have derived from taking Peruna. I would have many happier and more beautiful women. My health has never been so robust, and I am easily fatigued and can not stand much. About a year ago I was so run down that I had to take to my bed, and became weaker and weaker. A friend advised me to try Peruna, and I have great reason to be grateful for it in two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was perfectly well, and I now find that my health is much more robust than formerly, so that I take Peruna once or twice a month and keep well." — Louise Mahon.

Peruna is such a perfect specific for each case that when patients have once used it they can never be induced to quit it until they are permanently cured. It begins to relieve the disagreeable symptoms at once. The backache ceases, the trembling knees are strengthened, the appetite restored, the digestion made perfect, the dull headache is stopped and the weakening drains are gradually cured. These results certainly follow a course of treatment with Peruna.

Barbara Alberty, corner Seventh and Walnut streets, Appleton, Wis., writes as follows in regard to Peruna: "For years I have suffered with backache and severe pains in the sides. I doctored so much that I became discouraged. A school friend told me how very much Peruna had benefited her and I sent out for a bottle, which did more to relieve me than all the other medicine I have ever taken."

en. I used it faithfully for two weeks and it completely cured me. I have not had any pains since, anywhere, but feel like a new woman. I am truly thankful for what Peruna has done for me." — Barbara Alberty.

Mrs. Kate Mann, 806 Bathurst Street, Toronto, Ont., Can., Vice President of the Ladies Aid Society, writes: "I am pleased to give praise to Peruna for the blessed relief I found through its use. I suffered for years with backache and dragging down pains and often had to go to bed and stay there when I was so busy I could not do so. It was therefore a simple goodness to me when Peruna was brought to my notice. Every drop seemed to give me new life, and every dose made me feel much better, and I promised myself that if I found that it cured me I would advocate it so that other suffering women should know of it. I have been in perfect health for one year. I work and pleasure because in such fine health, and no trouble seems too heavy to bear when you are in good health. Peruna has simply been a household blessing, and I never will be without it again." — Mrs. Kate Mann.

Mrs. Anna Martin, 47 Hoyt St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Peruna did so much for me that I feel it my duty to recommend it to others who may be similarly afflicted. About a year ago my health was completely broken down, had backache, dizziness and irregularities, and life seemed dark indeed. We had used Peruna in our home as a tonic, and for colds and catarrh, and I decided to try it for my trouble. In less than three months I became regular, my pains had entirely disappeared, and I am now perfectly well." — Mrs. Anna Martin.

Mrs. Wm. Hetrick, Kennard, Washington county, Neb., writes: "I am fifty-six years old and have not felt well since the Change of Life began twenty years ago. I was in misery somewhere most of the time, very weak, nervous, and my flesh so tender it hurt me to lean against the back of a chair. I had pain under my shoulder blades, in the small of my back and hips. I sometimes wished myself out of this world. Had hot and cold spells, dizziness and trembling of the limbs, and was losing flesh all the time. After following your directions and taking Peruna I now feel like a different person." — Mrs. Wm. Hetrick.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Peruna can be purchased for $1 per bottle at all first class drug stores.
