STRONG COLONIES.

Without Them Beekeping Is Sure to Be a Disappointment.

One of the difficult things for the novice in beekeping to learn is that ten strong colonies will store more honey than twenty weak ones. There is an anxiety for large numbers, and each colony is counted one, no matter how feeble it may be. So the inexperienced is often delighted at getting two, three, or even four or five swarms from a single colony, notwithstanding the fact that the last two or three swarms contain only a handful of bees. They make sure to die before the winter is over, and then he decides that he doesn't care for such very weak colonies, but still clings to the thought that one strong enough to live through it is all right.

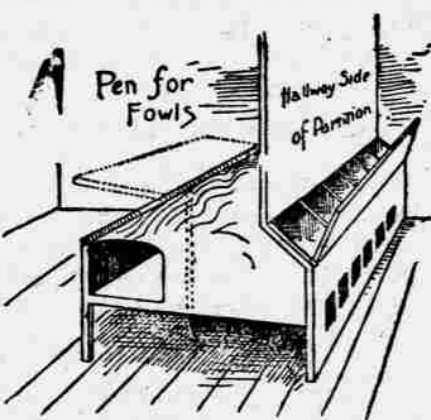

Many times, however, it is true economy to lessen the number, even with the view of having the largest number possible in the succeeding fall. Suppose, for instance, there are four weak colonies in the spring, each one having enough bees to fairly cover two combs. Unite two of them and leave the other two without uniting. You now have only three colonies instead of four, and yet you may be better off; for the one colony, with bees to cover four combs, will go right on increasing in strength, and by the time the white clover harvest is fairly under way it will be strong enough to give you a rousing swarm, and you will now have two strong colonies for it, while the two weaklings have only just begun fairly to build up. They stood still, not showing any increase in number for a long time, evidently needing all the strength they had to keep up existence and make good the loss of the dying bees by the young bees raised.

If, instead of trying to increase the effort to get all the honey possible, supposing neither colony offers to swarm, the difference is fully as noticeable, if not more so. The united colony will have more bees than there are in both the others. It is easy to see that it will store more surplus. But if you've had no experience in the matter it may be hard for you to believe how much more.—Farmers' Union.

AN EXCELLENT PLAN.

Nesting and Breeding Arrangement for a Poultry Farm.

Dark nests and convenience in gathering eggs from them characterize the plan shown herewith. The right of the cut represents the hallway, from which the nests are reached by lifting the hinged cover, as shown. The entrance to the nests is seen on the pen side of the partition, the dotted lines showing position of partition between the dark walk and the nests. A hinged cover, shown by dotted lines, gives access to this alleyway, so it can be swept occasionally. Below the nests are grated openings into the hallway so that the fowls can be fed and watered in the hall, thus affording no chance of spilling or soiling the food or water. With this arrangement nearly all the work of caring for the fowls can be done from the hallway.—American Agriculturist.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

No brooding pen should contain over 50 chicks.

From 35 to 40 ducks and drakes are allowed in a pen.

Broilers shrink about a half-pound each when dressed.

The shell of an egg contains about 15 grains of salt of lime.

Forty dressed ducklings are packed in a barrel for shipment.

The duck averages ten dozen eggs in about seven months' laying.

Build the house ten by ten feet for ten fowls, and the yard ten times larger.

Ducklings are marketed at five pounds weight, which they attain in ten weeks.

Ten dozen eggs a year is the average estimate given as the production of the hen.

About four dozen eggs are given as an average for the annual output of the turkey.

Duck feathers sell at 40 cents per pound; goose feathers bring double the amount.

Between 40 and 50 degrees is the proper temperature to keep eggs for hatching during winter.

Eggs intended for hatching should not be kept over four weeks. They must be turned over every day or two.

It will require seven pounds of skimmed milk to equal one pound of lean beef for flesh-forming qualities.

One dollar per head is the average cost of keeping a fowl a year, and the same amount is a fair estimate of the profits.—Poultry Monthly.

Sawdust Is Dangerous.

Do not put sawdust in poultry pens. If the fowls eat it there may soon be some cases of cropbound chickens, as it is liable to pack in the crop. It also gathers moisture and causes dampness. No matter how convenient a pile of sawdust may be it had best be let alone. Road dust is much better. This applies to fowls that are confined. When allowed a free range they are not likely to eat so much of any thing so undesirable as sawdust that it will injure them, but when shut up they do not discriminate very closely when it comes to filling their crops.—Dakota Field and Farm.

Try for Health

222 South Peoria St., CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Georgia Dunbar

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one sincere effort to be well. You need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?
