COLLEGE JOINTINGS.

Items of Interest In and Around the O. A. C.

Miss Carrie Byerlee, a member of last year's graduating class is now engaged as a teacher, in the Hood River public school.

Miss Agnes Love, who attended OAC last year, is now a student at a school in Spokane, Washington.

Will Wicks is now employed in the green house at the College.

Fred Wann and Earl Sweek, after an absence of two years, have again taken up their studies at OAC.

Henry Salvon, who has been taking the pharmacy course for the past two years, did not return to school this year. He now holds a good position in a drug store in Astoria, but will return and complete his course next year.

Miss Ethel Heslin, who attended College last year, is now teaching school at Cleone, Oregon.

James Zurcher, of Enterprise, spent a few hours at OAC on Tuesday visiting old College chums.

Ivan B. Rhoades addressed the young men of the College in the chapel on Sunday last. Mr. Rhoades is a graduate of the University of California, and is a very forcible speaker.

Rev. Handsaker favored the students with a bass solo at chapel Wednesday morning.

William Gilstrap, a member of the class of '97 of OAC, just recently completed his course in a medical school of San Francisco and is now located at Sheridan, where he has a good practice.

The first issue of the College Barometer will appear about Oct. 15. The cover for this popular college paper this year, will be one of the most unique ever put out in this school. Send in your subscription and get a copy of the first issue.

One of the handiest and most useful pieces of printed matter turned out by OAC, is a directory containing the names of the faculty, employes and the students, and their street address while making Corvallis their home. The directory is now on the press and will be completed in a few days.

Spagle, who played end on the OAC team for the past two seasons is now at Forest Grove and holding down quarter on the P. U. squad. Shannon of last year's second team is playing left half on the same eleven.

Ed. Bryson, Dick Kiger, Maj. A. J. Johnston and W. D. De Varney left town Wednesday morning for a point some 40 miles south of Roseburg, where they will take to the mountain fastness, intent on the slaughtering of big game. Every one of the party takes his nerve, trusty rifle, plenty of ammunition and other munitions along, and if the deer, bear, cougar, and bob-tailed-cat families of Southern Oregon do not lament the advent of our Nimrods we miss our guess. The party expect to be gone ten days or longer. Major Johnson will remain behind to look after business in Roseburg and Grants Pass.

The Herald is the name of a new venture in journalism which is published at Grants Pass. The manager is J. D. Quillen, and the editor is Robert G. Smith, a well-known attorney. They say they believe Josephine county needs a Democratic paper and that it will be for the good of all to have one. The Herald is newsy and healthy looking and we wish it all success, except, probably, political.

IX Officers and non-commissioned officers will be held responsible for all violations of established rules when committed in their presence or with their knowledge.

X Continuous observance by all cadets of those lessons of military courtesy that afford instruction without restraint, and which at all times distinguishes the person who has received military instruction, will be a sufficient guarantee of the unswerving obedience to orders, respect in which you not only hold the officers of the Military Department but to the faculty and to every instructor in the College.

By order of 1st Lieutenant D. P. Quinlan, 10th Cavalry, Commandant.
