EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Forty-four New Jersey Trusts which have been placed in the hands of receivers since January 1, of this year, with authorized capital of $80,340,000 and which became trusted to the amount of $17,272,333 for the payment of which they were found to have estimated assets of only $1,563,684, scarcely enough to pay receivers and lawyers fees and give decent burial to the corpses of the defunct corporate trusts. The New Jersey Trust-promoting boom is certainly not progressing so smoothly as heretofore, and still the good work of those deceptive watered capitalized combinations are reaching a proper accounting. as water undisturbed will sooner or later seek its proper level.

From the commercial columns of the great dailies we learn that the great oil Trust has advanced the price of coal-oil two cents a gallon in less than a month. Statisticians who have been figuring on what this means to the Trust, state that it gives an annual added increase of $30,000,000 to the income of the trust magnates, and means an additional tax on the people to that amount. This enormous tax, which touches the very life of the people, is paid almost without a murmur. And this is only one out of many such. Coal has already advanced, and will go higher as soon as the cold weather makes it an absolute necessity; meat of all kinds has advanced. This gain is not the gain of the producers. The prices that the Trusts pay to them is screwed down to the lowest notch the continuance of life and business will permit. The question that forces itself on us is: "What are we coming to?" Conditions something like this have prevailed for years in England, and yet "in the heart of the wealthiest city, in that most Christian land," the fact stands out in ghastly prominence, that one out of every six in London dies in a hospital, a workhouse or a prison. And we call ourselves civilized! Just think of our ancestors making a fuss about a tax on tea, and throwing it into Boston harbor, while we pay a tax of $30,000,000 a year on coal-oil, just levied by our dear "brother" Rockefeller! What are we going to do about it?

* * *

Until recent years financial conditions were such that the West was largely in debt to and dependent upon the East, and at the same time the East was in debt to and dependent upon the nations of the old world. In 1893, the immense fall in prices was due mainly to foreign selling of the industrial stocks and bonds of enterprises in this country. Since that time great changes have taken place. Financiers of the United States have been able to buy back the American stocks and bonds held abroad, and thus in a great measure establish financial independence for the business interests of this country. In the years ending in 1901, the balance of trade in favor of this country was over $3,000,000,000, and the gold imports in the same time was under $100,000,000. With the liquidation of the great debt to Europe, the United States becomes able to accumulate surplus instead of having to use her large balance of trade to pay debts to Europe. In like manner the western part of the United States has been able to pay off the farm mortgages and other debts due to Eastern creditors, accumulate a surplus and thus establish financial independence, rendering the affairs of the West less liable to the fluctuations of Eastern influence. This state of affairs is a grand position for the United States to assume in her business relations, so that if Europe speculates too much the financial affairs of the Union, will be less liable to be influenced thereby. Likewise if Eastern capitalists establish too many large capitalized organizations the Western people being able to handle her own financial affairs will be less liable to fluctuations occasioned by Eastern influences.

In view of the confusion and destruction of the revenue system of the state occasioned by the so called tax law passed by the last legislature, the words of David Logan will be heartily appreciated.

David Logan was known as one of the able lawyers of the state. At one time he was partner with Benton Killin and the late Judge Shattuck, under the firm name of Logan, Shattuck & Killin.

During the progress of the constitutional convention when the present constitution of this state was framed, the point was discussed as to what time and how often the state legislature should convene in regular session. Many suggestions were offered and considered. when Mr. Logan suddenly arose and spake as follows: "Mr. President, I move you, sir, that the time for the regular sessions of the legislature be fixed for once every ten years and that the duties thereof be confined to repealing all acts of their predecessors." What a wise suggestion in view of the crazy quilt performances of the several legislative bodies of the past few years? Few men are elected to the legislature who foresee that their best duty to their state is to prevent the passage of bills and thus preserve uniform laws. So rapidly are the laws changed by each legislature that few men can have a certain knowledge of what rule of action they live under.
