Editorial Comment.

Reports from Japanese sources received at Tokio says that a small Russian expedition from Kamchatka visited Sanshu Island, north of the Island of Hokkaido, and in the absence of the men, killed the women and children and burned the houses. This seems incredible, but is on a par with the action of Russian forces, both on land and sea, during the present war and is likely true.

The big strike of the meat packers in Chicago has signally failed, and most of the men have gone back to work. The strike involved some 53,000 persons and cost the strikers about $5,000,000 and the packers a loss of $7,500,000. The company practically refuses to recognize any union, and while the skilled men will be taken back the present force of unskilled men will be retained. As usual the families of the strikers are the greatest sufferers.

A Seattle Judge has handed down a decision which virtually says that a drug store has the right to engage in the sale of beer to the same extent as a saloon and they can not be prosecuted for not having a city liquor license. Under the ruling if the druggist has a state license all he has to do is to register the sale of a bottle of beer as for medicinal purposes and he is not guilty of an offence. This is a hint for our druggists after the local captionists have closed up the saloons. Put in an extra book-keeper to keep tally and sell all you please.

Injured Man Improving.

Geo. Bennet, of Philomath, who had such a narrow escape a few weeks ago at Tom Coon's saw mill from being crushed to death beneath a log, is recovering slowly and is able to be around but will not be able to go back to his regular work for a short time. It makes one's hair stick up through his hat to hear Mr. Bennet tell of his miraculous escape. They were rolling big fir logs down the hillside to the skid road. Bennet stumbled and fell in front of a huge log that was coming down the hill like "hades broke loose." It just happened that the log struck an elevation on the ground and jumped over Bennet, else he would have been ground to a pulp. As it was, however, Bennet received a broken shoulder blade and a few minor bruises but considers himself lucky to be still alive and on terra firma.

A Saddened Family.

Sorrow and sadness reign supreme in the little home of Walter Howell who lives near the B. C. L. Co's mill, about seven miles above Philomath, because their little flaxen haired 3 year-old girl, Gracie, is dead.

Gracie swallowed several sweet-coated pills and in less than an hour her lifeless form lay stretched upon her little cot. So sad is the occasion and so sudden did it all happen that the sympathy of all who hear of the sad accident is extended to the unhappy parents and involuntarily each mother caresses her own baby girl, thankful that it was not her own that died.

The family were moving from their house above the mill to one nearer. In the chaos that nearly always prevails on such occasions the box of pills was left on the table and the little girl, being attracted by the rattle of the boxes, opened them and, thinking them candy, ate them. It is supposed that she took about 15, enough to cause death to several persons. When Dr. Newth arrived from Portland an hour after the medicine began to take effect, the little girl lay silent in death.

The parents, when they realized that something was wrong, gave the child such remedies as they thought best, but nothing availed. The pills were Dr. Herkle's cascara compound, besides cascara, containing strychnine, nuxvomica and belladonna, all of them poisons. One is considered a physician's dose.

All Right! Go Ahead.

Henry Ambler, of Philomath, has the best display of farm products in Benton county. Strange that there is not a single place in Corvallis, where strangers may see samples of growing grain, fruit and vegetables. Is it because our real estate men lack enterprise? A display of this kind is an absolute essential and one of the prime requisites of a growing community. Mr. Ambler is talking of moving his display to the Ambler & Watters headquarters at the Hotel Corvallis. This we believe will be of more service to the firm and being in a location where newcomers will see it and it will also be of more value to the county than at Philomath. The principal article in Mr. Ambler's display is a huge cone laden branch of the noble fir from Marys' Peak for which Mr. Ambler paid a round sum. His samples of growing grain are the finest in the Willamette valley; the heads being well filled and some of the stalks are nearly seven feet in length. His fruit and vegetable display is also excellent and consists wholly of Benton county products. Mr. Ambler has certainly arranged a display that is very attractive and valuable.

Fred and Carrie Porter, of Bellfountain, were married in Albany Aug. 31st, and when they returned home from their honeymoon trip a few days ago everybody got glad and was in for a jamboree. A few musical instruments, a horse fiddle or two, and a number of oil cans, cow bells, etc., made up the band on the night of the serenade. Fred and Carrie are very highly esteemed young people and have the best wishes of a wide circle of friends at Bellfountain and elsewhere, as they start on their journey of wedded life.
