If you are going to Newport this season you want to be looking into the subject of hotels. You will find there are several. Some are famous for fine views; some for fine scenery; some have other inducements to offer, but the hotel that is famous all over the state for the best meals of any hotel in Oregon is the well-known Abbey House. You can't enjoy a vacation unless you live well during the time, and you can't find a better dinner than Peter Abbey will set before you at the famous Abbey House—in the finest seaside resort of the whole Pacific Coast, Newport.

After an absence of nearly ten years, Mr. Z. B. Walker is visiting friends and relatives in this city. Mr. Walker left Corvallis in 1894, to become a member of the Ward & James company of players. After a successful season with that celebrated theatrical combination, he accepted a position with Munn & Co., publishers of the Scientific American, in New York City. His splendid talents were soon recognized and he was tendered the position of editor of this greatest scientific publication in the world. He accepted and still holds this position. He left New York City nearly a month ago on business connected with his paper, and after spending two weeks at the St. Louis Fair he came to Corvallis for a short visit. On his return trip home, he will pass through St. Louis and spend ten days at the fair. Mrs. Walker and son, who visited Mrs. Walker's mother, Mrs. B. W. Wilson, in this city two years ago, did not accompany Mr. Walker on this trip West.

Five Cases of Smallpox in Benton.

Benton County has five genuine cases of smallpox, and the grave fears that there will be an epidemic. Jake Hurburt and Kay Jones are getting well, but three cases out in the country have developed within the last few days and unless severe measures are at once adopted the whole valley will be peppered with the pest.

On Monday, J. A. Hawkins, who lives above Philomath and has been working for the Benton County Lumber Company, came down to Corvallis to celebrate with smallpox broken out all over his face. Chief Lane arrested him, and, as he did not care to have a case on hand that properly belonged to the county officials, he ordered Hawkins to go back to his camp at the Mill and stay there until he got well. This Hawkins promised to do, but instead he went as far as Philomath where he found another man by the name of Speedy who, as was discovered, was nearly as badly broken out as Hawkins.

These two, both drunk, hired Henry Ambler's rig and struck out for Albany, arriving there Monday night. The authorities at Albany, without knowing of their former escapades, promptly arrested them and confined them in the pest house over night and Tuesday morning started them back towards Philomath. The authorities at Philomath were notified to be on the lookout, but were very much frightened.

The two men were headed off about two miles this side of Philomath and were told to surrender. But not a man cared to be first to take them. This was about two o'clock Wednesday and the Philomath authorities corraled the two men in a fence corner and sent for S. N. Wilkins county coroner to hold a preliminary inquest or ante-mortem examination. County Judge Waters was also telephoned and arrangements were made whereby the men are now safely ensconced within the hospitable walls of an old log cabin just west of Philomath.

There is no doubt about this being smallpox, as the leading physicians of the city are agreed upon this point. It may be Manila itch, but Manila itch is smallpox.

Hartley-Peterson.

In the presence of about thirty invited relatives and friends, the wedding of Warren B. Hartley and Aileen Ereka Peterson was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Peterson, in this city, Wednesday, July 6, at 9 o'clock a. m. Rev. F. L. Moore performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. J. L. Hershner, of Hood River. The ring ceremony being used. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Ed. Cummings.

The bride looked very beautiful in her dainty wedding apparel of cream albatross, and carried a bouquet of white lilies with streamers of illusion. Little Agnes Peterson, sister of the bride, acting as maid of honor, was dressed in white. The bridesmaid, Miss Bertha Waight, looked charming in her attire of tan and pink, with her bouquet of pink La France roses. The best man, Mr. Arthur Belknap, wore a suit of black as also did the groom.

After the ceremony they were congratulated by their many relatives and friends. Breakfast was then announced and they repaired to the dining room, where a most tempting menu was served by the hostess of the occasion.

The young couple left on the 11:30 train for Bohemia, where they will spend the summer.

The decorations of the parlor were white and green and the bridal pair stood beneath a lovers knot of white ribbon suspended amidst a treston of asparagus fern. The decorations in the dining-room were pink and green.

The groom is a popular and enterprising young mining man of this city. The bride is the highly esteemed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Peterson, and during her residence here has made a host of warm friends whose sincere wishes follow her to her new home. Mr. Hartley is to be congratulated on the matchless prize he won. The happy couple as they stand with faces toward the future, that land of romance and bright promises, possessed as they are of those attributes of personal worth may be well assured that much of the ideal will be realized.
