A MIGHTY Fortress.

Singing of the Song by Little Girl Calmed the Passions of an Angry Crowd.

About three years ago, in one of the mines near Scranton, Pa., manned mostly by Germans, a sudden fall of rock and coal buried a number of workmen. The rescuers, after toiling three days and nights in vain to reach them, began to despair. "We shall never find them alive!" was the muttered verdict of one and another exhausted miner as he ceased his efforts.

The mob of ignorant men and women at the mouth of the pit echoed the lamentations of the wives and children of the victims in the mine, and the excitement was fast rising to frenzy. Unreasoning rage broke out against the rich mine-owners. The tired workers, almost struck to desperation by their fruitless toil, vented their feelings in curses. An angry challenge or signal from any leader of the mob would have fired them to violence in a moment.

Just then, says the Youth's Companion, a pale little German girl, 14 years old, moved by some unknown impulse, began to sing:

"Eia feste Burg ist unser Gott." Her voice was husky at first, but gathered strength and tone, and very soon other voices joined hers, until the whole great company were singing together the great hymn of the fatherland:

"A mighty fortress is our God. With force of arms we nothing can. Full soon were we o'erthrown. But for us fights the proper man Whom God Himself hath bidden. Ask ye, Who is this same? Christ Jesus is His name."

When the song ceased peace had come to the hearts of the people. The rescuers resumed work with new energy and hope, and before morning they reached the buried men, who were still alive.

It is doubtful if there was ever an incident which more strikingly demonstrated the power of a grand religious hymn to calm passion, and steady wavering courage and failing faith. For centuries that sacred song of Martin Luther has made brave hearts braver and strong hands stronger. It has borne on high the prayers of persecuted worshippers, and cheered the march of sacramental hosts and victorious armies. It was sung on the field of Lutzen, where Gustavus Adolphus died.

Luther wrote it in 1530, during his several months' stay in Castle Coburg, a stronghold made famous in the struggles of the Thirty Years' war. It was his song of victory, but it gave to the ages a Christian battle hymn that has nerved the hearts of millions through moral campaigns where only God's sheep could break the way.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

He who is faithful in least is in direct line of promotion.—United Presbyterian.

Error is continually repeating itself in action, and we must unwearily repeat the truth in words.—Goethe.

There are nettles everywhere, but smooth, green grasses are more common still. The blue of heaven is larger than the cloud.—E. B. Browning.

Anything that spurs us to better our present best is a good gift from God, even though it be poverty, sorrow, or any other hardship.—Philadelphia Young People.

The soul's craving for peace is its natural yearning for its end, its Maker and its God. Since the soul is large enough to contain the infinite God, nothing less than Himself can satisfy or fill it.—E. B. Pusey.

Great and sacred is obedience. He who is not able, in the highest majesty of manhood, to obey with clear and open brow a law higher than himself is barren of all faith and love, and tightens his chains, moreover, in the struggle to be free.—James Martineau.

Remember constantly that God's loving eyes are upon you amid all these little worries and vexations, watching whether you take them as He would desire. Offer up all such occasions to Him; and, if sometimes you are put out and give way to impatience, do not be discouraged, but make haste to regain your lost composure.—Francis de Sales.

Credit Where Credit is Due.

"She has very pretty hair." "It isn't her own." "How about her ugly temper?" "That's hers."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Gossip. "I don't admire that woman," remarked Mr. De Spentic. "She seems exceedingly fond of gossip." "But gossip is sometimes entertaining," commented his wife. "Yes. But she never tells anything I haven't heard before."—Washington Star.

An Expensive Way.

Juddock—It's a mystery to me how Noccin lives. Haddock—Would you really like to know? Juddock—Yes, I would. Haddock—Open a grocery store in his neighborhood.—Puck.

There Was One Ready.

"Can't I have a newspaper to-day?" asked the murderer, as the sheriff entered his cell. "Yes," replied the obliging official, as he took the death warrant from his pocket, "here is a noose paper for you."—Harlem Life.

An Outlet.

"After all," said the hopeful philosopher, "a business failure isn't half so bad as a bad marriage." "No," said the vicious bachelor, "in a business failure a man may take hope and try again."—Philadelphia North-American.

MRS. CECILIA STOWE, Orator, Entre Nous Club.

176 Warren Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 22, 1902. For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

Cecelia Stowe
Mrs. Stowe's letter shows every woman how a home is saddened by female weakness and how completely Wine of Cardui cures that sickness and brings health and happiness again. Do not go on suffering. Go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.
