Mrs. Bruce Burnett arrived in this city Monday night to rejoin her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Burnett will make their future home here. Mr. Burnett has interests in the Upper Applegate mining district near the Blue Ledges mines recently sold to Pasty Clark and associates of Montana.—Grants Pass Observer.

The local Salvation Army officers have hit upon a plan to defray expenses without having to call upon the community for contributions. They have purchased a gramophone and a fine set of records and purpose giving entertainments in the various school houses in the county. These entertainments will follow the regular Salvation Army services and a small admission fee will be charged in lieu of a collection.

There promises to be a large number of people take advantage of the Past Schem's excursion from Portland to Corvallis next Sunday. Hundreds of Portland residents who never have seen both sides of the Willamette valley will take advantage of the present opportunity. The trains will leave Portland at 8:30 a. m., and come up the East side to Albany, thence over the C. & E. to Corvallis, where the excursionists will visit until four o'clock. The return trip will be made over the West Side.

J. T. Thorpe, of Corvallis, is searching for his son, S. M. Thorpe, a lad of 18 years, who came to Portland some time ago against his father's wishes, and has not been heard from since April 10, when he was staying at the Sailors' Home, says the Oregonian, intending to brave the trials of a seafaring life. The boy has had no experience of this kind, and his father fears that he has gone to sea. Harbor Master Ben Biglin shipped a boy who answers to Thorpe's description on the Seafarer, but this youth said he came from Corning, N. Y., and his name was Ridgway. Mr. Biglin is thoroughly investigating the case. Young Thorpe is described as being heavily built, weighing 145 pounds, and being completely blind in one eye.

W. M. VanBuren arrived, Wednesday, from Eugene to take charge of the painting department of the carriage factory.

Ella Humbert; song, by little girls; recitation; solo and chorus, "The Right Boy for the Place," Rev. Humbert and others.

Particulars of the accident suffered by Mack Hemphill, mention of which was made in Tuesday's GAZETTE, have been received by relatives in this city. As he boarded the train out of Portland last Friday evening on his regular run, he fell, running something in his leg below the knee. He made his trip, however, and when he returned to Portland, was suffering intense pain, and went to the hospital, where the physicians made an incision and scraped the bone. His wife and his mother were notified that his condition was not serious enough to necessitate their presence at his bedside.

Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Allen, died at the home of her parents, at Philomath, Tuesday, at the age of 9 years. She had been ailing for some time, but took seriously ill last Friday. She was afflicted with some spinal affection. Funeral services were conducted at the M. E. church in Philomath yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, by Rev. Jones. Interment was made in Pleasant Valley cemetery.

On O. A. C. Field Today.

What promises to be one of the most hotly contested field meets in the inter-collegiate series, will be held on agricultural field this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The farmers will have to earn every point they get from the visitors, who include in their team some of the best athletics in the state. The basketball team from Dallas scored the only victory over the local team this season. Today's games will decide which college has the stronger team on the track and field.

Admirers of the agricultural lads believe that, if pressed, they can excel their performances of last Saturday. Those familiar with the capabilities of the Dallas aggregation say that the locals will have to beat the records made against McMinnville, or Dallas will lead in the scoring.

Miss Henkle Takes Lead

Interest is becoming aroused in the contest for carnival queen and from present indications the vote received by the successful candidate will run well into the thousands. Seven young ladies are now being balloted for, but the list will grow no doubt as any lady residing in Benton county is eligible. The various candidates stand in the following order when the votes were counted yesterday.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of police judge of the city of Corvallis at the election to be held May 18, 1903. E. P. GREFFOZ.

ADDRESSED LEAGUE.

Major McKinney and W. E. Coman Told of the Work of Immigration Bureau.

Upon invitation of the Citizen's League, Major G. M. McKinney, chief of the Harriman Immigration Bureau, and W. E. Coman, general passenger agent of the Southern Pacific for Oregon, addressed the business men of Corvallis at Firemen's Hall last Monday evening. The hall was filled and the audience was enthusiastic. Major McKinney has charge of the head offices of the bureau at Chicago, which is sending out thousands of copies daily of circulars advertising Oregon. In his talk Monday night he explained the system through which this advertising matter is placed in the hands of every person desirous of information concerning this state. Six members of the staff are traveling through the middle west and as far south as Georgia, giving lectures on Oregon, illustrated by stereopticon views. Thereby arousing an interest in this state and educating the people concerning our great resources. The bureau has distributed 695,000 pamphlets descriptive of Oregon during the last few months.

Mr. Coman said that he had heard much of the slowness of the people of Western Oregon, but no section of the state had responded so quickly or so heartily to the request for advertising literature, or was more active in support of the immigration bureau. In the past two months nearly 4,000 immigrants have been carried into Western Oregon counties by his company's lines.

Brief talks were made by Judge Hollis, late of Benton Harbor, Mich., and a number of local citizens, and a rising vote of thanks was extended to the visiting speakers.

The League appointed Z. H. Davis, E. E. Wilson and W. E. Yates a committee to devise means and plans for establishing and promoting a system of rural telephones. The scheme is to place a telephone in the house of every farmer in the county, and provide this service at a nominal cost. A resolution was adopted asking the city council of Portland to grant a franchise to the Empire Telephone Company, an organization independent of other telephone companies, which purposes establishing rural systems throughout the state.

Remarkable Animal Act.

With the Norris & Rowe's Big Shows which are to appear here soon, is a remarkable animal act, which is so entirely out of the ordinary that the press throughout the country have been more than lavish in its praise. The great act, which is the cause of so much comment, is the congress of educated seals and sea lions, which they are presenting this season. It is almost beyond the power of reason to believe that seals and sea lions, which have never been accredited with any more sense than to be able to lazily pull themselves upon a rock, or to dine upon a fish dinner, can be made to perform maneuvers and exceedingly intricate tricks at the beck and call of a human being. They have been taught to skip ropes and to balance and juggle all sorts and sizes of articles, such as lighted torches, hoops and balls, and they even play upon musical instruments. They have also a clown among them, who enters into the humor of his actions with as much zest as a human being. This is positively one of the most novel acts given by any tented exhibition. These performing amphibians will be seen in the grand street parade which will leave the show grounds.

Co-operation. Necessary.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—We believe most heartily in beautifying our town,—in making it clean, wholesome and attractive. But this cannot be done simply by a few persons. All residents must join in this work or it will be only a partial success. It is needless to speak of cows picketed out, horses also,—and the happy motherly hen with her brood of chicks that is supposed to be "No trouble whatever!" and "Never does any damage." To begin with: Stock should not be allowed picketed within the city limits, and no pets, (chickens or otherwise) should run at large. We surely have a sufficient number of able-bodied men and scythes to cut the roadside grass (you know nothing is easier than to see a white man mow) But, nothing is more beautiful than cleanly cut grass bordering the walks and street,—and nothing more unsightly than the manner in which stock leaves it. Then stock will get loose; it continually occurs. How about those beautiful flower beds, we kept lawns, and gardens, then? Many low, gateless hedges now take the place of fences, and are no protection to the wandering cow or horse. Even where there are fences and gates, callers, boys and agents forget to close the gate, and if the owner is absent he might as well not have a fence. And Madam Biddy delights to wander in, to say nothing of Mrs. Goose, and lo!—the garden of an hour ago is a thing of the past.

Now if our city Fathers desire the residents of Corvallis to enter this scheme of beautifying the town, it will be necessary for these same city Fathers to protect these improvements. As to how they shall be protected, we leave that entirely to their judgment to determine. If the "Fathers" will protect us, we, the people, will do our part and the town shall blossom as the rose. RESIDENT.

A Metamorphosis.

Logan Hays and George Belt started for a spin to Albany in the former's fine new turnout, last Tuesday evening. They were happy in anticipation of a pleasant drive, and cordial greeting by friends in the metropolis of Linn. An hour after departure from Corvallis, they returned disheveled and dispirited. The new buggy was a wreck, the nobby harness was ruined, the faithful steed limp and dejected. It seems that the large road roller lying by the roadside at the top of Stewart's hill, was responsible for this sudden metamorphosis. Mr. Hays' horse is a strenuous animal and as it came suddenly in view of the roller, it shied, upsetting the buggy and piling the precious contents in the road. George and Logan assumed a sitting posture just in time to see horse and buggy part company. A kind farmer caught the steed and tied it to a fence. The wreckage was gotten together and brought back to town.

Will be Exhibited Here.

Arnold's menagerie of strange and ferocious beasts which will be exhibited in Corvallis during the Woodmen's carnival, was augmented by the arrival of a consignment of animals in Portland, last week. They were imported by Wm. Bartell, of New York, and were captured in Australia, New Zealand, Africa, South America and India, and are valued at $10,000.

In this aggregation are two Australian kangaroos, an emu and cassowary; a pair of striped hyenas from the Desert of Sahara, a couple of Abyssinian lions, a royal Bengal tiger captured in Northern India, a black bear, a lion-monkey from Brazil, a South American tapir, and a pair of coyotes; also a "happy family" combination, in which monkeys from all parts of the world are bunched in together with parrots, cockatoos, etc.

It is Mr. Arnold's intention to give the animals a week's rest. He then will place them on exhibition. Beginning with June 1, he will make a tour through Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Within two years he expects to establish a permanent zoological garden in Portland.

May Revolutionize Football.

American college football bids fair to be revolutionized next fall if the intercollegiate football rules committee carries into effect a regulation which it now has under consideration. This rule provides for nothing less than that the ball has to pass through the hands of only two men before being regarded as in play. At present it is necessary for it to go through the hands of three men.

By the proposed rule the Center can snap the ball to any man on the team, who may then rush with it. It will be possible, therefore, for the quarterback to carry the ball, an important innovation, and because of the fact that any man may take the pigskin without the quarterback's previous assistance. All sorts of puzzling combinations will be feasible. Indeed, in the opinion of experts, football under these conditions would be an entirely new game for the first season, at least, and would resolve itself largely into a question, "Who's got the ball?"

With this regulation in effect the present evils of mass play, which have aroused such opposition, would, it is believed, be largely done away with, and a more open and less dangerous style of play come into effect.

Obituary.

Mary Alice Winkle, who died at her home on the Island south of Corvallis, April 26th, was born in Benton county near Monroe, Aug. 26, 1872, and grew to womanhood in that vicinity.

In 1891. She was united in marriage to Gus Winkle of Corvallis, the eldest of two bright little children, the eldest a daughter of 11 and the youngest a son of 5, are now bereft of one who was ever a faithful wife and a devoted mother. Her parents are W. H. and R. W. Lovagun who with a number of brother and sisters reside in Linn county near Harrisburg.

Mrs. Winkle has a large circle of relatives in the south end of Benton, amongst whom are some of the most representative people of the county. She was a member of the Christian Church of Harrisburg, having united with that church about four years ago. She loved the church of her choice, was a consistent Christian and a zealous worker in the church. And in all things, in her daily conduct, her maternal instructions and her dealings with those surrounding her home circle, she tried to exemplify the life which the Great Master has taught us all to follow; always remembering that we are liable to "Err in human kindness And forget that we are dust If we miss the law of kindness In our struggle to be just."

Snowy wings of peace shall cover All the plain that hides away When the weary watch is over And the soul has passed away."

Mrs. Winkle was a member in good standing of the Degree of Honor of Harrisburg under whose auspices the beautiful and impressive funeral obsequies was performed.

A large number of relatives and friends mourn the untimely loss of one who was a faithful wife and mother, an affectionate daughter and a loving sister. The floral gifts offered at the grave were very beautiful and in great profusion. These and many other gracious acts of kindness are greatly appreciated by the bereaved family, who met around Alice's grave on that sad but beautiful day.

A ray of Heavenly bliss Could come to every weeping heart In such an hour as this

At the great and final judgment When the hidden comes to light, When the friends whose death hath parted Shall again in bliss unite.

At the bidding of our Savior, Come ye blessed to my right, What a gathering of the loved ones When we'll meet each other there." J. D. HOWELL.
