

For President THEODORE ROOSEVELT, of New York.

Presidential Electors for Oregon J. N. HART of Polk. W. A. HEDD of Umatilla. W. R. HENNING of Clackamas. L. O. HOGAN of Josephine.

A FALSE VOICE.

The New Voice is a paper published in Chicago, and edited by the erstwhile Prohibition candidate for presidency, John G. Woolley. It is held to be the chief exponent of Prohibition in the whole country. Because of these things we find no fault with it. When, however, it resorts to insidious misrepresentation, wholesale lying, in fact, we are impelled to give the facts, and all the more so since many of our good friends are readers of the paper, and feels that somehow it misrepresents President Roosevelt.

The New Voice of October 6 is before us. Its title page shows a half-tone picture of the president with four indexed hands pointing to it and four interrogatives printed in bold-faced type. "Who refuses to close the 102 speak-easies between the White House and postoffice at Washington? Who operated a speak-easy in the Rough Riders' camp at Tampa, Fla.?" The obvious and intended answer is "Roosevelt." On the next page it gives a list of "Roosevelt's 77 speak-easies," and says: "A single sentence from Mr. Roosevelt in the way of an order to the police commissioners would close every one of these places within twenty-four hours, but Mr. Roosevelt permits them to continue." Of course he does. Why? Simply because, although he is president of the United States, and occupies the White House he has no more to do with the government of the District of Columbia than has the governor of Oregon. As fairly and truthfully might he be held responsible for the existence of these speak-easies.

Every American school boy knows that the District of Columbia is governed by congress through a commission appointed for that purpose. In no sense is this commission the president's. And the people of that district have even less voice in its government than the Filipinos have in governing the island of Luzon.

But he operated a speak-easy in the Rough Riders' camp at Tampa. This speak-easy was the regimental canteen, operated by the men, controlled by their officers, chief of whom is the colonel of the regiment. Roosevelt was not then in command of the Rough Riders. As a matter of fact he was with that part of the regiment in the field in Cuba.

Misrepresentation is the resort of weak unscrupulous men. A righteous cause has no need to resort to it and is always hurt by doing so.

MR. INGLE'S LETTER.

In the last issue of the GAZETTE we published a letter from Mr. W. Ingle, of this city, in which he assails "the motives which appear to inspire the actions of some religious bodies today."

Whatever personal grievances Mr. Ingle may have against certain church members at Eugene or elsewhere is matter of no public interest. It is of little more concern, that he misstates facts in the Abram case; but it is of public concern if, in a vindictive mood, he would write down the mass of church members as dishonest and hypocritical, or that the malfeasance of a few can injure the cause of truth.

All men and women are not dishonest, and hypocritical. By far the greater number, whether in the church or not, are honest, sincere, upright. Because one steals my purse and another defames my character is no reason why I should regard all men as thieves and liars. Because some few are not following in the paths of truth and righteousness is no sort of argument against truth and right living and should never swerve a man from true paths.

The truth is eternal, and like its great Author, eternally true. It is of no moment if Socrates, Buddha, Mohammed or Jesus present it to men, the duty of each one for himself is to lay hold of it and incorporate it in his life.

So-called religious truths appeal to the moral, spiritual nature of men, and it is the duty of each individual to make such truths part of his inner consciousness, and see that they control his thought, his actions, his life, though all other men fail to do these things.

Mr. Ingle, no doubt, understands all this as well as any man, but the careless reader of his letter might think he saw only the "wolves in sheep's clothing."

ELECTRICAL CURES.

The Almost Dead are Speedily Rescued From the Hand of Death and Restored to Life and Health.

Dr. Darrin's visit in Corvallis at the Hotel Corvallis has been marked with good results. Not only has he been crowded with patients, but the marvelous results achieved in the new treatment of electricity are almost beyond belief. Two cures in particular are those of Mr. Gally's brother and daughter. Mr. Gally is well and favorable known in Philomath and Corvallis. His card we publish below. The art of curing disease by electricity can be classed with the other discoveries of the day, and who knows but all the diseases and ills of the flesh will be conquered by this subtle force. It is a theme for study and reflection.

TO THE PUBLIC:—While very much averse to parading myself in print, I can not let the opportunity pass without giving my experience with Dr. Darrin for the benefit of others afflicted as well as to the public generally. For years before undergoing treatment with Dr. Darrin my brother was seriously afflicted with a complicated case of kidney complaint, liver and stomach trouble. All hopes of saving his life were gone, until hearing of Dr. Darrin, then located in Portland. He visited him and took the electrical and medical treatment and was cured, so that he lived many years in comfort and good health. Last year when Dr. Darrin visited Corvallis I took my daughter to him for the cure of deafness and catarrh. His treatment was successful. I cannot say too much for Dr. Darrin, who has conferred upon my family the great and inestimable boon of health. Refer to me at Philomath, Ore. PETER GALLATLY.

Mass Meeting.

At the request of a number of Corvallis citizens and of the promoters of the Willamette Valley Electric railroad, a mass meeting of the citizens of Corvallis and vicinity is hereby called, to take place at the court house, Thursday evening, October 20. Some matters pertaining to the proposed electric road are to be presented by persons in the company, who will be present at the meeting. B. F. IRVINE, Mayor.

In Plain Language. Colonel (inspecting the hospital)—"What's wrong with this man?" Surgeon—Phthisis, sir. "What in the world's that?" "Consumption, sir." "Why can't you say so without any of your confounded medical terms? By the way, surgeon, I'm not feeling very fit myself this morning. Can you tell me what's the matter?" Surgeon (After a brief investigation)—Brandy, sir. "What?" "What?" "Well, you see, sir, you want it in plain language, don't you?"—Tit-Bits.

Rather Liked It. Bouttown—This women's emancipation movement isn't such a bad thing, after all. I've been keeping company with Miss Strongsville lately, and I rather like it. Upton—In what way, particularly? Bouttown—Well, for one thing, she insists on paying her own expenses.—N. Y. Weekly.

It Wasn't the Bread. "Sick at your stomach, eh?" said the boy's mother. "What made you that way?" "I guess," said the boy reproachfully, "it was that bread you made me eat at lunch time." "Indeed? Where have you been all afternoon?" "Over in Old Man Peter's apple orchard."—Philadelphia Press.

A Little Too Regular. St. Peter—I hardly know whether to let you in or not. Mrs. Veragood—You don't? I never missed a church service, no matter what the weather. St. Peter—Yes; and your husband worked himself to death paying doctor's bills. Wait, and I'll see if he wants you.—N. Y. Weekly.

No Outward Indications. "You told me he was a multimillionaire." "That's what I've always understood." "Well, he isn't. I've seen him eat. He has the stomach of an ostrich, and he gives dollar tips."—Chicago Tribune.

The Ear of Faith. During a severe thunder shower, little Frederick was very much frightened, and began to cry. His three-year-old sister Edith, woman-like, attempted to console him. "Don't cry, brother," she said. "That's only God nailing up the rainbow."—Little Chronicle.

His Interpretation. Little Amzi (who has an inquiring mind)—Uncle Tim, I saw the word in the newspaper—what is the "curriculum" of a college. Uncle Timrod (promptly)—Curriculum, eh. Why, that's what them 'ere mop-headed college students comb their hair with.—Puck.

A Deficient Education. A brilliant young woman named Mudge, the child of a talented judge, On a desert isle cast Had plainly to fast. For she could make nothing but fudge. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A FIGURE OF SPEECH.

Mr. Monk (who has lost his balance)—Do you know, I begin to feel awfully down in the mouth.—Ally Sloper.

Undecided. Ter marry Dinah now or Chloe Ah ain't decided quite. Ah doan't tink Chloe would evah blow Me up, but Dinah might. —Philadelphia Ledger.

His Forte. Doctor—You owe me a bill of $50. Slowpay—Well, if I had a job I might pay you. Can't you give me a job? Doctor—What kind of a job could I give you? Slowpay—Well, you might give me the job of collecting the bill.—Puck.

The Way It Happened. She—Archibald was always trying to avoid the girls. Where did he meet the one he afterward married? He—He didn't meet her. She overtook him.—Smart Set.

Shell Game. Clarence—I am very sorry, old boy, that I can't bet on the boat race, but my governor forbids me taking chances on a shell game.—Cornell Widow.

Coming and Going. "Here's a man who got $10,000 from a man who alienated his wife's affections." "Gee! that was a case of double-barrelled luck, wasn't it?"—Houston Post.

A Good Substitute. Husband—My dear, there's a burglar in the room, and I have no revolver." Wife—Then look daggers at him.—Tit-Bits.

The Contrary View. "Still," said the wife of the ossified man, "there is such a thing as having a husband with too much backbone."—Chicago Tribune.
