

LOGAL AND PERSONAL

Dr. Lowe is in the city until noon today.

R. L. Weatherford and family, of Harrisburg, spent Thanksgiving in this city.

Mrs. J. T. Phillips returned home last week from an extended visit in Sacramento.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Otto Peterson, at Fern, on last Wednesday, a bouncing boy.

Fred Poorman, one of the O. A. C. boys, spent Thanksgiving holidays at his home in Woodburn.

Mrs. Walter Babbitt and sister, Miss Boulden, of Independence, spent a few days in Corvallis last week.

Mrs. W. A. Bates, of this city, is visiting at the home of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Morrison, in Albany.

Mrs. C. W. Irvine, of Independence, spent a couple days last week with her son, R. C. Irvine, in Corvallis.

Helen Crawford, of the O. A. C., and Lura Campbell, of Corvallis public schools, spent Thanksgiving in Albany.

Lost—A black icewool fascinator, between Corvallis and Mr. Dunham's, west of Corvallis. Finder please leave same at Hodes' grocery.

Keith Brown, while doing some repairing on the local telephone line, fell backward about four feet to the ground. He struck on his left hand, giving the wrist a bad twist.

Carl Steiwer, one of O. A. C.'s track men, spent his Thanksgiving vacation at his home in Jefferson. He was accompanied by Merrill Moores, who was his guest during the vacation.

Miss Elsie Canfield, after spending Thanksgiving holidays in this city with friends, returned to Dallas yesterday. Miss Canfield is now teaching in Dallas College, which work she likes very much.

Mrs. V. Espey and children, Miss Kate and Paul, went to Eugene yesterday to visit with the former's son, Ivan Daniel. Mr. Daniel is with the Wiedemann Theatrical Company, which will play in Eugene during this week.

Harold Rumbaugh, who is attending the O. A. C. and who has been doing star work for the Farmers' football team, left on Friday to visit his home in Albany for a few days. He is nursing a broken nose received in the Thanksgiving Day game.

Georgia Lowell, a 15-year-old scholar of the Newton school district, near Corvallis, came near losing an eye last Wednesday. While sharpening an indelible pencil she accidentally got some of the lead in her eye. She was brought to town and the injured optic given attention. Although the eye was badly inflamed, by proper care, no permanent harm will result from the accident.

A gang of men were at work the latter part of the week scraping the mud and debris off Main street. It was a big improvement, but our residents will greatly appreciate a little effort by the authorities in keeping the crosswalks cleaner in the different parts of the resident section of the city. Better let the teams go through the mud—it won't hurt them—than the citizens wade in mud to the ankles.

A mistake crept into our columns of last issue in an article headed, "Divorce Granted." The parties divorced were Gabriel Long and Ellen Long, and not Fred Elliott and Ada Elliot, as we stated. The latter persons were participants in a suit for partition of real property and as the two cases were recorded on the same page at the clerk's office, by a mistake the reporter copied the wrong names when taking the particulars in the divorce case.

Supt. Geo. W. Denman has enlarged the Benton County School Journal, the last addition being a two-page insert, making in all ten pages. The Journal is brimful of interesting news for the teacher and scholar and each month a copy finds its way into every home in the county. Nearly every business firm in Corvallis and Philomath carries an ad—in fact, Mr. Denman is receiving every encouragement from reader and advertiser. The Journal is deserving of its success.

The Artisans, of Wells, held a basket social last Wednesday evening. The proceeds were given Mrs. Frank Brown and Mrs. Cummings, members of this Assembly, whose husbands died some time ago. After a short literary program consisting of orchestra music, vocal selections by Annie Torgerson, recitation by Jim Allen and an address by Geo. W. Denman. From sale of baskets and contributions over $70 was raised. This is truly practicing fraternity. It stamps this order as a true disciple of charity and benevolence. Such an order as this deserves the highest praise for such a worthy effort to add comfort to the homes of its unfortunate members.

Wilbur Weeks, who spent several days with Corvallis friends, returned to his home in Salem Saturday.

Mrs. Jerry Nunan, of Portland, came up Saturday on a visit to her sister, Mrs. E. Woodward. She returned Monday.

A light case of scarlet fever is reported at the home of E. F. Bryant, the little girl having the disease in a very light form.

Prof. and Mrs. A. C. Schmitt, of the Oregon Agricultural College, were visiting at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Flinn in Albany the last of the week.

Coach McFadden, who has had charge of the O. A. C. football team this season, left yesterday afternoon for Whatcom, Wash., where he will remain for a time before starting for San Francisco.

Miss Grace Scott, formerly of this city, and at one time employed in this office, was married at North Yakima on the 18th of November, to Mr. Edwin Wingate. They will make their home at The Dalles.

Mrs. Roy Raber, who has been under medical treatment in Portland for sometime, returned to her home in this city the last of the week. She, with her family, will shortly join her husband in Glenn's Ferry.

P. M. Zierolf returned home on Sunday, after two weeks absence in Portland, taking treatment for his rheumatism. He returned with the oldtime smile on his countenance, and reports himself without an ache or pain.

Dr. Darrin and wife upon leaving Corvallis will take a trip around the world, going from San Francisco, taking in Asia, Africa and Europe. Upon their return they will resume business in Oregon, probably in Eugene.

Ladies of the Eastern Star should remember the meeting this evening at Masonic Hall. There will be plenty of business for the evening: Work, election of officers for the next year, and refreshments after. A full attendance is desired.

Several Albany people were in the city the last of the week. Will V. Merrill was over on a business trip. Jack Hammill and wife came over on Friday. Miss Mina Headley, and her guest, Miss Fannie Hendee, of Portland, came over on Thanksgiving and returned on Friday to Albany.

Prof. Geo. Coote, Master of Corvallis Grange, desires the announcement made that the celebration of the 36th anniversary of the National Grange will not occur on account of the extra amount of work at the College which interferes with the assistance of the professors, who are members. A rally will be arranged at a later date, due notice of which will be given.

At a regular meeting of Oregon Council No. 2, R. & S. M., at Masonic Hall, on Wednesday evening last, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Seymour Chipman, Th. Ill. M.; J. B. Irvine, D. M.; J. Fred Yates, P. C. W.; E. Holgate, treasurer; J. B. Horner, secretary. Installation at the next regular meeting, at which time subordinate officers will be appointed.

Supt. Denman is now making elaborate arrangements for the first parents' meeting ever held in Kings Valley. The schools have been invited to furnish a literary program, the teachers and patrons the regular program, and the good cooks the basket dinner. A new feature of these programs will be an entertainment, especially for the children, on one of Edison's latest phonographs. Mr. Denman has recently purchased a new machine so as to give the children an opportunity to better enjoy these meetings. Programs will be printed soon.

O. A. C. TO THE FRONT.

Finest Laboratory on the Coast Now Being Added.

One of the finest chemical laboratories on the coast is now in process of constructing in the Agricultural Hall, the entire south half of the first floor being given over to this purpose.

The main laboratory contains six long desks, with places for 96 students, and also a desk on a platform for the instructor. The tops of these desks are made of California redwood, two inches thick. This wood has twice been treated with each of two preserving solutions, and now are receiving a coat of linseed oil, after which they will be covered with paraffine wax, making the wood almost impervious to the action of chemicals. Each student is provided with a locker and key, where he may keep all of his apparatus, consisting of test-tubes, beakers, etc., while on top of the desks are placed shelves for the smaller bottles of chemicals. Situated about the room are shelves for the more bulky bottles of reagents. One especial convenience of this laboratory is a series of circular porcelain sinks or basins placed every four feet along the middle of desks, giving one basin to every four workers. Along the north side of the room is placed a long glass cabinet containing "hoods" for carrying off gases. All experiments liable to generate gases of an obnoxious nature are performed in this cabinet.

Opening off the main room are two smaller ones in which all of the chemical supplies are stored, one for the main laboratory and one for the station laboratory. The station laboratory is situated on the second floor of the building, and is furnished similar to the students' laboratory, except in size, having dishes for only 24 workers.

It is said by those who have seen the laboratories of Berkeley and Cornell, that they are no larger nor better equipped than those of O. A. C.

DEATH OF B. P. CARDWELL

An Old Corvallis Citizen Passes Away in Portland

Byron P. Cardwell, an Oregon pioneer of 1852, and one of Portland's most widely known citizens, died at his home at 395 Fourth street, at 1:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon. In August he was stricken with heart trouble, which resulted in his death. He was born in Springfield, Ill., March 3, 1832, and was the son of Wm. Lee and Mary Ann Biddle Cardwell.

At the age of 20 he accompanied his parent to Oregon, driving his own ox team across the plains, and arriving at Marysville, now known as Corvallis, on October 8, 1852. The family took up donation land claims on what is now called Cardwell Hill, and Byron Cardwell raised blooded horses and cattle in partnership with his uncle, the late Hamilton Campbell. With the late W. B. Carter, formerly editor of the GAZETTE, he drove a large pack string of mules between Corvallis, Yreka, Cal., and Jacksonville, Or., for several years. In 1856 he was married to Miss Abbie M. Clarke. In 1858 he moved to Portland and formed a copartnership with Joseph Buchtel in the photograph business, which continued until he was appointed a Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue by President Lincoln about 1861, which position he held for 21 years.

He was a life-long republican, and an earnest worker for the party's success. During Governor Moody's administration he was appointed Police Commissioner for Portland, and by successive re-elections by the people remained as such for nine years. In 1894 he was elected a member of the state legislature. At the last election he was compelled by a committee of citizens to accept the seat in the city council for the Fifth Ward.

His religion was the golden rule, and it is doubtful if he had an enemy on earth. He was a man of the strictest business integrity, and his "word was as good as his bond."

He is survived by his wife and his son, Dr. Herbert W.; by three brothers, Dr. James R. and Chas. H., of this city, and Richard H. Cardwell of San Francisco, and by two sisters, Mrs. Olena M. Murray, and Mrs. Martha A. Dalton. The late Dr. William B. Cardwell and the late Mrs. Geo. E. Cole were his brother and sister. A daughter Alice, died in 1863.

ABE LOGAN ACQUITTED

Judge Scores Jury for Returning Such a Verdict.

The Jury in the case of Abe Logan, the Indian accused of murdering U. S. Grant, upon the Siletz reservation, dumbfounded the court and everyone who heard the evidence in the case by returning a verdict of not guilty yesterday morning. Judge Bellinger took occasion to express his surprise at the outcome, and also to administer a gentle scolding to the jury for returning such a decision. He then scored the Indian, and told him that he was guilty of implication in the crime even though he had been declared innocent by the jury. The judge declared that the jury was influenced in coming to the decision it did by pity for the wife and children of the defendant.

When the verdict was announced in the courtroom an audible expression of disapproval of the result went over the entire audience. To those who had listened to the evidence against both men accused of the crime, it seemed a travesty upon justice that Logan should be set free and Martin, against whom there was less substantial evidence, should have to serve time for manslaughter.

After listening to the verdict the judge turned to the jury and said:

"This has been a failure of justice. Out of respect and feeling for the wife and little ones of this defendant, you have been led to acquit. Such a verdict as this must result disastrously to all residents of the Siletz reservation."

To the acquitted prisoner he addressed these words: "Logan you are acquitted; but I think you are a bad man and that you killed Grant. The jury gave you the benefit of a reasonable doubt, but had I been on the jury I would at least have brought in a verdict of manslaughter. The blood of Grant is on your hands, and I give you fair warning that your escape from the punishment that you no doubt deserve does not argue that you would go free a second time, and I advise you to keep out of this court."

The displeasure of the Indians at the result of Martin's trial was increased by the result of Logan's. They did not hesitate to express it as their opinion that there had been a slip in justice somewhere, and that it was the height of injustice to convict Martin upon the weak testimony against him, and allow a man against whom the strongest evidence was introduced to go free. By some of the Federal officials, trouble is looked for among the Red Men as a result of the acquittal of Logan. He is not liked by other residents of the reservation, it is stated, and one government officer said that he would not be the least surprised if Logan were killed by the Indians in revenge. The expressed belief among the Indians who have been in attendance upon the trial is that Logan is the guilty man, and that he killed Grant himself and attempted to lay the crime at Martin's door to shield himself. Logan, it is said, bears a bad reputation upon the reservation, and the other Indians do not like him.—Oregonian.

Oak Grove Items.

James Johnson made a business trip to Albany, Monday.

Dr. Bailey, who has been quite poorly for some time, is able to be around again.

Mrs. Viola Woods, late of Washington, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Emmet Williamson.

Will and Frank Holman have gone to Mohawk, Lane county, to do some work on their homesteads.

W. Bailey and family, who have been visiting with his brother Robert, left Monday, for their home at Drain, Oregon.

C. N. Stuard has just returned home from Elbow-Bend near Prospect Park where he has been helping A. Henshaw harvest his potato crop.

The Sewing Circle met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. A. Brush. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Shol, Mesdames McClung, Smidt, Sharp, McKechnie and Cady, Miss Cady, Mr. Smidt, Irva Cady, Frank, Myron and Elden Brush. The booby prize was given to Mr. Jacob Shol, who proved himself to be an expert with the needle.

Rae and Guy Walker, Sam Damm, Glen Goodman, and Tom Fitchard spent Sunday in Independence.

HONOR IS UNCLAIMED

Oregonian Says Corvallis Has the Most Right to Championship.

In the matter of college football championship in the West there is more of a muddle than ever, and as things now stand it is hardly possible that any presumptuous eleven will claim the honors on the comparative showings that have been made. Washington would like to claim the championship, but cannot consistently do so. For instance, Washington defeated Corvallis earlier in the season, 5 to 0. Nevada tied with Stanford and beat Berkeley, but was in turn defeated by Washington, 2 to 0; Puget Sound, 10 to 0, and Corvallis, 15 to 0. Here we have a case of Washington beating Nevada by a smaller score than the Oregon farmers, who previously went down before the men from the North. Truly there is little use of a "dope" book when it comes to estimating anything regarding football. One game is hardly sufficient to determine the merits of any two teams.—Telegram.

The Oregonian in speaking of the Nevada team's career, says: "Nevada had taken a slump, possibly not before the Seattle game, but certainly since then. At all events, after their career in the Northwest, if any team is to claim the Coast championship it is Corvallis, and that team has not had the presumption to claim the honors. The only conclusion is that there is no championship on the Coast this year."

If the football season was now beginning instead of having ended, the matter of settling the Coast championship would be an easy matter. Corvallis ended the season in such a whirlwind style that it could have claimed the Coast championship and backed up her claim by a clear string of victories.

Philomath Jottings.

F. P. Clark made a business trip to Portland last week.

Mr. Hayhurst, of Nebraska, is visiting with Geo. Bennett, of this city.

Philomath band boys will give their first social next Thursday evening.

Mrs. Meats is expected to arrive from the East, this week, where she has been visiting her parents.

Messrs. M. K. and James A. Watkins are spending Thanksgiving week visiting friends and relatives here and in Corvallis.

Rev. A. Bennett is very low with pneumonia. All his children are here. His son, Dr. Ed. Bennett, of Dusty, is waiting on him.

The Benton County Lumber Co's mill and planers are kept busy despite the disagreeable weather. They expect to close work in a few days until after the holidays.

A crowd of young folks attended a party at Mrs. James Watkins' last Friday. Some of the boys walked, but don't ask if they found any mud. They say it was dusty most of the two miles out there. PEEK-A-BOO.
