The Senior Play

Faithful work has been done by the members of the senior class of the O. A. C., who are to produce Sheridan's brilliant comedy "The Rivals," at the Opera House next Tuesday evening.

While the undertaking is an ambitious one, the seniors are to be congratulated upon choosing so high-class a play, and assurance is given that they will give a creditable performance. No more diverting comedy than "The Rivals" has been produced since its appearance 125 years ago. From the liveliness of its plot, the variety and whimsicality of its characters, and the exquisite humor of its dialogue, it is one of the most amusing plays in the whole range of drama.

Joseph Jefferson, the most charming comedian this country has ever produced, made one of his greatest successes in the character of "Acres," and many other noted actors have starred in the part.

Following is the cast for Tuesday evening's performance:

Sir Anthony.....Chester Proebstel
Captain Absolute.....C. C. Cate
Faulkland.....J. T. Witte
Acres.....Guy E. Moore
Sir Lucius O'Trigger.....C. L. Shepard
Fag.....Wm. Wicks
David.....Carl Rinehart
Thomas.....Cecil Staats
Mrs. Malaprop.....Miss St. German
Lydia Languish.....Miss Etta Fuller
Julia Melville.....Miss Mary Sutherland
Lucy.....Miss Isabelle Whitby

O. A. C. Notes.

At a meeting of the glee club last Wednesday Mr. Arthur G. Boquet was elected president; Mr. Otto F. L. Herse, director and Prof. W. F. Shaw, secretary and treasurer. They will sing at commencement and with that close up the work of this year.

At a meeting of next year's Barometer staff R. C. Shepard was elected editor-in-chief and Earnest Eddy business manager. The other members of the new staff are Laura Hill, Laura Waggoner, Alice Jones, Hazel Raber, A. L. Bradley, and H. C. Darby.

Students are beginning to return for commencement. Miss Elva Buster and Mrs. J. D. Zercher are here while Mr. Jameson and Mr. Wells of '03 class were here but have returned home again.

Reign of Anarchy

Riot follows riot in the mining district of Victor, Colorado. While a mass meeting was being held on Monday last, to discuss the murder of the thirteen non-Union miners of Independence, a riot broke out and two men were killed and eight or more people injured. Great excitement prevailed. The Citizens Alliance is in command and masters of the situation. Union miners are being arrested as fast as they can be found. The sheriff has been compelled to resign, a new sheriff has been appointed, who with a hundred deputies and many militiamen have scoured the hills and arrested every Union miner. Over 200 hundred are now confined in the bull pen. Some more have already been shipped away by train and will probably be taken to Denver. The men sent away were mostly strike leaders of the Unions. The acting governor has issued a proclamation declaring martial law, and officers have gone to Cripple Creek who are authorized to use their best judgment as to its enforcement. Many of the local officials who are known to have Union sympathies have been deposed.

TWO O. A. C. BOYS.

How Education Makes Successful Farmers.

A Homestead of recent date contained the following article concerning two former students of the O. A. C.:

From the farm to college and from the college to the farm has been the experience of two members of the above named firm, which was organized January 1, 1903, for the purpose of ranching and farming near Mayville, Oregon. The tract of land purchased by these gentlemen comprises 2,500 acres of fertile land, of which 100 acres can be irrigated at little expense.

The oldest member of the firm (Bert Edwards) is an experienced farmer and resides at the upper end of the ranch with his family, some three miles from the bachelor quarters of the football end of the ranch. The former more generally looks after the diversified farming while the other two, who were classmates at college, attended more directly to the stock. It is said by many, when the boys (they are all young) purchased this property and stocked it at a cost of about $25,000, that they were green in business, and that they were making a mistake, etc.; however, the boys have demonstrated that they mean business. The writer believes that they are on the right road. They do not depend on stock alone, nor do they trust to look for stock feed. On the other hand they have already put in 30 acres of alfalfa and will put in many more next season. They have turned water from Thirty-mile creek by means of a ditch one mile long, sufficient to irrigate 100 acres which will be one vast alfalfa field in due time. With this abundant supply of about 300 tons or more of the choicest feed (alfalfa) there will be no loss of stock from starvation, as was the experience of many a rancher this past winter. The question of an educated farmer or rancher has many times been debated and it is still believed by many that a college education can not materially benefit a farmer or add to his harvest. As you will—these gentlemen ("that is the last two mentioned," Frederic Edwards and Horace McBride) are both graduates of the Oregon State Agricultural College at Corvallis; the former is also a graduate of the University of Oregon at Eugene, while the latter took a two years' special course at the same university. During their school days both at Corvallis and Eugene they were widely and favorably known among football circles. McBride playing end man while Edwards served as quarterback. Edwards also coached the Albany college team during the season of 1901-02. At college they were always up with their class. In the field they were always equal to the occasion. At football they were in the lead and on the farm and ranch they still retain the same progressive reputation. The boys are practical, educated, and scientific farmers.

There are but two important changes that should be made and these are at the lower ranch-house. The bachelor quarters should be brightened by the pleasant smiles, and made comfortable, homelike and attractive by the ever welcome presence of the little fairies who would no doubt add very much to the material operations of the ranch. Boys, take courage; don't wash dishes. Mr. McBride is a native of the Willamette valley where he spent most of his life. The Edwards brothers were born in the same valley near Albany but removed to the bunch-grass country when mere boys. Here is where football and farming go hand in hand.—D. F. C.

Fin de Siecle Heroism.
"Sometimes," said he, "I am surprised at my own courage."
"Why, you never went to war," said his wife.
"There are other risks than those of the battlefield. Every time I pick up a newspaper I find an article on 'the dangers to our political system,' 'dangers to public morals,' 'danger of eating,' 'dangers that lurk in the atmosphere,' and so on without end. I tell you it takes a very brave man to go on eating and breathing nowadays."—Tit-Bits.
